WE ARE SPIRITED

Purple and gold--painted on faces, decorating the halls, and covering the crowds. It was a bold affirmation of Armijo spirit.

Roars from the crowd could be heard echoing from Armijo's newly restored stadium. Finally erecting bleachers for our home field was an achievement for everyone at Armijo to cheer about. Yolanda Garcia said, "As a senior, I'm excited to finally see our bleachers. We finally have games at our home field!"

But showing school spirit meant more than cheering at games and dressing up for spirit days. It stemmed from pride and true dedication to Armijo. "Armijo is the greatest and everyone should know that. That's why I show spirit," said Kendra Griffin.

Even without bleachers, Julie Rosenberg's spirit couldn't be suppressed. Julie said, "It's fun to get crazy with your friends and cheer the team on, even if we're losing." For Julie, school spirit was a thing to share with friends.

Jennifer Connors showed her spirit at games with purple and gold face paint. Jennifer said, "I try to get into the game and hopefully it will get our team to win." This was a popular way the crowds rallied at games.

The first rally was full of surprises and received cheers and whoops from the crowd. Adam Barngraff said, "I look forward to rallies because I never know what to expect." The spirit of the crowd attributed to the fun of rallies.

Vivian Kwok and Jeremy Poco received their honors from Shannon Ward at the Renaissance assembly. Jeremy said, "Armijo isn't only about sports and clubs. It has strong academics too." One third of the school received cards.

Jamie Covey and Tara Lewis made posters to advertise an upcoming event. Jamie said, "I show my pride as a cheerleader by getting other people involved and showing their spirit." She found that making posters was effective.

The varsity team rallied together to psych themselves up for the game. "As a football player, I represent Armijo, so I try to do my best for this team," said Deon Barnes. To get ready the team goes through a "walk through".

WE ARE PROUD

This was another year at Armijo for most and a new experience for some. But we proudly stood together as Armijo Indians. A fresh coat of paint and newly waxed floors brightened the atmosphere. Steven Cornelius said, "I was amazed at how fresh everything looked. I could feel proud of this campus."

Changes at Armijo could have meant chaos, instead it brought hope and anticipation. New faces in the staff were welcomed with open arms into the Armijo family. "Anyone who motivates the students is always a great asset to the school," said Phim Soungpanya.

Despite changes, Armijo remained true to age-old traditions. Outstanding academics, die-hard sports, and a slew of volunteers, workers, and future leaders all lent prestige and honor to being an Armijo student.

WE ARE ALIVE

Never did a day go by that Armijo wasn't filled with excitement and drama. Hugh Wilson commented, "It's hard to keep track of everything going on. There's so much to do and I want to be a part of it all." Many activities were held each week throughout the school year.

School not only meant hitting the books, but involvement in school activities as well. At rallies, dances, and games, students exploded with energy because they were able to spend time with friends and without the worries of school. O'Lisa May said, "I just come alive. I can be myself and have fun with my friends. It's a great time."

Alive with spirit and activity, the life of an Armijo student was never dull. "This year's students seemed very excited about being a part of the school," said Mr. Marsh. Mr. Marsh was one of three new administrators.

Some students, who complained the previous year about the lack of rallies, saw seven rallies in the first eleven weeks.

"It was very hard putting on so many rallies, but the students seemed to really get involved with each rally we did," said Laura Spiker. No matter what happened throughout the year, the students at Armijo were enthusiastic, excited, jubilant, and alive with spirit. This attitude of the student body made the school year alive.

As Carlos Garcia commented on how he felt, "I feel alive by keeping myself concerned with everyone else on our campus."

At the Wednesday Night Jam, O'Lisa May and Keith Dilbeck showed that they were definitely alive. O'Lisa said, "I keep active with my cheerleading by going to all of the events." The seniors won the Jam this year.

While taking care of some business at school, junior Jessica Correa, showed that she was alive. Jessica said, "When I do things for leadership and get involved in Deca, I feel like I'm helping out and it's fun." Participation in clubs was a popular way students got involved.

Senior Brian Almeida kept his spirit alive by staying involved with football. At a rally, he said, "Participating in football keeps me out of trouble. It also helps with my school involvement." The football team was very spirited at all of this year's rallies.

Many students at Armijo looked to their friends to help keep them alive and spirited. Junior Chrissy Schwartz said, "I look on the bright side of things. My friends help me out with keeping my spirit up." Groups of friends showed their spirit by painting their faces.

FIRST DAY

The Day That Finally Arrived

The first day of school. It comes once a year, thirteen times a lifetime. As 8:05 approached, many questions raced through one's head. What will I wear? Where are my classes? Who are my teachers? Will I see my friends? Does this match? What will I do for lunch? As the day progressed, steadily, the questions got answered.

Either you loved this day or you hated it. For juniors and seniors, it was just another day of school. "It was just another day in the parking lot," said junior Lauren Mcneil. For sophomores, it's the relief of not being a freshman any more. "I am just glad, I am not a freshman. That's all there is to say," said Phim Soungpanya. For freshmen, it was a whole new experience. "The first day was very confusing," said Jayne Andrews. However, their first day of school was what many freshmen looked forward too.

One problem that many students faced on this day was getting placed in the wrong class. "It is always hard the first two weeks of school waiting to get your schedule right," said Lindsey Wigley. Although it may have been very frustrating for students, it was also frustrating for the counselors and administrators. "The first couple of weeks are the worst," said Mrs. Calvert. Along with being placed in the wrong class, one of the many problems freshmen experienced was not being able to find their classes.

One thing that never changed was that school had to start sometime and it was better to get it over with than to wait.

While sitting at his desk, Mr. Kardos went over his lesson plan. "I like the feeling I get when I know I'm helping my students and when they understand what I'm talking about," Mr. Kardos has been teaching at Armijo for eight years.

WHAT'S THE MOST INTERESTING EVENT YOU DID OVER THE SUMMER?

Over the summer, I went to cheer-leading practice with my friends.

-Tiffany Wynn

I went to the Grand Canyon with my grand-parents for a week and it was fun.

-Hugh Wilson

I went to a volleyball camp at Pepperdine University with friends.

-Amber Snow

During the summer, I went to leadership camp with my friends.

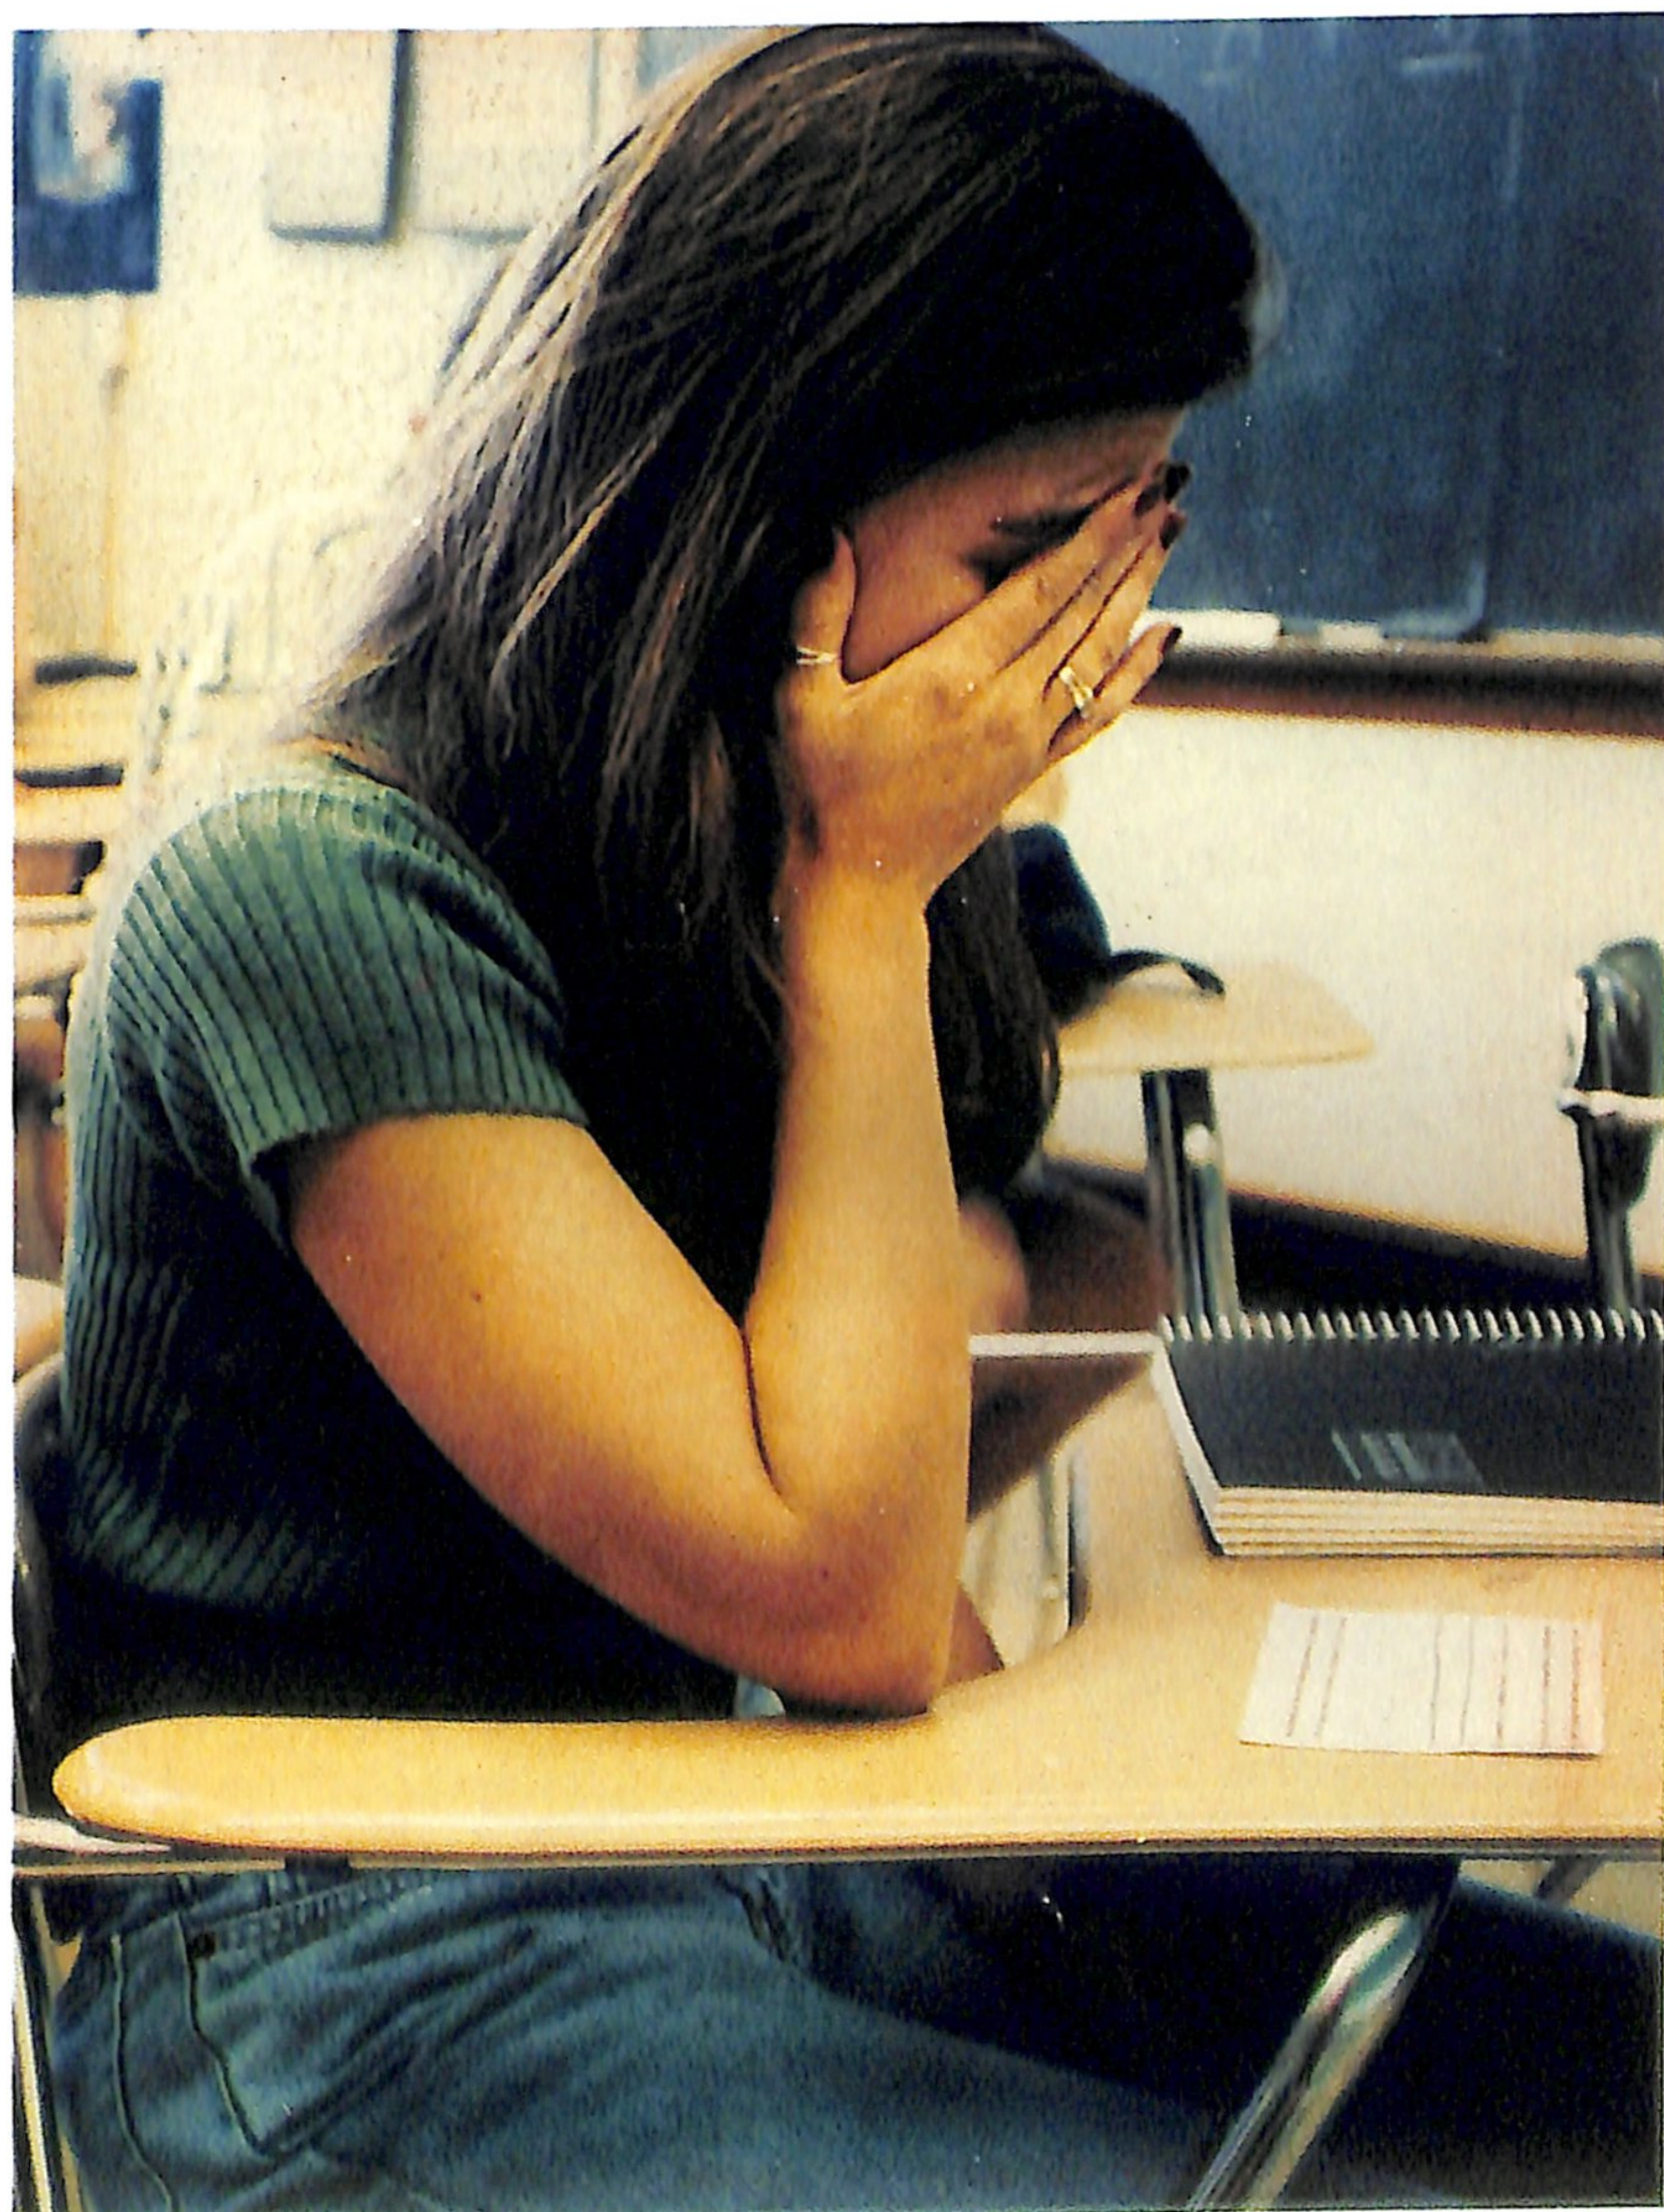

-Jason Hargrove

Melissa Chadbourne, Stephanie Weitemeyer and Kate Natrass all recieved their schedules at the same time. "Because my German class had too many students, I had to rearrange my schedule," said Melissa. By only having one counselor for the entire school, the schedule changes did eventually get done with the help of Ms. Calvert.

Sarah Bunnell sat with a friend while waiting for their mother to pick them up after a long and tiring day at school. "I couldn't believe how fast that day went by. I had a lot of fun," said Sarah. Getting home through parents or older brothers or sisters was one of the many ways students got home.

During Mr. Kardos' Government class, Monique Knoroski sat quietly at her desk and tried to relax. "It's the first day of school and I'm already stressin'," said Monique. Government was her first period class and she had a long day ahead of her left to face.

Keri Conklin pointed out to Kelly Knox how much the pigs smelled and how they could get rid of the smell. "It's really sad that the thought of the smelly pigs one day will be bacon on our plates," said Keri. The pigs and sheep have been a part of Armijo High for at least twenty years.

THE JAM

A Homecoming Event

Catherine Mattice and Beau Roper participated in the ever famous event named Suck and Blow. "The guys put chapstick on their lips to help us win," said Catherine Mattice. All four classes participated in this event and the freshmen won this event.

Let's get ready to rumble! Four classes, thirteen events, it's every class for themselves. Who's the toughest, the quickest and the smartest class? Will the seniors win? Or maybe this year it could be the new kids, the freshmen. No one knows until the final event. Hey people, it's the Wednesday Night Jam Homecoming Competition.

Wednesday Night Jam was thirteen funny events, such as Chubby Bunny, where one person from each class tried to fit as many marshmallows in their mouth and still say "Chubby Bunny". The person with the most marshmallows won. "Now let me tell you, that's a mouth full," said Saythala Soungpanya.

Another fun event was the Tug of War, where eight people from each class had a Tug of War. Now this event, had the toughest, buffest, meanest girls and guys around. Manda Shermoen said, "Being a part of the Jam was a total blast and I was totally stoked that the Seniors won this event."

Have you ever tried to pass a card by only sucking and blowing, not being able to use your hands or any other part of your body? This event consisted of eight guys and girls from each class that competed against one another by passing a card by only being able to suck and blow.

Every year Armijo tries to have at least two Wednesday Night Jams. It's not only a place where there is great competition, but also where people can come to meet to new faces. It takes friendly people and interesting personalities to make the whole thing work. Of course, the best thing about Wednesday Night Jam is the students showing their terrific school spirit, because without school spirit, the school just can't jam.

Senior Carlos Garcia tried to recite the phrase "Chubby bunny" without the marshmallows coming out. "I basically wanted to see how many marshmallows I could keep in my mouth without throwing up my dinner," said Carlos. The junior class won this event with a total of seventeen marshmallows.

WHAT WAS YOUR MOST HUMILATING EXPERIENCE YOU'VE EVER HAD?

I jumped in a swimming pool with my boyfriend and my bathing suit came off.

-Vanessa Shirkey

Trying to dance and imitate Steve Urkel at the same time.

-Adeyinka Awobajo

I went skinny dipping with friends and when I got out I didn't have my towel.

-Janeen Issa

I fell asleep and farted during silent reading in english class.

-Ted Parks

Ryan Morris stopped to get a drink of root beer during chug-a-lug. "I had to run down there as fast as I could without getting dizzy and falling over," said Ryan. Through its many years as a Jam event, it still remained popular.

Junior Kendra Rey dove into the whipped cream filled pie. "Looking for the gummie bears and spitting them out at the same time was kind of disgusting, but I'm happy that my class was so spirited," stated Kendra. Although the junior class didn't get first place, the other classes were just as happy to get the whole thing over with.

B.J. Delgado was chosen to be dressed as an Indian for the junior class, so he was covered with purple paint and whipped cream. "It was all slimy but fun anyway," said B.J. Delgado. After all this effort, the junior and senior class shared the honor of first place.

Bo Bo the clown, Jeff Ignoffo, B.J. Delagado and Kristie Toutjian showed off their stuff after competing against one another in 'Dress up an Indian'. "It was fun and all, but after trying to wash out the whip cream and paint in my hair, I started to get annoyed," stated Ignoffo. The freshmen won this event.

Picture this: If given a name of an animal and told to crawl around on your hands and knees blindfolded by only using the animal's call, find its mate. "I was totally clueless, I couldn't find my mate," stated senior Cory Ward. The sophomore class won this event.

HOMECOMING

An Unbelievable Event

This year's 1995 Football Homecoming was truly unbelievable. With the new bleachers, great school spirit, and the fantastic presentation, it was a spectacular sight.

The entire week was a blast. It started on Monday, pajama day, and ended on Friday with purple and gold day. Friday also included the glamorous assembly which was put on by the Homecoming Committee. Committee head, Sarah Ries said, "All the hard work made it great!"

Throughout the day, the excitement kept building, not only in the nominees, but also in all of the anxious spectators. Senior Tracy Walker said, "I was really excited to see all of my friends there!"

All of the classes worked hard throughout the day to put the final finishing touches on their floats. All of the hard work paid off in the long run. It was a hard decision, but the nine judges voted for the junior float. Beau Roper commented on the hard work he and his classmates put into the float. "Teamwork was the key to making the floats great."

As the night progressed, the part that everyone had been waiting for finally came. It was time to find out who the winners were for the Homecoming court. All of the nominees were escorted to the stage on the track in convertible cars and placed in their correct positions. The tension was high and the anticipation was even greater. Michelle Toolson recalled how she felt just before the announcements of the winners were made. "I was nervous."

With a great game and a happy crowd, the night ended. As everyone headed to the dance, there was a feeling of happiness in everyone. The night really was as unbelievable as it could have been.

Many parents anxiously awaited the presentation of their children in the morning assembly. Mrs. Hargrove said, "The assembly gave me a chance to meet my son's friends and their parents." Her son, Jason, was a senior nominee. The assembly added to much of the excitement of the day.

A lot of hard work went into fixing up the gym for a fantastic homecoming assembly. Michael Dumlao helped with preparing for the event. He said, "It took a while to get it all to look just right, but in the end it was all worth it." At the assembly, all of the nominees were presented.

WHAT DID YOU LIKE BEST ABOUT HOMECOMING?

-Lisa Grover

It was a lot of fun because it was a whole new experience for me.

-Jeff Ignoffo

The presentation of the court, because you found out who won.

-Catherine Mattice

I liked riding in that convertible. That was the most fun.

-Keith Dilbeck

The friends I made and the cars were cool. I liked the whole experience.

Pajama day was the first dress up day of the week in which many people participated, such as Crystal Grace. She said, "It was fun to take part in the homecoming week activities. I felt really spirited and involved." With these special days, the spirit around campus was raised.

Many people took part in the Homecoming week activities. Brian Fong, who helped out with the mock funeral said, "I liked watching people come out and stare at us, like we had something hanging from our noses. We made total fools of ourselves but, it was fun." The rally committee put on the funeral.

Many of the nominees became very nervous just before the assembly was to begin. Matt Haggerty said, "I felt nervous just before the assembly, but I knew it was going to be fun," as he pinned on his own boutonniere. All of the nominees and parents received flowers for the assembly.

The Freshmen Attendants for the 1995 Football Homecoming were Sean Almeida and Jessica Batuhan. Jessica would like to achieve a career in the medical field after high school. She said that she's unbelievable because she has a great personality. Sean's hobbies were basketball and doing English homework. He loves his dog, Velvet, and class activities.

Sophomore attendants for Football Homecoming were Kory Martin and Chor Thao. The most unbelievable thing Chor would ever do would be to bungee jump off the Golden Gate Bridge. Kory's favorite foods are his mom's cabbage and lasagna because she can make it just right.

The Junior class float won first place at the Homecoming game. Melissa Stopponi said, "It was great to be able to work on the float and then also be on it." Many juniors took part in the project to make it come together as a first place float.

Brian Fong and Alisa Albrecht were this year's Football Homecoming King and Queen. Alisa would like to find happiness in whatever she chooses in life. Her favorite food is anything and everything that is chocolate. Brian Fong believes that he is unbelievable because he can fly. Also, his dream is to become an architect. Both Alisa and Brian were crowned by the 1994 Football Homecoming Queen and King, Marie Townsend and Jacobi Hill.

WHAT IS
THE
EVER SEEN?

“My friend's dog. It was a Rotweiler and it foamed at the mouth.”

-Teresa Betts

“A baby horse being born right in front of me.”

-Tim Coffee

“My friend and her boyfriend were “going at it” in Denny's.”

-Melissa Smith

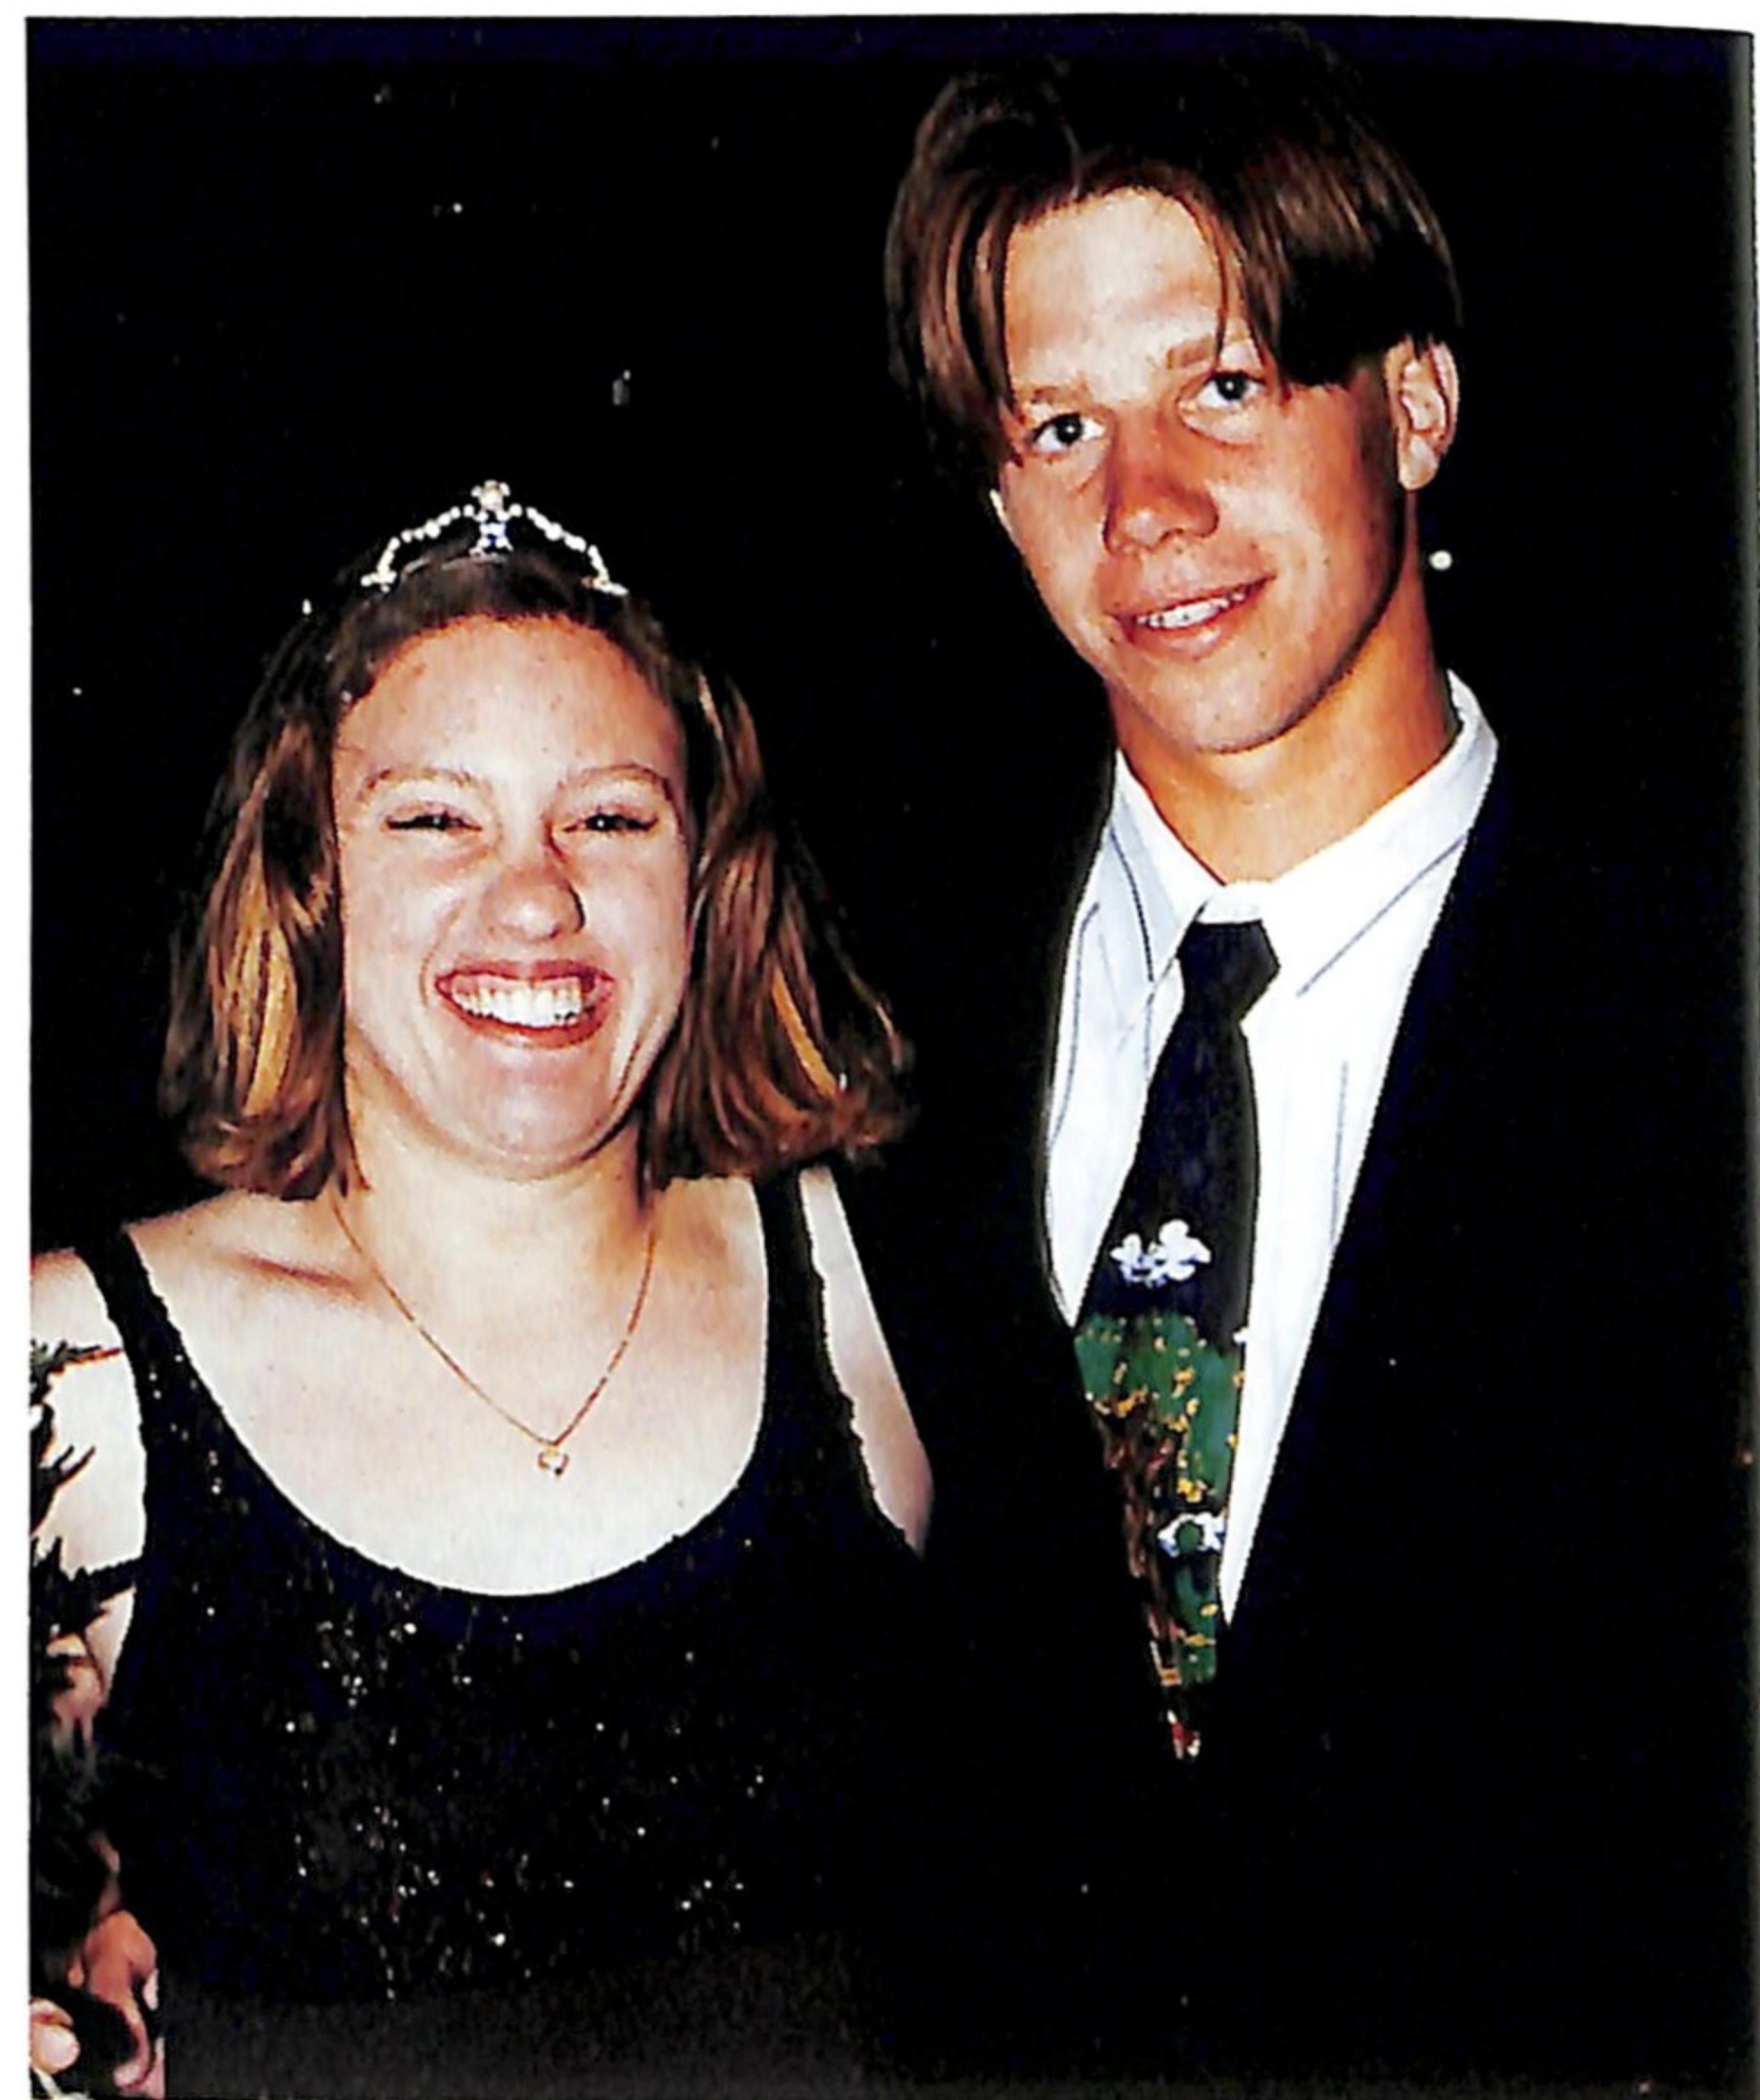

“A dog that had gotten run over on the freeway.”

-Nick Strickland

Junior attendants for the 1995 Football Homecoming were Tiffani Battle and Coleman Connolly. Coleman would like to attend U.C. Davis and then become a Navy Seal. He can skate, chew gum, and walk backwards all at the same time. Tiffani wants to go to Howard University and become a news reporter. With a million dollars, Tiffani would go shopping, shopping, and shopping.

The 1995 Senior Attendants were Chad Cooley and Julie Rosenberg. Chad would like to earn a degree in sports medicine. He's unbelievable because his dentist said that he has good teeth. Julie likes taking walks in the rain and wants to start a women's football league. She's unbelievable because she can bust a move on the dance floor and all of her friends become jealous.

Second place went to the Senior Float. "It was a lot of fun but was really unnerving. I knew that everyone was looking at me," Melissa Chadborne said. Many students worked hard to bring the float together.

Extremely surprised, Julie Rosenberg accepted her roses as she was crowned Senior Attendant. Julie said, "I was really surprised that I had won. I was up there with all of my friends and expected them to win, not me." Six girls ran, but only two won.

The third place winner for the Homecoming floats was the Freshmen float. Freshman Nicole Baran said, "I liked that everyone worked together and made a big project out of the whole thing. Also, I think we worked a lot harder than any of the other classes and should have beaten the seniors."

New Look

Indians Got A Face Lift

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors arrived at school to see many of the new looks, teachers, and coaches this year. The most obvious change, which gave the school a fresh look, was the purple and gold paint that accented the buildings. A new marquis displayed the events for the week. "I like the color of the buildings because it looks better than the old brown and orange paint," commented sophomore Ashley Saunderson.

One of the most talked about changes was the new football coaches. Coach Jerry Glassmaker became the new head coach for varsity, with Coach Mike Gildon coaching JV and Coach Greg Clark in charge of the freshmen. "I think Coach Glassmaker is a good coach. He is hard on us when it counts," said junior Greg Reed. The varsity football team received new uniforms for a modern look that reflected the dramatic change in the football program. The simple purple, white, and gold jerseys and silver pants gave the team a fresh appearance for the new era. "The new uniforms give us more style. Even when we lose, we still look good," said Deon Barnes.

After two years, Brownlee Field finally received its new bleachers. The football team and graduating class were excited to have the use of the home field and bleachers. Parents and students worked hard to put them up before the first M.E.L. league game. "The new bleachers are nice because they won't break," Matt White said.

Many new teachers also filled the classrooms this year. Coach Glassmaker, Mrs. Harvey, and swimming coach Scott Erba were new additions. They taught a wide range of subjects, from algebra to Spanish.

The new marquis in the front of the school was paid for by Mr. Lanphier and the class of 1993. "The sign informs the city of what is going on," said Mr. Lanphier. "It is also dedicated in the memory of Nakia Shepard." The messages were changed weekly by Armijo High students, showing off ongoing events.

Before the Homecoming game, Larry Medler and Brian Almeida ran to the stadium with their teammates. "I like the shiny purple of the jerseys and the logo is nice also," said Larry. Many students as well as football players liked the new jerseys and bleachers.

WHAT DO YOU LIKE BEST ABOUT THE NEW LOOK OF THE SCHOOL?

I like Ms. Bess because she is a helpful teacher.

-Veronica Sartain

I like the new football uniforms, especially the new logo.

-Tony Fabiani

I like the new sign. It informs the community of what's going on.

-Jenny Bane

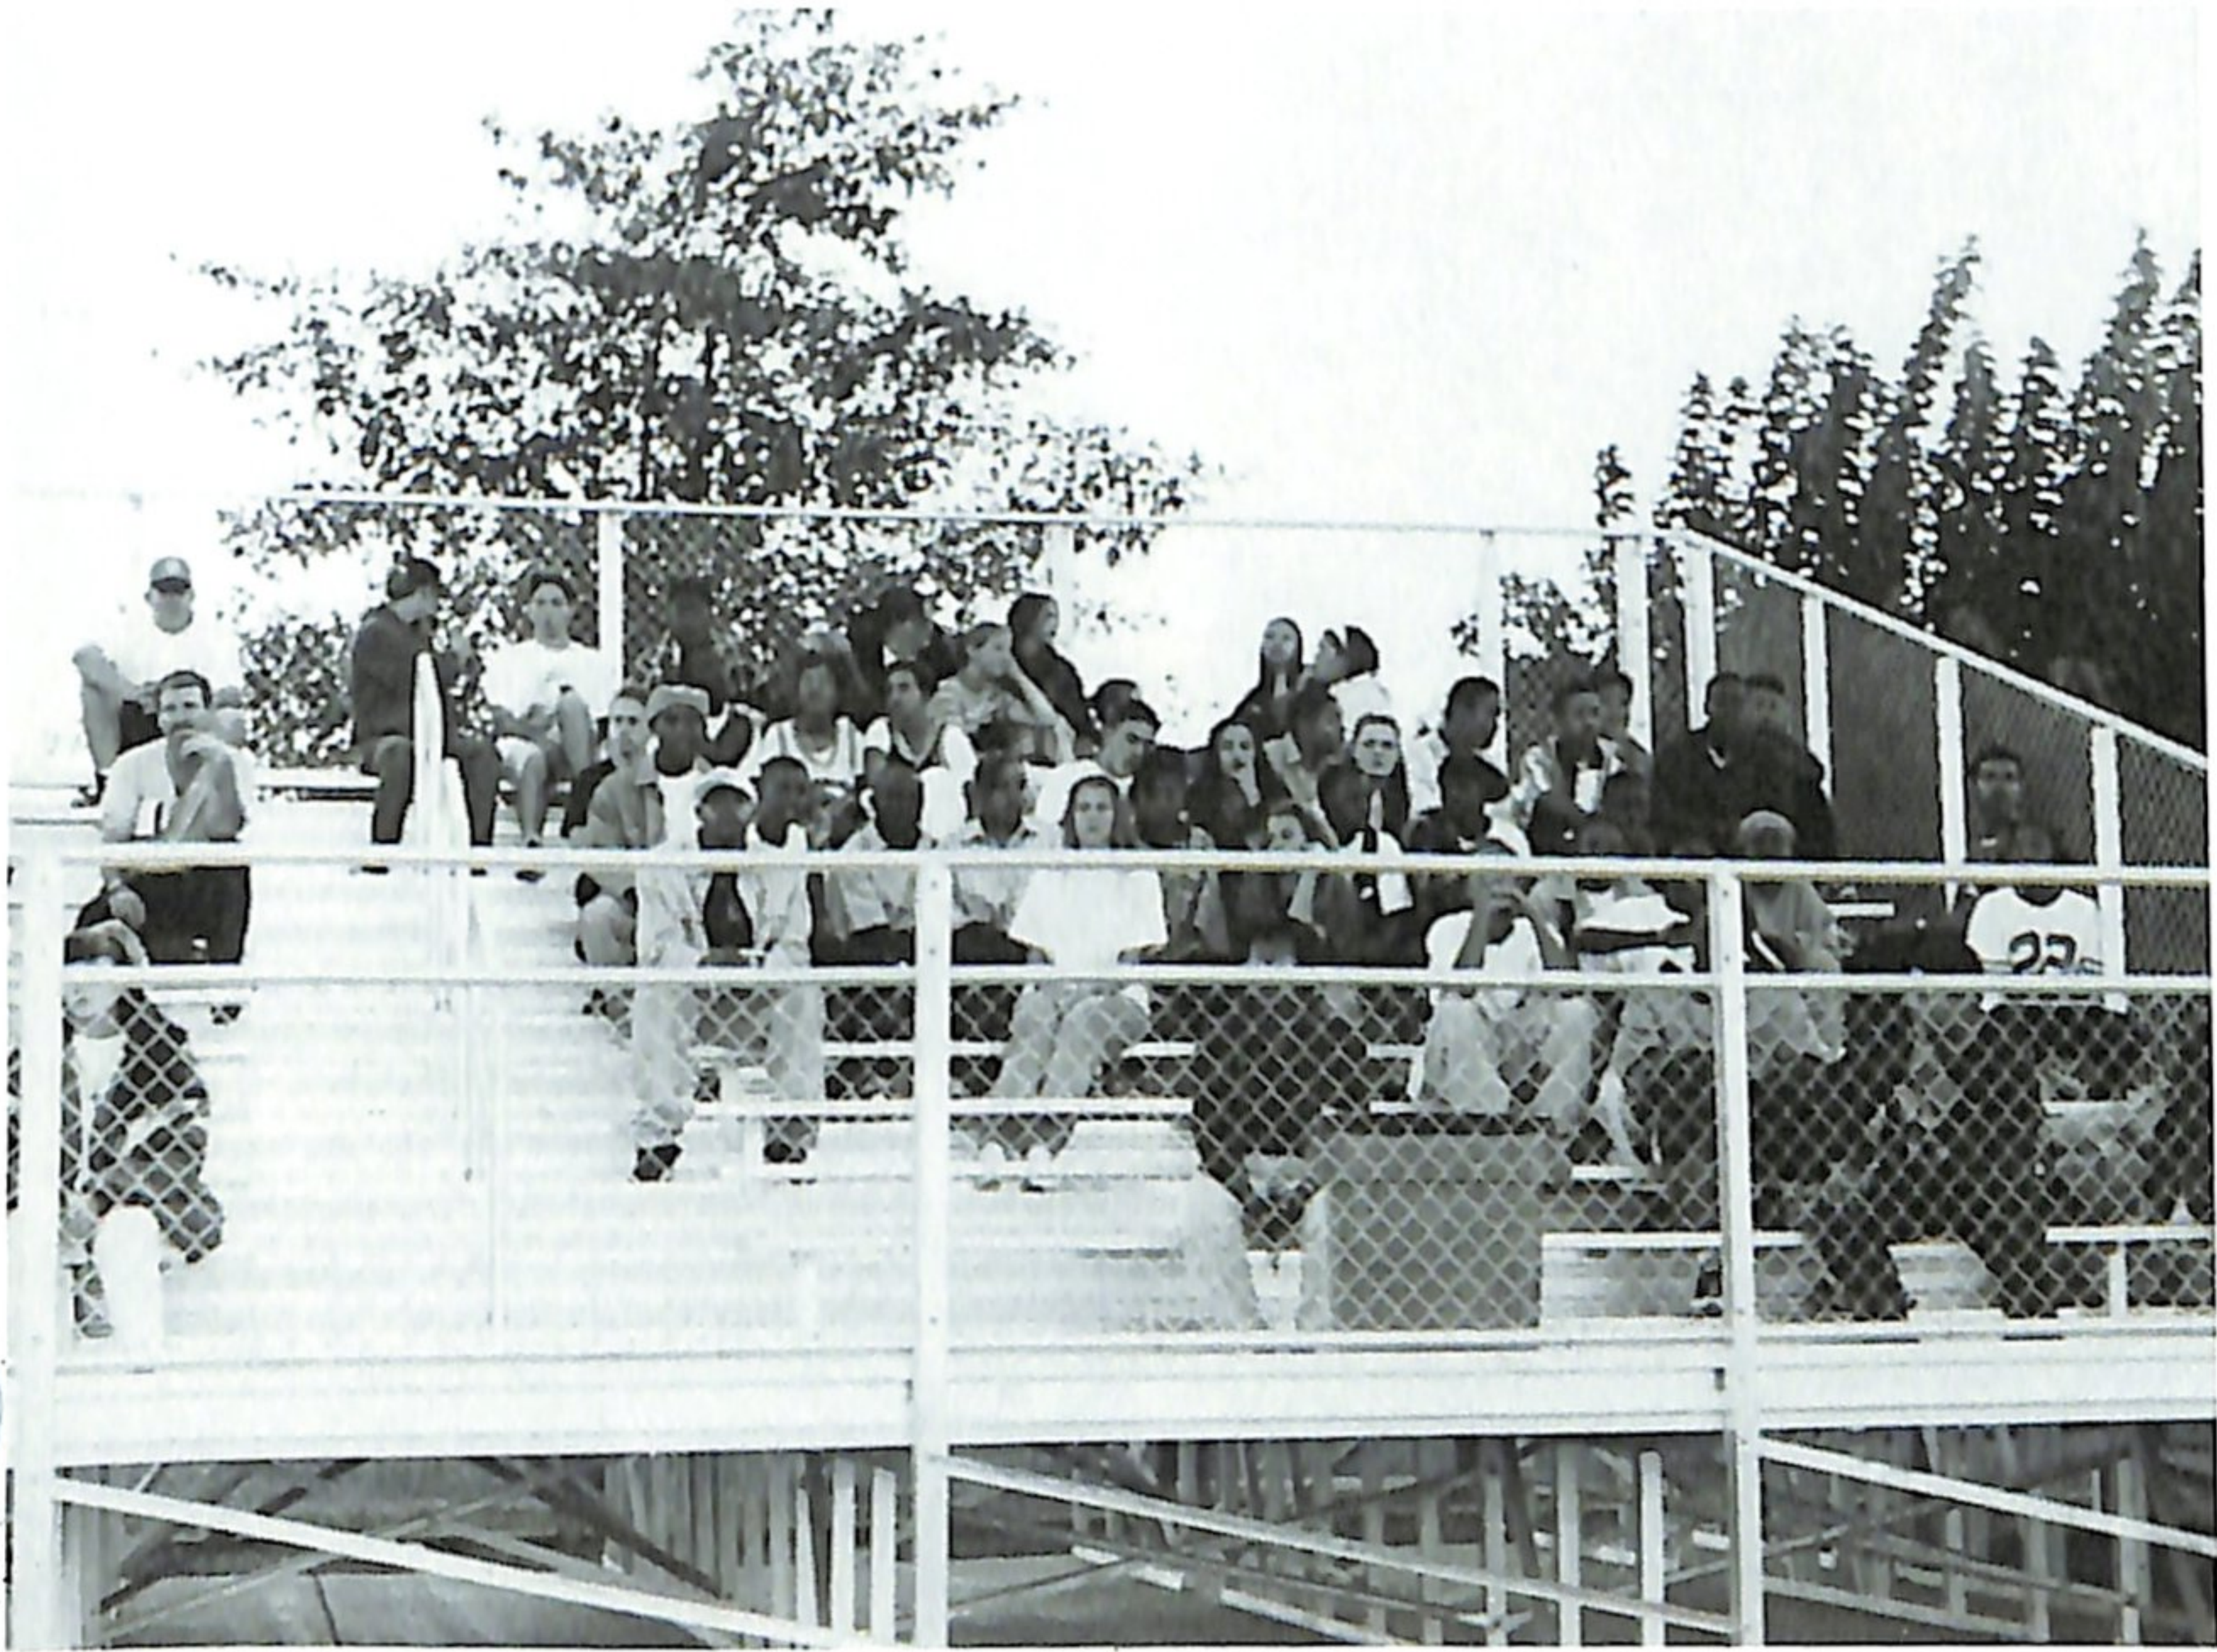

I like the new glass backboards in the gym.

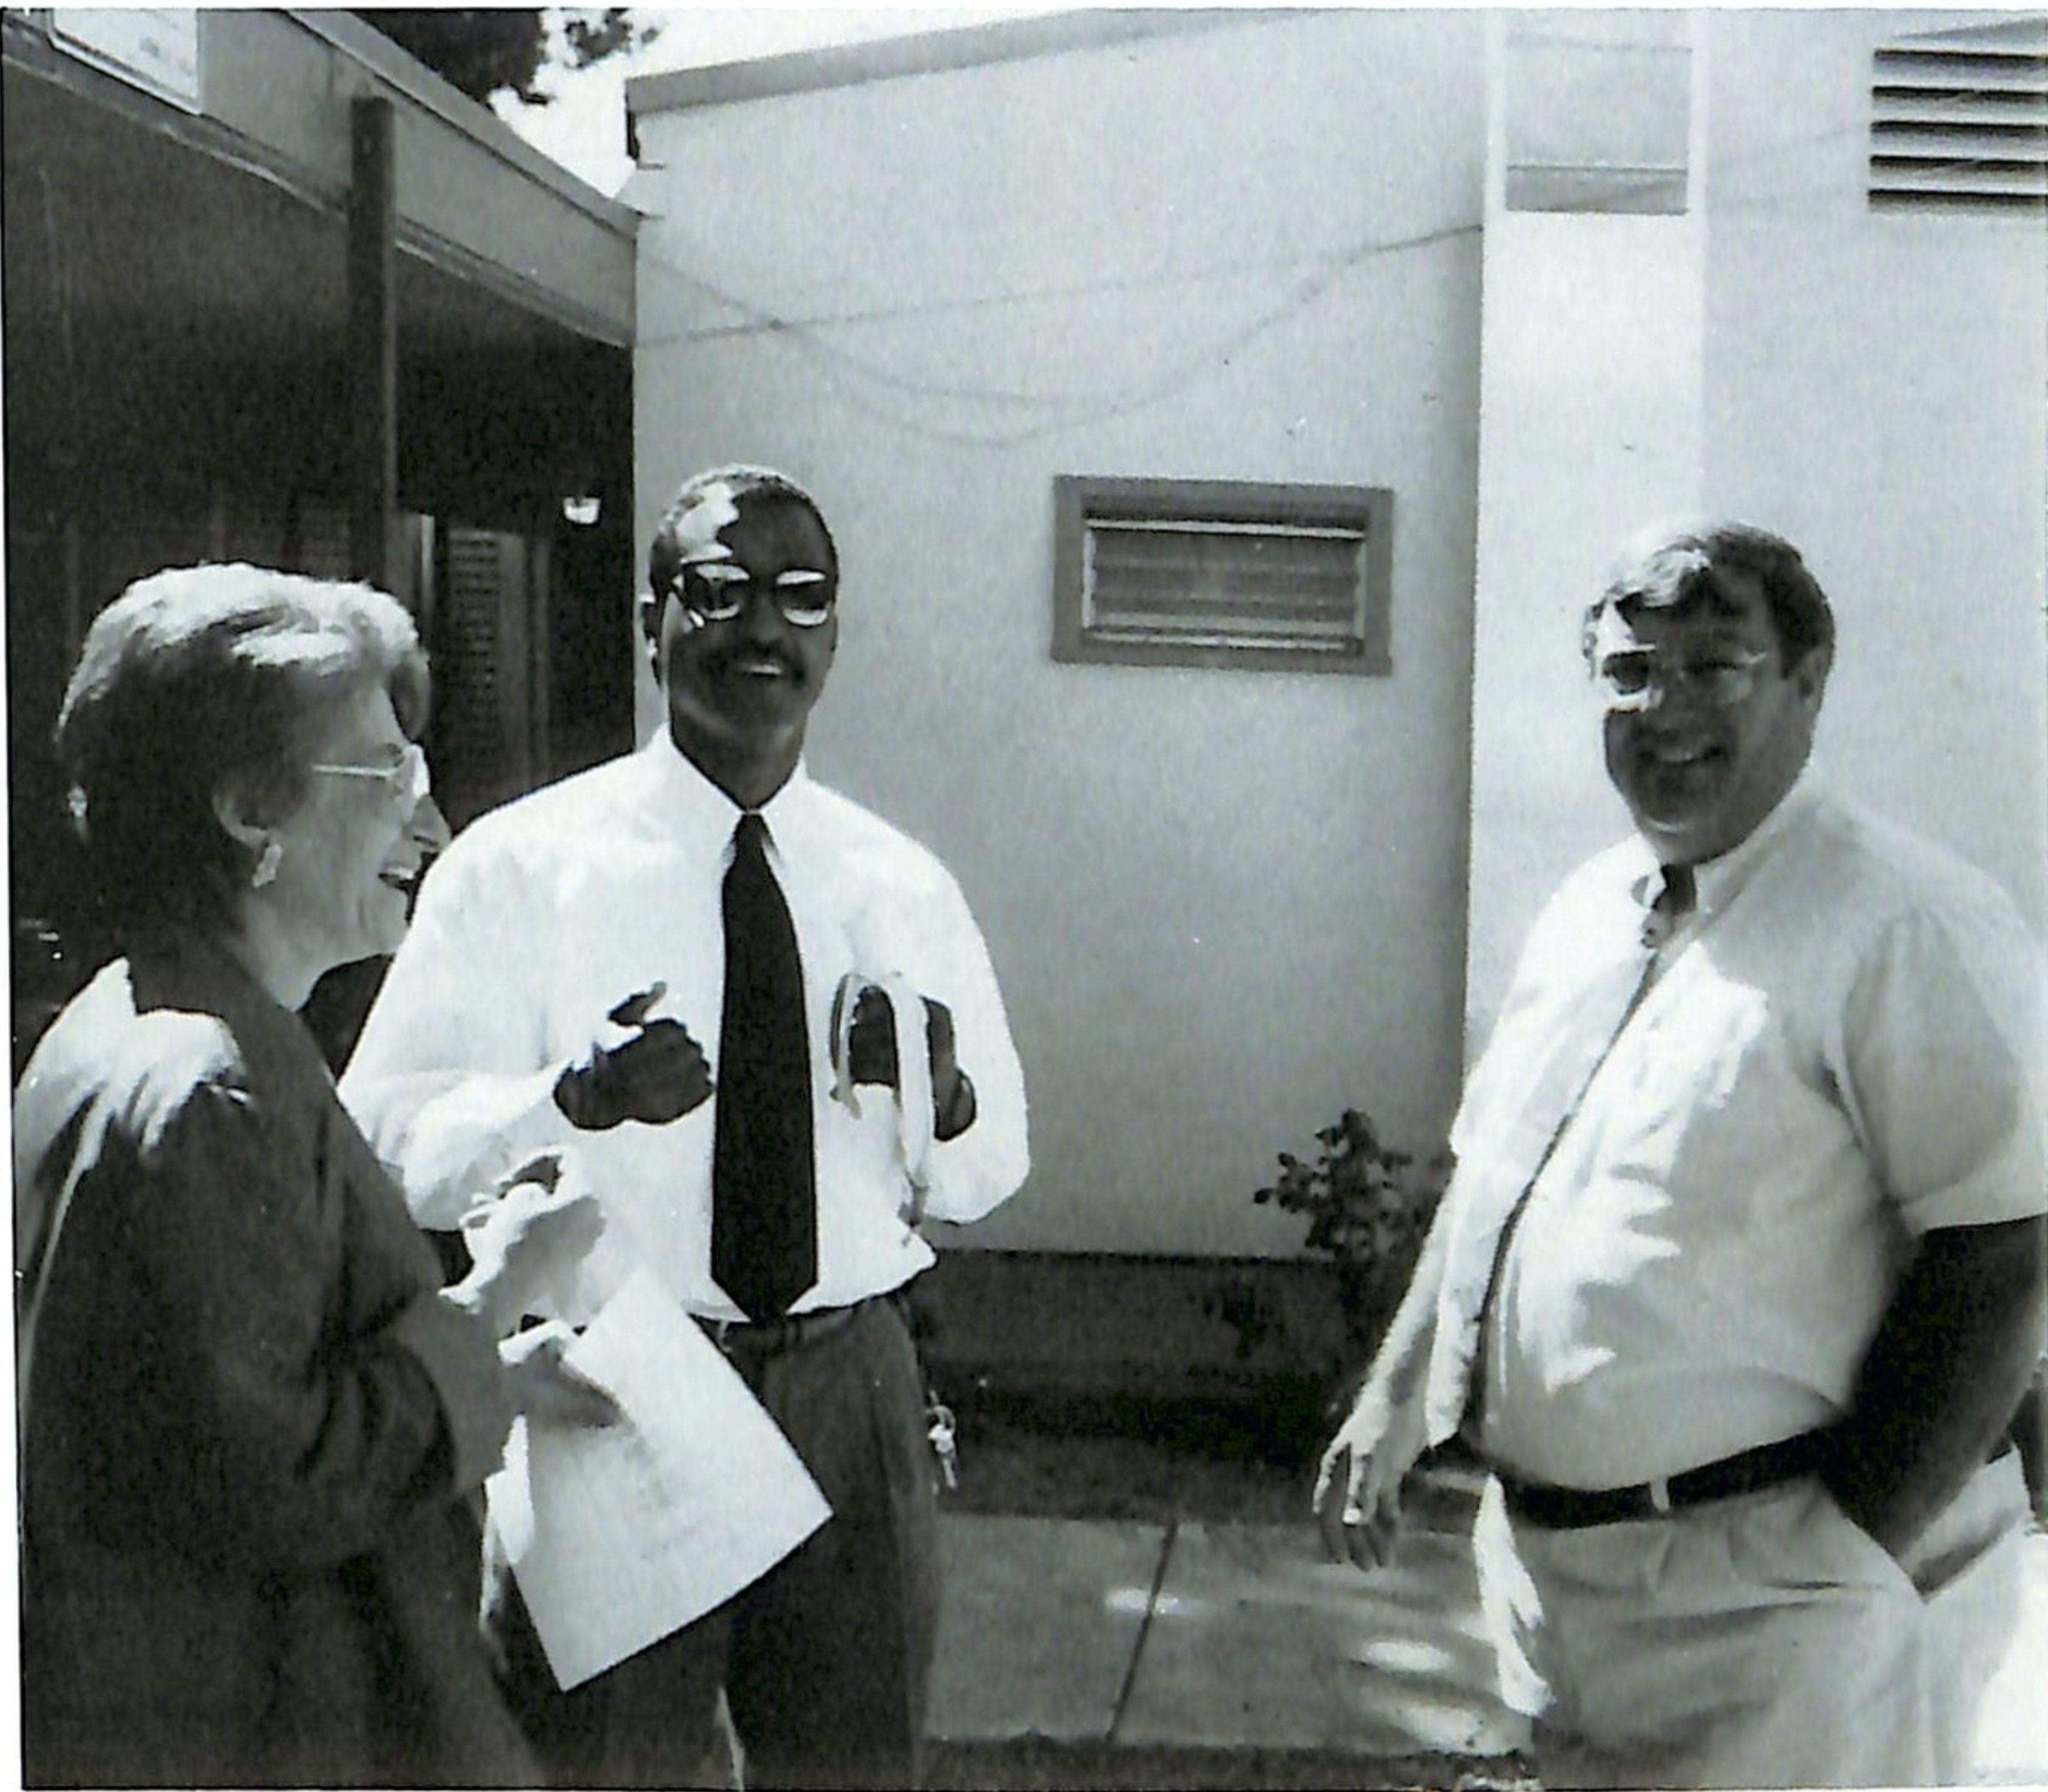

-Darrell Tea

Calvin Green, Greg Ford, and Arthur Tuttle enjoyed the JV football game from the new bleachers. "The new bleachers are great because I can sit with my friends and watch the home games," said Calvin. The bleachers accomodated large crowds at the varsity games.

Standing around between classes, Mr. Lanpheir, Mrs. Calvert, and new vice principal Mr. Marsh had a good laugh. "Everyday is a brand new day," said Mr. Marsh. There are lots of great kids doing lots of great things." Mr. Marsh enjoyed his first year at Armijo.

Boosters worked hard to tear down the old bleachers and to make way for the improved seating. "It was fun taking down the old bleachers and then getting new, better bleachers," said Chad Cooley. The new bleachers took tons of work, but the boosters believed it paid off.

Mrs. Harvey gave Gina Corona a little extra help with her Spanish work. "Mrs. Harvey is a really helpful teacher," said Gina. "She's always willing to help us understand our work." Mrs. Harvey was one of several new teachers this year.

During practice, Coach Glassmaker gave Tony Fabiani and Greg Reed some one on one help. "Coach makes us work really hard," said Greg. "All of the help he gives us pays off in the games." Coach Glassmaker has been a coach for several years, but this was his first here.

Walking to class through the main hallway, Jennifer Engell admired the new paint. "The big purple letters keep the hallway confusion down," said Jennifer. "Now freshmen can find their way around!" Not only did the new paint look nice, but it helped students find their way.

LUNCHTIME

Away from the class

Bruno Marchesi is allowed Dan Martinez and friends to use the back of his truck to eat lunch. "We enjoy staying on campus it's more fun than leaving and racing to get back," said Martinez. Many students have the use of their own vehicles or their friends vehicles rather than leave campus.

FIRST, SECOND, THIRD, DING, DING, DING, LUNCHTIME! Off campus, on campus, downtown, donuts, where do we eat today? Hurry up before the lines get too long, we're not going to finish before the bell rings.

These were some of the choices students had to make during lunch. "The lines are so long I usually want to eat at some fast food place," said Senior Karen Hall.

The lines on campus were very long and will probably get longer.

Closing the campus seemed to be a question on students minds, but this issue had been brought up before. "If they closed the campus the cars would be damaged and the campus would be full of garbage," said Junior Kassia Thoren. The administration would've had put up security or something, but fortunately, the closed campus issue did not materialize this year.

Most students seemed to spread out around campus, once they get past the lines. Near Washington street, near the football field, around the parking lot, in the halls, or in the quad, seemed to be popular. "I hate eating in the quad area because it is too crowded and there was too much noise," said sophomore Phimthoren Soungpanya.

No matter where our students ate, or spent there lunchtime, overcrowding was a problem that we all had to deal with.

Jeremy Hodina stood in line waiting for his turn to buy lunch. These lines are too long to have to stand in for lunch. They need to do something like put in more snack bars, so people won't be so upset about standing for so long to eat," said Jeremy. The lines only got longer as the year progressed.

WHAT'S THE GROSSEST FOOD YOU'VE EVER TASTED?

Calamari, it's an unexpected fishy nasty taste that I don't like.

-Cory Ward

Anything my sister cooks for dinner, because she can't cook.

-Anthony King

Those little scallop things 'cause they're mooshy, and they look like eyeballs.

-Lauren Mcneill

Liver and onions, it's hecka nasty, and I'll never eat them.

-Larry Stauffer

Dawn Ross and crew decided to take advantage of this shady spot in the grass to eat their lunch. "We eat here because it is too much of a hassle to leave campus and try to be back on time," said Ross. That shaded spot happened to be between the annex gym and the student parking lot.

Many students stayed on campus this year and bought their lunch, like this line of students here. "The lines on campus are too long to stand in, so I try to get someone to go with me," said Jimmy Etchison. More snackbars were needed, like the one that was in the parking lot.

The crowd in the quad seemed to change quite a bit each year. "As students got their licenses, they took to the parking lot," said Mason Thompson. This group decided to take the quad as their "hangout".

Many people decided to just stay on campus this year instead of fighting the lunchtime traffic and the hassle of being back on time. Many students agreed that going out got too expensive.

DAY IN THE LIFE

Freshmen

Freshman Gabe Mendez started his walk home after school. "Most days I have to walk, but sometimes I am able to find a ride from a friend," said Gabe. Some freshmen often asked around to find someone to take them home.

7:50: Got dropped off at school 8:05-11:06: Went to biology, a first year language, and english. Between classes made sure someone was there to walk with and stopped by the locker for a change of books. Freshman Ramona Nazoio said, "I always make sure I have friends to walk with. I feel like a loner if I don't." 11:06- 11:55: Lunchtime. Didn't have a car, so either stayed on campus or walked to one of the nearby food places. Freshman Bryanna Nethery said, "I always eat lunch on campus. It takes too much energy to walk anywhere." 11:55- 2:53: It's time for all those challenging afternoon classes. Attended PE, algebra, and an elective. Freshman Tyree McKelton said, "P.E. is my favorite class because a lot of my freshman friends are in it."

2:53: School was over, and the search for a ride home begins. Either a parent came to pick him up, met up with his carpool, or started walking.

The rest of the day: "After school I usually have a sports practice. Right now I am late for basketball practice," said Sean Almeida.

Members from the freshmen class showed their spirit for each other. Freshman Erin Fuchs said, "I love being a part of my class, but I hate being labeled as a freshman." Many freshmen often felt that way.

Freshmen and sophomores waited in line to get some lunch. Sophomore Pedro Corpuz said, "I hate having to wait in the long lines. I can't wait until I can get my license so I can go off campus with my friends." Few sophomores were sixteen and licensed.

Sophomores

7:50: Still no driver's license, so got dropped off at school.
8:05- 11:06: Went to geometry, physical science, and world civ. Sophomore Eric Chadbourne said, "It is fun having Mr. Hambright for physical science. I wish I could be a sophomore in his class forever." Between classes, talked with friends and visited the locker.
11:06- 11:55: Time to eat and hang out with friends, on campus, of course. Sophomore Brittany Poco said, "Usually I sit outside in a circle with my friends. I hate when it rains because then we have to eat inside."

11:55- 2:53: Finished the school day out with a second year language, english, and an elective.

2:53: The whole no car and no friends with cars problem popped up again. Either waited for a ride or begged for one.

The rest of the day: "After school I usually just go home and hang out. If nothing better comes up I do my homework," said sophomore Bryce Moore.

Sophomore Greg Garben laughed as he walked to class carrying one book. "I like to laugh at all the people who have to carry their books around," said Greg. Many sophomores had to carry several classes worth of materials because they were not fortunate enough to have someone's car to put them in.

DAY IN THE LIFE

Juniors

Juniors Jocelyn Fernandez and Jessica Correa talked after school. "I like visiting with my friends before I leave," said Jocelyn. For many juniors, after school was the time to catch up with each other.

7:50: Rolled into the parking lot - in very own car or a friend's car.

8:05- 11:06: Went to American literature, U.S. History, and an elective. Junior Flash Gordon said, "I love AP History with Mr. Falk. We get along so well, and have a mutual respect for each other." Between classes went to parking lot to dump off books in the car and pick up new ones.

11:06- 11:44: Finally, a break. Ate off campus or hung out in the parking lot. "I love hanging out in the parking lot at lunch," said junior Chris Bjuhr, "because all of my friends are there."

11:55- 2:53: Slid into a third year language, trigonometry, and chemistry.

2:53: Rushed out to the parking lot to catch a ride or drive out before the jam of cars started.

The rest of the day: "After school I rush home to eat, and then I go to work teaching swimming lessons," said junior Monica Bustos.

Juniors Keri Conklin, Casey Lynch, and Kelly Knox got their books out of Kelly's car between classes. "I am glad she is letting me use her car so I do not have to store my books in a locker," said Keri. Many people shared their cars with friends.

Senior Tyrina Krutt neared the exit of the parking lot after school. "I always try to be the first person out of the lot, because I hate waiting in line." Most drivers were stuck waiting for their turn to leave.

DAY IN THE LIFE

Seniors

8:00: Flew into the parking lot past parking lot monitor Josephine, who said,

"I can always tell who the seniors are. They come in here really fast and try to slam on the brakes when they see me."

8:05-11:06: Worked way through Physics or Anatomy, Economy/Government, and Calculus. Tried to keep up with all the notes. Between classes seniors could often be found chatting it up in the parking lot. Senior Jason Hargrove said, "I enjoy hanging out in the parking lot between classes because it enables me to catch up with what is going on with my friends."

11:06-11:44: Lunchtime. Many seniors used the privilege of driving to eat off-campus.

11:55-2:53: The afternoon classes were the longest for the typical senior getting through English, a fourth year language, and an elective while trying to fight off senioritis. Senior Karen Hall said, "My brain is so drained during my afternoon classes that when school ends all I want to do is go home."

The rest of the day: "After school I usually go home or to work. Many days I have cheerleading practice in the evening," said senior Tara Lewis.

Seniors Stephanie Weitemeyer, Tarlan Bananzadeh, and Jennifer Dumlao attended one of the last football games of the season. "Since this is my last year at Armijo, I want to show as much support as I can," said Jennifer. The knowledge of attending Armijo for the last year often made seniors full of spirit.

Fashion

Cash, Check or Charge

From baggy pants to dressy shirts, our campus was full of different types of fashion this year. It was rare to see two people dressed alike. Everyone at Armijo was out to impress people and they did it by wearing their own style of clothes.

Emily Batson:

(pants) - Friends - Free
(shoes) - Thrift Store™ - $2

"Fashion plays a very important role on campus. People judge who you are by the clothes you wear," said Monique Knoroski.

To some people school is a place to learn, but both inside and outside of class, everyone liked to show off their trendy clothes and new styles. There are those select few who didn't care. "I just come to school however I want. I dress how I feel," explained Tyrice Moore.

The halls of Armijo were a great place to find a variety of styles, whether it was baggy or tight, long or short, trendy or casual, students always made a statement of their own. The clothes you wear will always reflect the person you are, although you have to remember, "It doesn't matter what you look like on the outside, it's what's on the inside that counts," stated Susan Fitzgerald.

N on-Violence

A Tribute To M.L.K.

The goal behind Non-Violence Week was to recognize the great contributions of Martin Luther King and the values he supported. Coordinating the events were Mr. Marsh, Ms. Rollins, Ms. Cupid, Mr. Glick, Ms. Beagle, Ms. Cornell, Mr. Irba, and student, Mariah Spriggs. "Ron Glick originally started the idea of a non-violence week. We all just added onto his idea," said Mr. Marsh.

Each day celebrated a different theme; Monday-Peace day, Tuesday-Kindness day, Wednesday-Appreciation, Honesty, and Sharing day, Thursday-Unifying Society day, Friday-School Unity Day. "I thought the different events that happened each day made the week more enjoyable," said Mrs. Cupid. Daily assemblies showcased the talent of our school's students and staff to allow their voices to contribute to the message of non-violence.

On Friday, to conclude the week's festivities, many attended a large assembly during third period. The band opened the show. Kendra Rey sang the National Anthem, while the ROTC Color Guard performed. Next, Ayana Regis, vice-president of BSU, presented a synopsis of their club history. Then, the drama class performed skits advocating non-violence. Guest speaker Cheryl Hurd and the Gospel Choir's rendition of "We shall overcome" concluded the assembly. "I thought the large assembly was great," said Mariah Spriggs.

This year's Non-Violence Week began a new tradition at Armijo. Each year promises improvements, but the emphasis will always be peace and love.

The attendance at the final assembly was overwhelming. One attendant, Spencer Hahn, said "I learned a lot about the ways that different people celebrate Dr. King and other aspects of peace." The assembly was an eye-opener for a great number of people.

DO YOU
NON-VIOLENCE WEEK WAS EFFECTIVE?

No! It just seemed like things were still violent.

-Ann Bailey

Yes! I thought the assemblies were good, and people took them the right way.

-James Quewon

No! Because we still had way too many fights on our campus.

-Shanee Davis

No! Because we had more fights than our non-violent weeks.

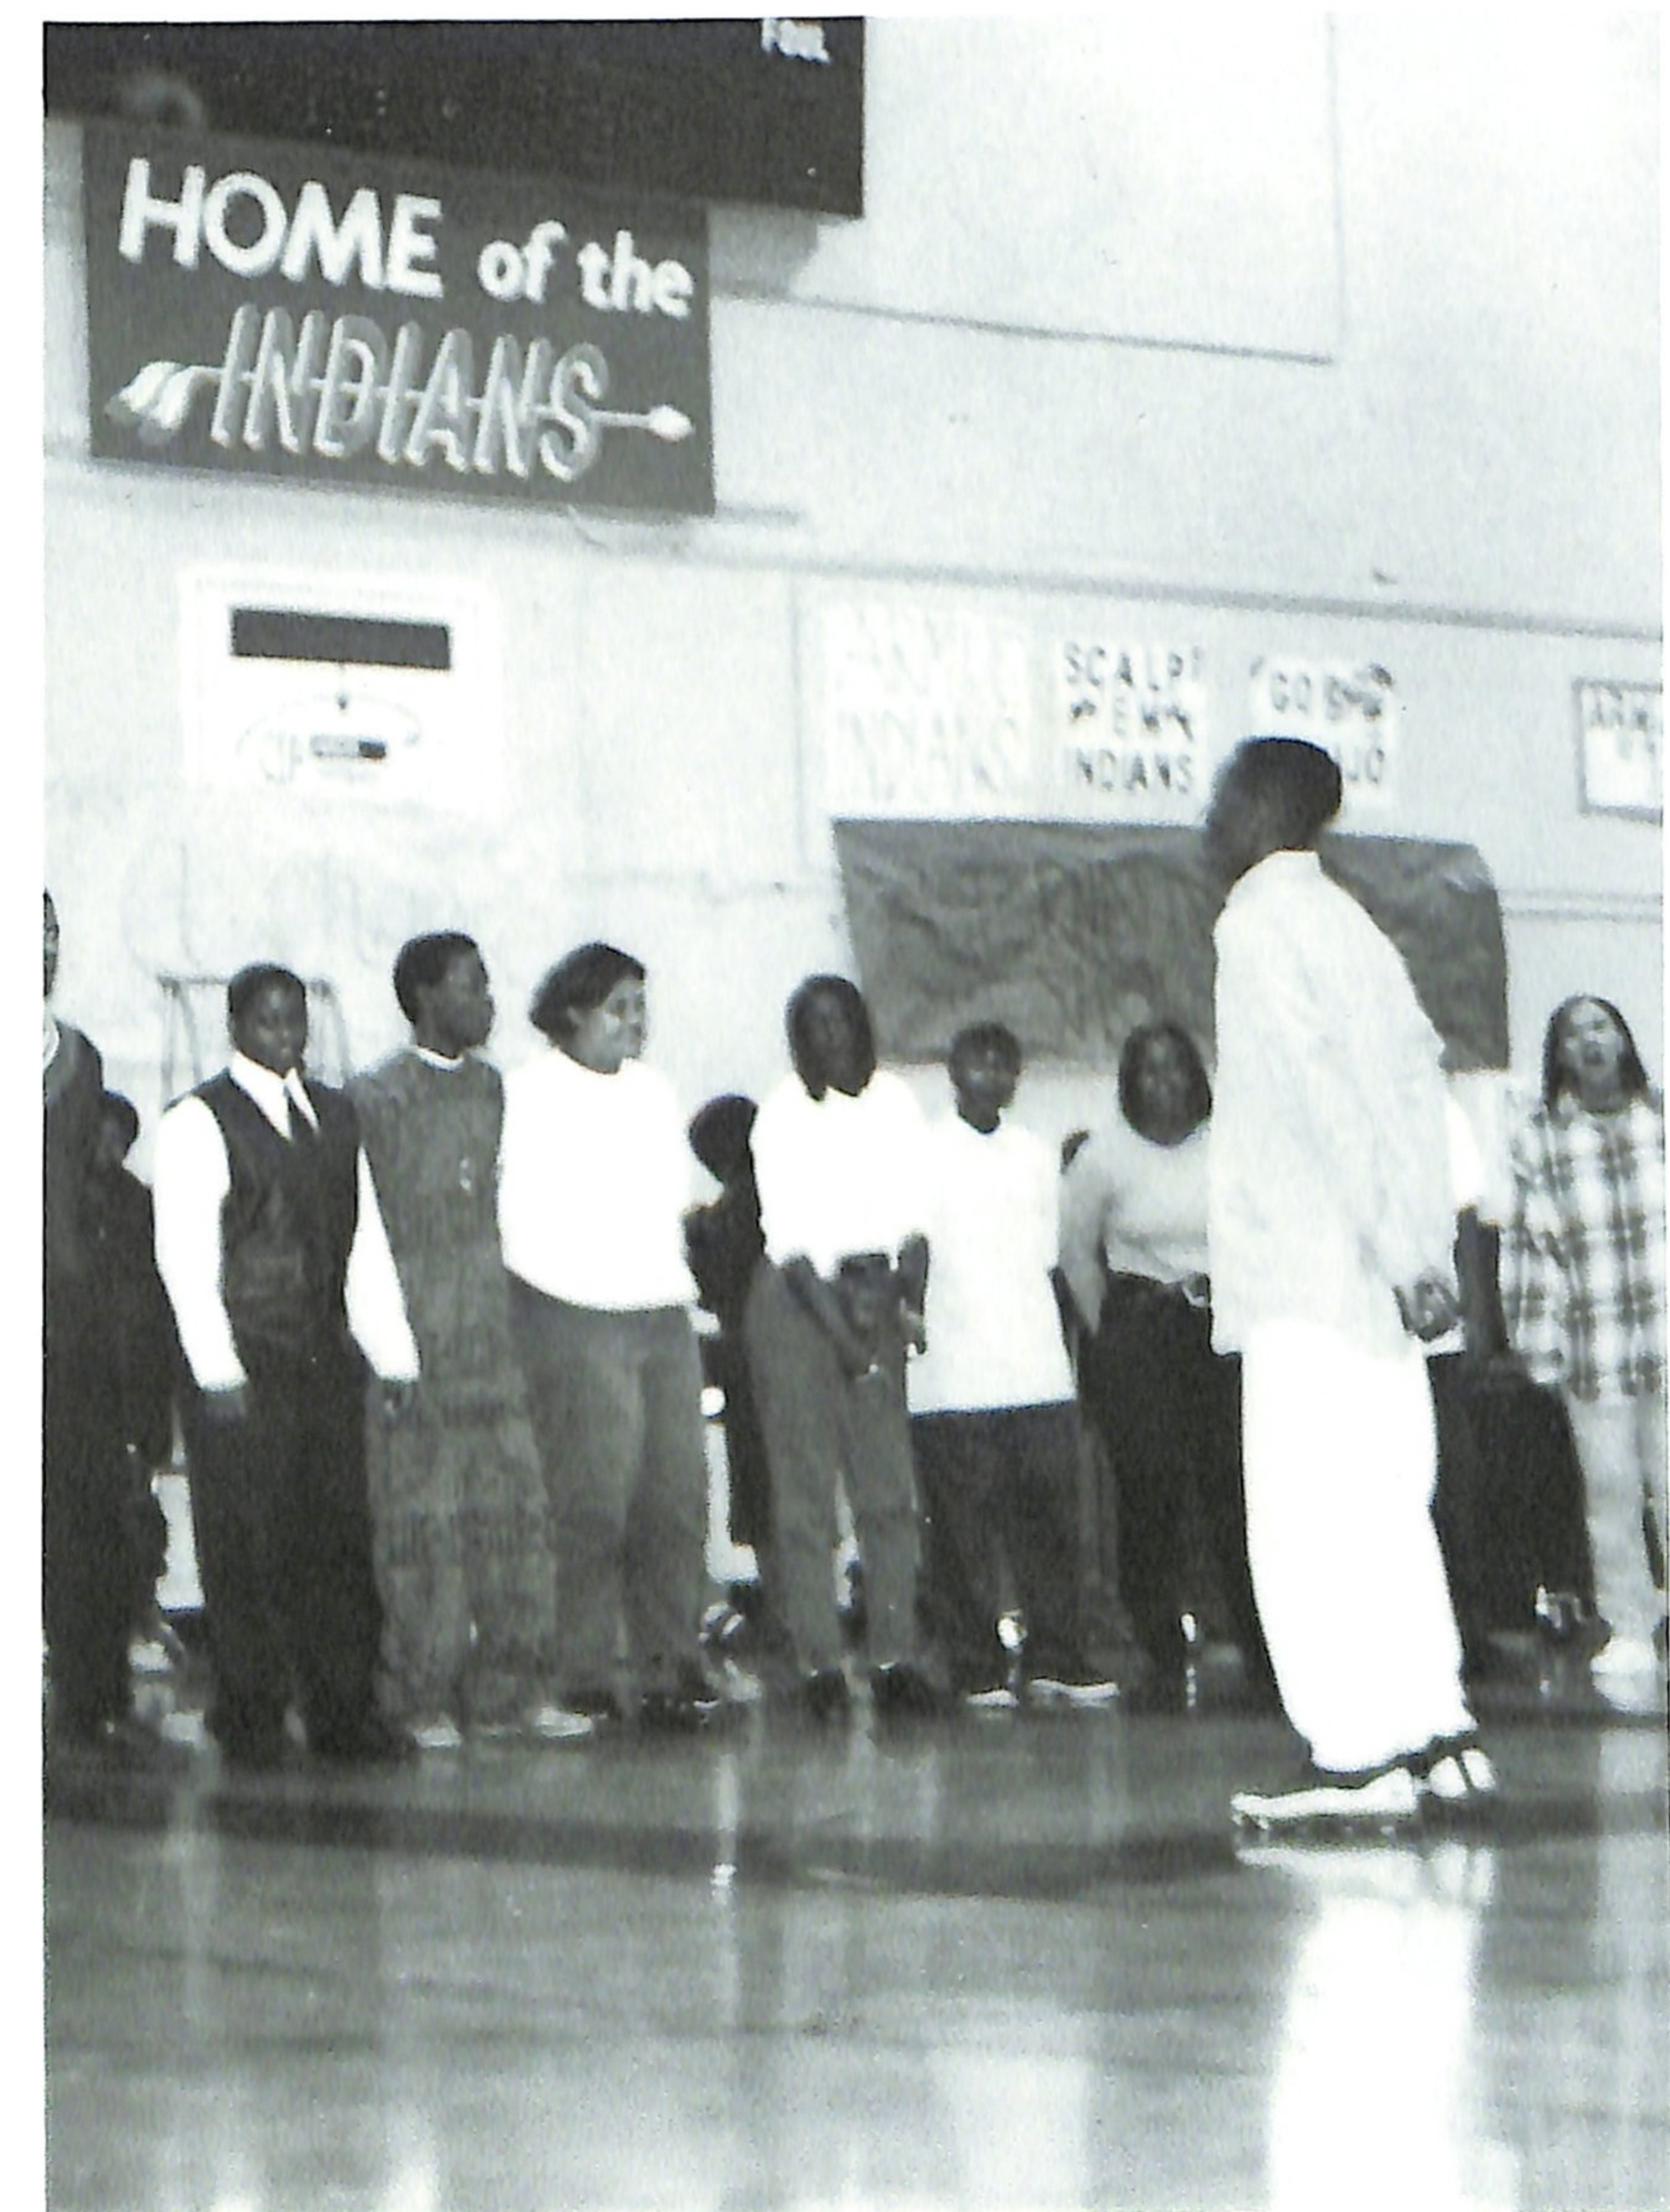

-Froilan Laguardia

Waiting for the assembly to begin, Sofia Bellamy patiently stood amongst her friends. Sofia said, "It felt great to be involved in something that I felt strongly about and that matters so much." The Gospel Choir sang many songs including, 'Keep Hope Alive'.

Hilary Rodriguez, Gina Tomlinsin, Eddie Young, and other Ad Astra students all helped in making this poster for non-violence week. Mrs. Durney said, "I thought it was a great project for the students to be involved with." This poster, like many others, helped to advertize the weeks events.

Different events happened at each assembly, one such event was the singing of our gospel choir. "I liked being involved with the choir. We sang songs that were important during the week," said Ed Johnson. Many different songs were sung during the week.

Many participants in the non-violent week assemblies had many roles. "I felt good knowing I did something positive for the school. I played an active role in keeping the dream alive," said Kory Martin. Kory played the keyboard and was also the emcee for several assemblies.

SIBLINGS

Joined at the Hip

Sharing Armijo with a sister or brother was not uncommon, but what about extracurricular activities? Some siblings shared not only relatives, but friends and outside interests as well. This could be because people raised in the same environment often develop the same interests and opinions.

Although they do not always get along, siblings also helped and looked out for each other. They felt a kind of sibling responsibility. "I joined Winterguard because April wanted me to," said junior

Melody Dionisio. "We usually help each other out in that way."

Some siblings found it trying to spend so much time together. Laura Addington complained about cheerleading with sister, Joy. "It was kind of annoying because we spent so much time together." She also added, however, that she was happy that they could at least get along pretty well.

Generally, most siblings found it an asset to share a team with their brother or sister. Most said they were candid with each other and not afraid to tell the other what they were doing wrong. Both freshman Aja Roper and junior brother Beau Roper played the position of hole-man on Armijo's water polo team. "Playing with Beau is a great experience because he doesn't treat me like his sister, but like a teammate. He's helped me a lot and I'm grateful."

Others chalked their athletic success up to good old sibling rivalry. Drew Higgins admitted, "My twin Brian and I are competitive. But that makes us better because we're always trying to outdo one another."

Super swimmers Vivian and Evelyn Kwok took their marks at a swim meet. "I enjoy swimming against my sisters because we give each other a good race," said Evelyn. Both sisters were one of the top athletes in several different sports.

WHAT DO YOU LOVE MOST ABOUT YOUR BROTHER/SISTER?

-Morgan Lynch

"We share common interests and my sister has a great personality."

-John Gros

"I love the fact that I can copy homework from him when ever I want."

-Casey Lynch

"My sister is a lot of fun to be around and I enjoy having her at Armijo with me."

-Dan O'Brien

"We are really close and I get along with them pretty well."

Twin brothers Drew and Brian Higgins warmed up prior to their game against Davis High School. Drew said, "I enjoyed showing my brother up on the court." Both brothers racked up impressive totals for their team.

Shirita and Greg Reed were both distinguished members of Armijo's track team. Shirita said, "I enjoyed practicing with my brother because we encourage each other to get the job done." Friendly competition was common between siblings.

Twin sisters Nina and Anya Kudzus were one of Armijo's top doubles teams on the tennis team. Nina and Anya said, "We use our special twin powers to communicate on the court." This was their third year on the team for both of them.

Joy and Laura Addington argued over the logistics of a routine during lunch. Laura commented, "Spending so much time together can get annoying sometimes." Joy and Laura looked forward to cheering with each other on the Varsity squad the following year.

The Dionisio sisters, April and Melody, were a part of Armijo's Winterguard. "I enjoyed having the chance to work with my sister and also by having fun at the same time," said Melody. This year many brothers and sisters had the chance to go to school with each other.

EXCHANGE STUDENTS

Highlights of America

I imagine that you left America and went to a foreign country for a year. You would have to leave your friends and family behind and adjust to the environment of a new culture. That's exactly what the five foreign exchange students at Armijo this year did. "At first I was overwhelmed by how different California was from Italy. The school and everything was a big change. The people at Armijo made me feel really welcome and always helped me out with any problems," said Silvia Brocanelli.

The exchange students came from all over the globe including Italy, Brazil, Germany, and Finland. No matter where they were from, they all agreed that there were many differences between America and their native countries. "Here, school lasts all day and leaves little time after school to do anything else. In Germany, school is only in the morning and I could spend the afternoon with my family or my friends," said Christian Meyer.

"In Brazil, there are no clubs or sport teams you can join at school. There are no football games or things like that. Students are so involved in their school and I think it's great that they get this opportunity," said Juliana Stange.

The exchange students all had a wide variety of interests and hobbies. "I really enjoy dancing, listening to music, spending time with my friends, traveling, and playing sports," said Carina Santos of Brazil. The foreign students shared many of the same interests as the American students, and those common interests made it easy for them to make new friends that they hope to keep in touch with when they return to their native countries.

All five exchange students agreed that the best part of coming to America was meeting new people. "Some of my fondest memories of my year in America will include all of the new friends I made here. It was great to meet people from another culture and learn about their way of life. I will never forget my new friends," said Paivi Panula.

All in all, Silvia, Christian, Carina, Paivi, and Juliana were thankful they had the opportunity to be exchange students in America and will treasure the experience forever.

For the AFS A.M. operation, the exchange students were surprised at 5:00 in the morning and taken out to breakfast. Carina Santos said, "Beyond the shock of being kidnapped from my house that early, I had a lot of fun at breakfast." The purpose of this breakfast was to get the exchange students acquainted with the officers.

-Silvia Brocanelli

"I've never been camping and I loved Sunset State beach in Santa Cruz."

-Carina Santos

"Berkeley is the most interesting place I've been. The culture there is so diverse."

-Christian Meyer

Spending time on the beach during the AFS camping trip was a highlight for the exchange students. "I liked playing games on the beach and seeing the dolphins," said Paivi Panula. Everyone enjoyed playing football and volleyball on the beach as well.

Exchange students from all over Northern California spent a weekend at U.C. Davis. "I enjoyed the AFS weekend in Davis because I got to meet a lot of new people," said Christian Meyer. The Davis weekend was a great opportunity for the exchange students to get to know each other.

The AFS camping trip at Santa Cruz State Beach was a huge success. "I enjoyed roasting marshmallows with my friends during the camping trip," said Silvia Brocanelli. Other activities included night tag and frisbee which were designed to bring the group together.

The exchange students had a great time at the AFS Halloween party. "I loved the Halloween party because in Brazil we don't celebrate Halloween. It was a new experience for me," said Juliana Stange. Dressing up in costumes and going trick-or-treating was a change for many of the exchange students.

Blood Drive

A Scary Experience

Chris Hess was one of the many seniors who donated blood during this year's fall blood drive. Chris said, "I almost fainted. Next time, I'll eat more before I donate." The same thing happened to many other students who donated blood.

The Armijo Blood Drive, in the fall was held on the 2nd and 3rd of November. For many students donating blood was a very scary experience. Kelly Parsons said, "I was nervous because I had never given blood before, and I was scared it would hurt."

Most students didn't think it hurt very much at all. Anya Kudzus said, "I didn't feel it hardly at all when they stuck the needle in my arm. It hurt more when they pricked my finger."

Students also felt good about donating. Frances Chua said, "Giving blood makes me feel like I'm helping someone."

Some liked giving blood for different reasons. Fringe benefits! Rachel Passama said, "I like giving blood because it gets me out of class and I get free donuts."

Florence Jao and Laura Diermier were in charge of the drive. Florence said, "The Armijo Blood Drive has always been very successful. Each year we donate close to 400 pints. We have been awarded many plaques for outstanding high school and community donations."

Students who were 16 and over were allowed to donate blood. They did a great job! Two hundred four pints of blood were donated in the fall, and there was also a blood drive in the spring.

Jennifer Costanzo and Tara Lewis tried to keep their minds off the pain of giving blood. Jennifer said, "This is my first time giving blood and it makes me feel good to know that I'm helping someone." This was the reason that most people gave blood.

-B.J. Delgado

-Tara Lewis

When Jessica Boardman was done giving blood she said, "It hurt so bad I don't think that I will donate blood again for a long time. All I could do was smile to keep myself from crying." Crying was a common sight at the blood drive.

Some liked giving blood. Michael Thompson said, "It was a lot of fun. The only part that I didn't like was when they the needle into my arm." Michael was not the only one who felt that way, the needle was the least favorite part for quite a few of the student donors.

Tracy Scarrott was nervous about giving blood. She said, "It was my first time donating so, I was pretty freaked out." The fear of the process was what kept numerous students from participating in the drive.

Dawna Jazuk was waiting nervously in a line to give blood with Laura and Lisa Quantz. Dawna said, "I've donated three or four times before, but I still get a little nervous each time." Everyone must go through the process of answering a series of questions and a visit to the doctor in order to donate.

Allison Schlein felt good about donating blood. She said, "I knew it was going to hurt, but I did it anyway because I felt it was for a good cause." No matter what the reason for donating was, the turn out was excellent. All of Armijo's students came together for this cause.

Drew Higgins didn't mind giving blood. Drew said, "It hurt but it was fun seeing my own blood go into that little clear bag. I did it because my friends dared me to." The sight of their own blood was not so fun for everyone, many students became sick when they saw the bag that was full of their blood.

RALLIES

School Spirit at Work

A chance to get out of class early and an opportunity to show school spirit was what attending a rally meant to a lot of students. Tim Silva said, "I enjoy the ideas they use in rallies. Each rally helps to increase school spirit."

Rally commissioners Kerry Garben, Monique Knoroski, Laura Spiker, and Cory Ward led leadership's rally committee in organizing and putting on this year's rallies. "I hope that our spirit will influence the continuing years at Armijo. We had many new and great ideas," said Laura Spiker. These ideas proved to be a great success this year.

Rallies attracted a variety of people for different reasons. The games and class competitions gave the entire school an outlet for coming together - the football team in particular. Football player, Maurice Grey says, "I like the rallies because the football team is united and it gets us juiced for the nights game." Many enjoyed the entertainment. Tim Devine said, "I go to the rallies to watch the cheerleaders perform."

The bleachers had few vacant seats during the rallies, but many wished for no empty seats. "The rallies are successful, but I just wish more people would come," said Rachel Ambrose. Whether the rally attracted a full house or not, those in attendance were always guaranteed a great show and a fun time.

Beau Roper was selected from the crowd to participate in a class competition of a re-enactment of MTV's "Singled Out". Beau said, "Winning Mona, also known as Monique Knoroski was like a dream come true. I would do anything to get her." Another close contender in the race for Mona was the representative from the senior class.

Spontaneously, the crowd let out an immense cheer, uniting them at the rally. Patrick Sukeforth said, "This year, I thought the rallies were especially good. This is reflected in how the crowd reacts." This year was different from previous years because more rallies were planned.

Minutes before a rally, the commissioners met in a corner to finalize last minute problems and mentally prepare for their presentation. Kerry Garben said, "I like putting on the rallies because it's cool." All four rally commissioners were driven to run the rally committee for this reason.

Spencer Hahn went all out to arouse spirit at rallies covering himself in purple and gold and donning a purple cape. "If I bring attention to myself, I bring attention to the team. And if I bring attention to the team, it will motivate them. Besides, I like to be in the spotlight," said Spencer. Others showed their spirit in less extreme and daring ways.

With masses of people trying to cram in to see the rally, the bleachers overflowed. Jenny Bane said, "The rallies get really packed, so my friends and I try to get a front row seat. Being in the front row makes us feel like we're a part of the rally." Sitting in the front also made it easier to exit at the end of the rally.

Melissa Mazzei and other squad members lined up in formation to perform at the rally. Melissa said, "I'm glad my role as a cheerleader extends to performing at rallies. It gives me such a rush." The cheerleaders' routines at rallies were commonplace and seen by many as the highlight.

Halloween

Part Eight

Ms. Conway sported her cat woman costume in front of her classroom in B-hall. She said, "I like to dress up because it's in the spirit of Halloween." A lot of teachers, along with many students, got involved in Halloween this year by dressing in their costumes.

This Halloween, Armijo students celebrated in many ways. We had our eighth annual Halloween costume contest in which prizes were won for the spookiest, most hilarious, and the best costumes. Shannon Ward thought that the Halloween costume contest was fun because the costumes were funny. Halloween contests weren't the only fun to be found on Halloween. Trick-or-Treating was always a treat that many high school students looked forward to. Mindy Braaksma said, "You're never too old to trick-or-treat because people always give you candy." Yet Paloma Levya felt, "There is an age for everything and it's not fair to the little kids."

Even for those who felt that they were a little too old to run around asking for candy, there were still activities going on for them. Many of them chose to spend Halloween night getting their groove on at a costume party, and the ones that weren't going to the parties were hosting them. "I decided it would be cool to have a Halloween party because there wasn't going to be any school the next day," said Laura Diermier.

Those that couldn't decide about going out on Halloween night were the heart of the whole celebration. Frances Mallorca felt that, "The best part of passing out candy on Halloween is seeing all the little kids' cute costumes." Sometimes staying in can be even better than going out, especially if it happens to be raining, like this Halloween.

All and all, no matter what peoples' view was about trick-or-treating or participating in costume contests, there was fun to be found everywhere during Halloween night.

Chris Claus, Sam Caddle, Christine Young, and Evelyn Kwok posed with their winning pumpkins. Chris said, "We won because ours was the best." The freshman class and "Armijo Action," the newspaper, were the winners of the pumpkin carving contest, but everyone worked hard to make their pumpkins look good.

WHAT DID YOU DRESS UP AS AND WHY?

"I didn't dress up because I'm already happy with myself and I don't need a mask."

-Felicia Price

"I was my mom because I wanted a chance to be in her shoes."

-Vivian Brassel

"I was Gumby because I really admire the guy!"

-Kerry Conklin

"I dressed up as a girl because I wanted to show my figure off."

-Derrol Westbrook

Paul Allen, James Summers, and Anthony Blackman showed off their creative cross-dressing costumes. Paul said, "I dressed up for Halloween to have fun." More students and staff dressed up this year than in the previous years showing that the halloween spirit was stronger than ever.

Stavious Powell and Keith Burroughs posed in their Otis and Re-run costumes at the costume contest. Keith said, "I like Halloween because it is fun and you get the chance to show you costume skills." Stavious won the contest for best costume and Keith won for funniest costume.

As a witch, winning the honor of scariest costume in the competition, Marie King walked around scaring many people. "The only thing I had to say to people was 'BOO!'," said Marie King. Many different costumes were displayed at the big competition.

China-Rose Harper chose Chris Bhjur as one of her victims on Halloween. "Halloween is fun because you can bring out a part of you that you don't get to show every day," said China as she took her bite. A lot of people took advantage of Halloween to let some of their true side show.

Ben Kucinski and Cristina Gonzales shared in the Halloween spirit. "It was our senior year so we wanted to have fun with it. How many other times do you see a pregnant nun on campus?" said Ben. Halloween wasn't the only time that many seniors went all out because it was their last year they felt that they had nothing to lose.

Bonfire

As the Fire Roared

The bonfire was a major event at Armijo and to all the people in it. With all the cheers and excitement, there was a certain peace between all the students that went that wasn't there at any other time. "People seemed to have been brought together and everyone seemed to have a lot of fun," said Sarah VanDyke. Some students brought blankets and stretched out as the fire roared.

When the fire was lit, there was a hush over the crowd and the people were brought together by a lot of school spirit. "When the crowd gets excited it makes everything more fun and worthwhile," said Tara Lewis. At first they couldn't get the fire started, but eventually they did.

The cheers and yells brought the spirit up high! "School spirit is so important and this was just the thing to get us there," said Mario Martinez. The students danced, sang, cheered, and just watched as the fire burned.

The bonfire was a symbol of spirit and peace here at Armijo and will continue to be for years to come. "Every year I look forward to the bonfire, I am so sad that I am going to miss it next year, because I'm graduating!" stated Cristina Gonzalez. Even though there were students represented from all four classes, the seniors were the most numerous.

The traditional bonfire rally not only happened before our rival game, but symbolized the end of the football season.

Bryce Moore and a group of sophomores celebrated at the bonfire rally. "It took a half an hour to light the fire, because no one could light it correctly," said Bryce Moore. When the lighter fluid did not work the firemen brought gasoline to finally get the fire going.

-Crystol Brandon

“My brother and I were playing with matches and set the couch on fire.”

-Berry Dasilva

“In the eighth grade, I was cooking and almost blew up the kitchen.”

-Sarah Malito

“I set my finger nail on fire because I was bored and it looked cool.”

-Theresa Troth

As the boundary ropes burned from the intense heat of the fire the crowd roared with excitement. Sophomore cheerleader Shera Davis said, "It was cool to get people pumped up because you could feel the heat in two ways." Not only were the cheers from the cheerleaders heard but also the music that was played.

Rally crew members Monique Knoroski, Laura Spiker and Cory Ward were busily waiting to try and light the bonfire. "It was really cold and windy out there, for awhile we couldn't get the fire started," said Monique. Luckily the firefighters came to the rescue and the bonfire came alive.

The freshman spirit was high and even Seychelle McGinity had a blast. "This was my first bonfire so I didn't really know what to expect. It was great!" she commented. The bonfire was a thrill for everyone.

As the senior class showed off their spirit, most of them didn't even know they had it in them. "It was a great chance to let loose with all of my friends and get crazy," stated Nikki Albrecht. Being the seniors' last year, this was not the only thing they were involved with.

The class of 1997 had spirit like no one would believe. "Spirit is my job as a cheerleader and I think we did a great job keeping that spirit alive at the bonfire," said Kim McMaster. All of the cheerleaders did a fantastic job helping out with everyone's positive attitude and enormous spirit.

Football

Games To Remember

It's Friday night and the bleachers are starting to fill up. The crowd got excited as the cheerleaders and football players warmed up. The kick off and a loud roar from the crowd signified the start of the football game. Each member of the crowd had their own reason for attending the game. Many were parents who were supporting their children, but most were just students out to have a good time. Theresa Sullivan said, "I go to watch my boyfriend, Jimmy Thaxton. I have fun because I see a lot of my friends."

The spirit and pride of Armijo were evident at the games with each cheer, yell, and chant. "I go to the football games to show school spirit," said Michelle Toolson. Each student that came to the game with that intention added to the spirit of Armijo.

At games, the bigger the crowd was, the better. Varsity cheerleader Joy Addington said, "When I cheer at the football games and I see the crowd cheering with us or dancing during our halftime routine it makes me smile. It helps me to get more spirited. An enthusiastic crowd makes cheerleading easy."

The crowd also hoped to help the football players. "The football games are a place where everyone comes together to support their team. I think this gives the team more initiative to win," said Steve Cornelius. Many football players felt good to hear the crowd cheering.

Everyone agreed that an Armijo football game meant fun. Stephanie Martin said, "Football games give everyone a chance to socialize, be loud, and act stupid, all while rooting for your school!"

Cheerleader Jaime Covey and the rest of the Varsity squads worked hard to keep the crowd excited. Jaime said, "If cheerleading were any easier, it would be called football!" This was Jaime's first year of cheerleading and she loved the opportunity.

The bleachers at Brownlee Field filled with eager fans, ready to cheer on the team. Jenny Ceballos said, "I think the crowd was a lot more into the games after we got bleachers. It felt great having home games at home." Students were happy to be able to cheer for their team in their own bleachers.

HOW
GOTTEN THIS YEAR?

I go to the football games and cheer for our teams. I also like watching the cheerleaders.

-Kristina Javing

I go to the football games and cheer on my sister, the best cheerleader I know.

-Noah Battle

At Wednesday Night Jam, I tried to look for a penny in a pie and there was no penny!

-Coleman Connolly

I was involved in the multi-cultural rally.

-Jasmeen Chhokar

The bleachers were packed with groups of friends joining together to cheer, creating a crowd full of spirit. "Even though we were losing, my friends and I were still cheering. We made our own little cheering section," said Jennifer Fontenot. The outcome of the game didn't dampen the crowd's spirit.

Friends met at the football games and enjoyed spending time together. Joy Fike said, "I never really watched the football games. I went to be with my friends and we had a lot of fun." The stands were always full and everyone always had a good time.

Larry Knox busted through the line during the game against Harbor. Larry said, "It was a great feeling. I loved to hear the crowd's support." An enthusiastic crowd and great players were two fundamental aspects to a good game.

Faithful fans got excited before the football games. Heather Anderson said, "I like meeting people from other places and talking with friends." The football games were a common place to meet and have fun with friends.

DANCES

The Freaks Come Out At Night

From rhythm and blues to rock and roll, rap to country, music was the most important part of a school dance. With different music and different people together, an Armijo dance was never to be ignored. "I liked the way the D.J. played a variety of music," said Cristina Gonzales.

"The dances at Armijo are great. It's the only time that people can get together, have fun, and get along," said Alicia Pianfett. Some students danced while others just socialized.

Dances were a great way to start the weekend. Being able to stay out late, talk with friends, and listen to the hottest music that was out, was always a great way to have fun. "The after game dances were a lot of fun, especially being with all of my friends. I wish they could have been longer than two hours," said Mario Martinez.

It was also great having the dances after the football and basketball games, because they were always held on Friday night. Julie Judd, a varsity cheerleader, said, "I like being around my friends and listening to music, so being at dances gives me the best of both worlds." What everybody said was the dances were the place to be if you wanted to have some real fun after those long weeks of hard work at school.

There were three ASB dances this past year that were all free for those with an Activity Card. "At first I did not want to buy an activity card, but the free dances made the card worth every penny," said Mariah Spriggs. All dances were well attended and set the tone for a great year.

A group of football players and crowds of friends all milled around the gym at the start of the dance. Frances Mallorca said, "I went to the dance because I love to dance. Some of my friends were there, so that made it even more fun for me". Even though large crowds meant less dance space, for some, more people made a better dance.

EVER BEEN
DATE AND
HOW DID IT GO?

My friend hooked me up with her brother who was younger than me.

-Hasi Elliott

My date was supposed to be great and he took me to McDonalds.

-Tamela Beckford

While we were eating dinner, he was cutting his steak & the sauce squirted all over me.

-Celine Waterman

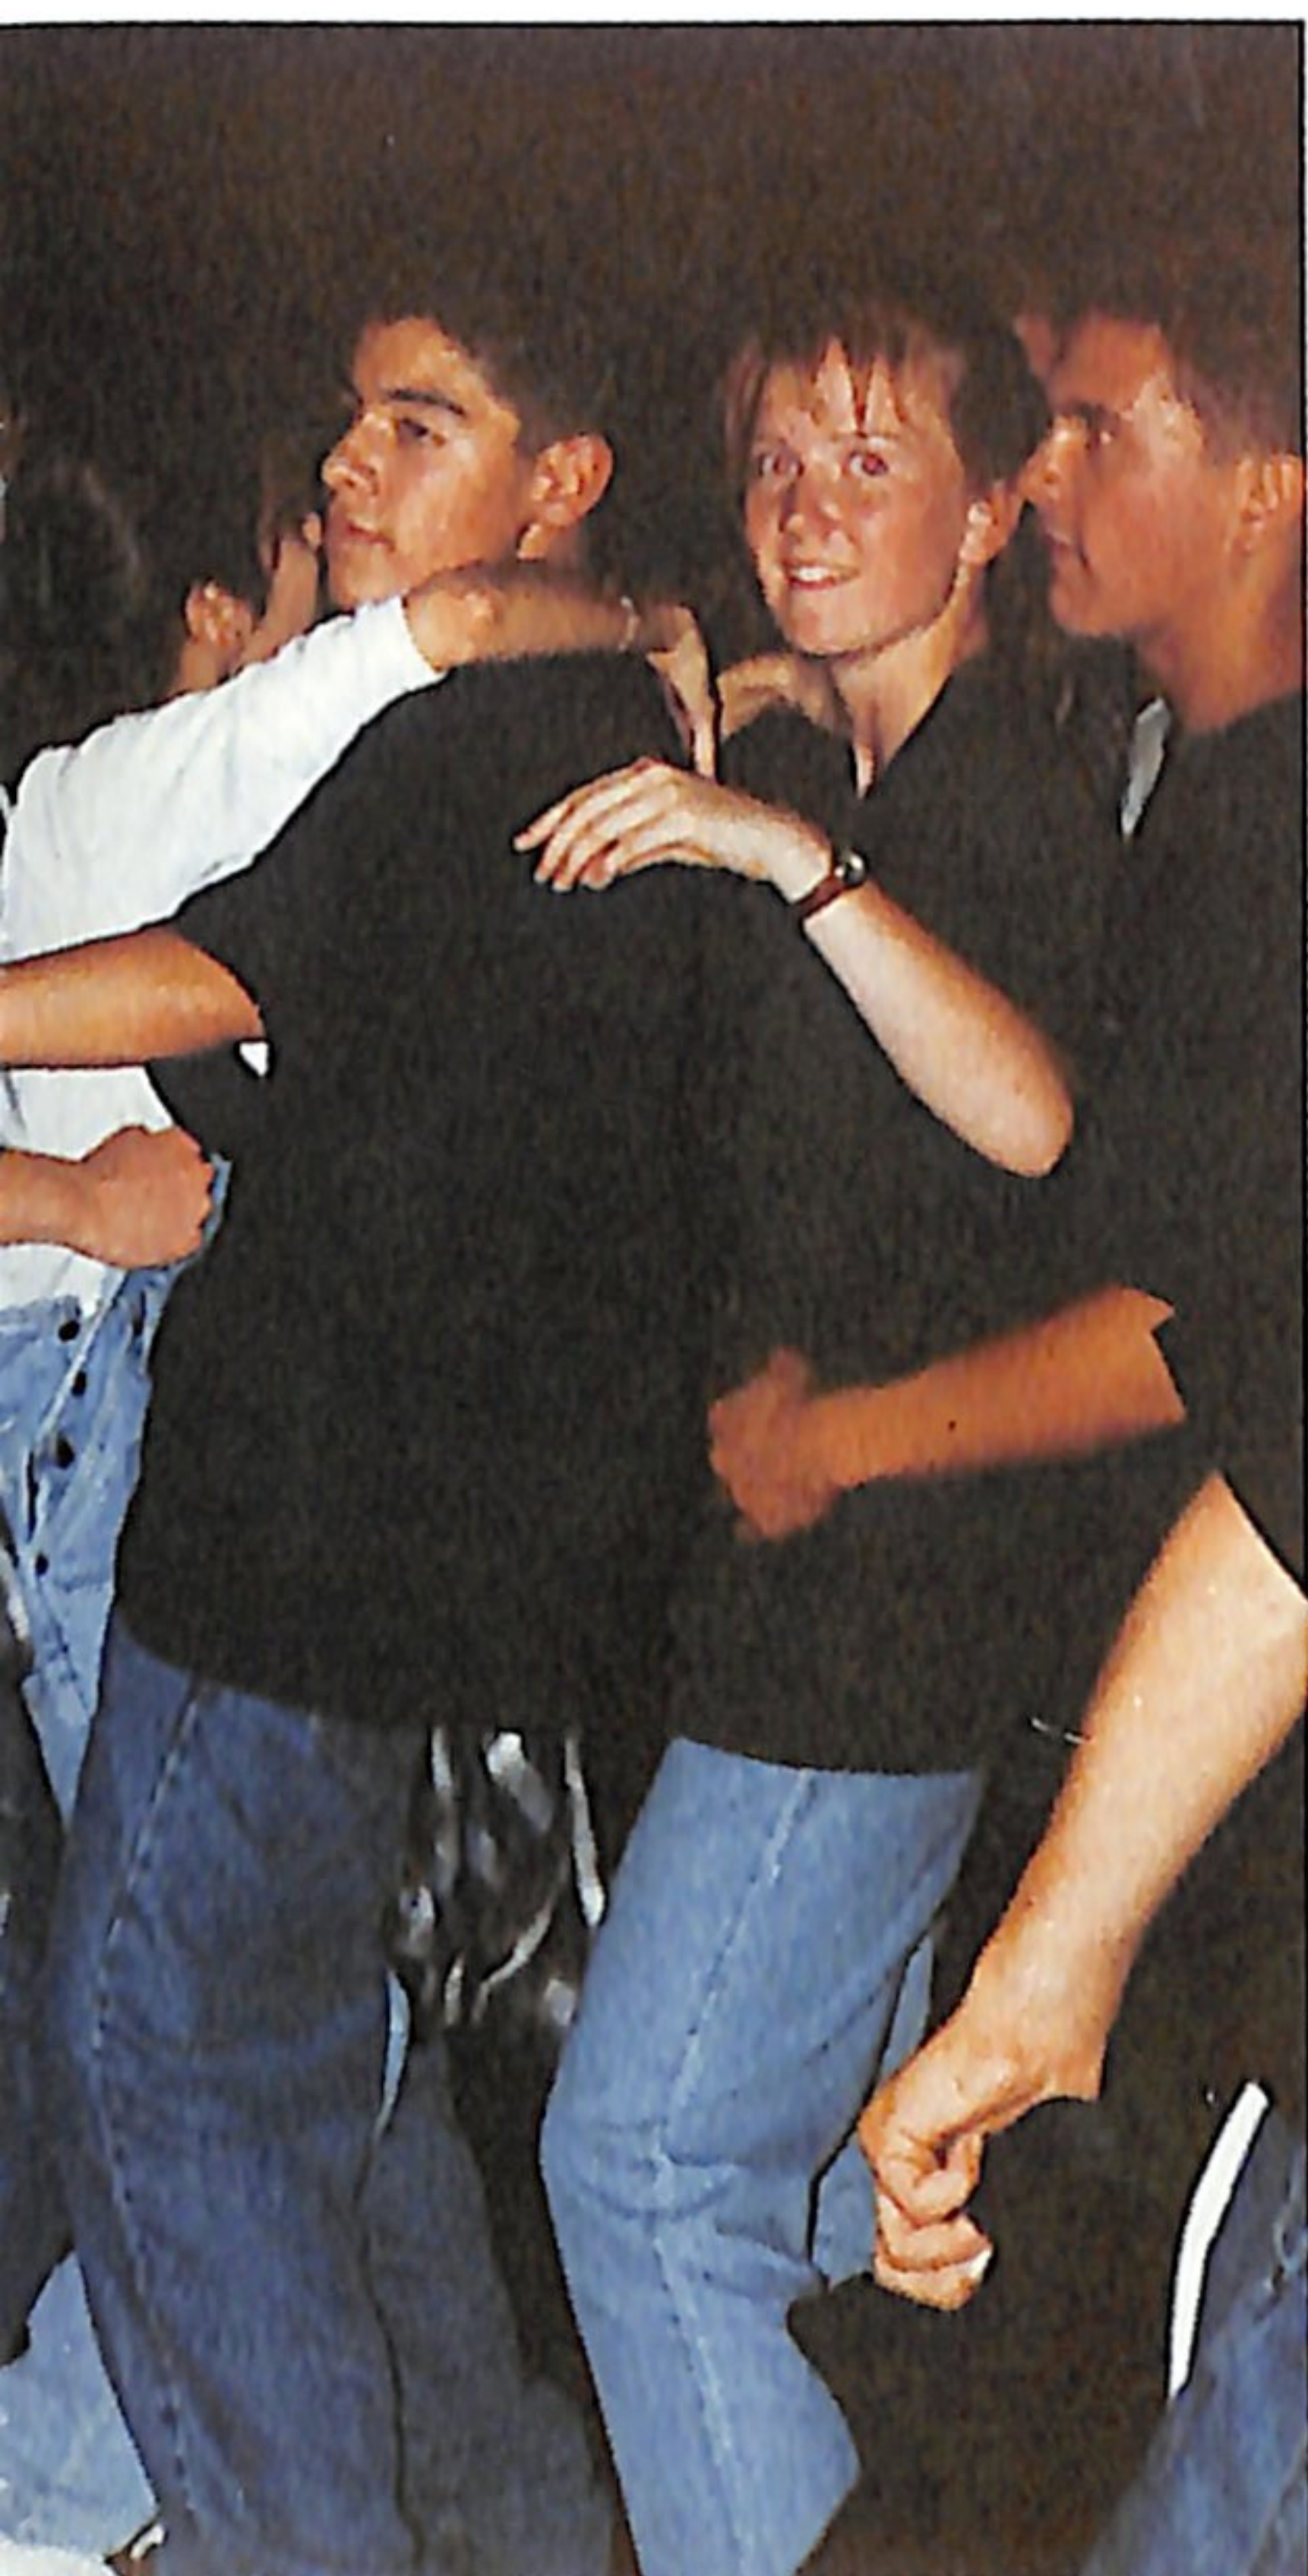

All night long she ate with her mouth wide open.

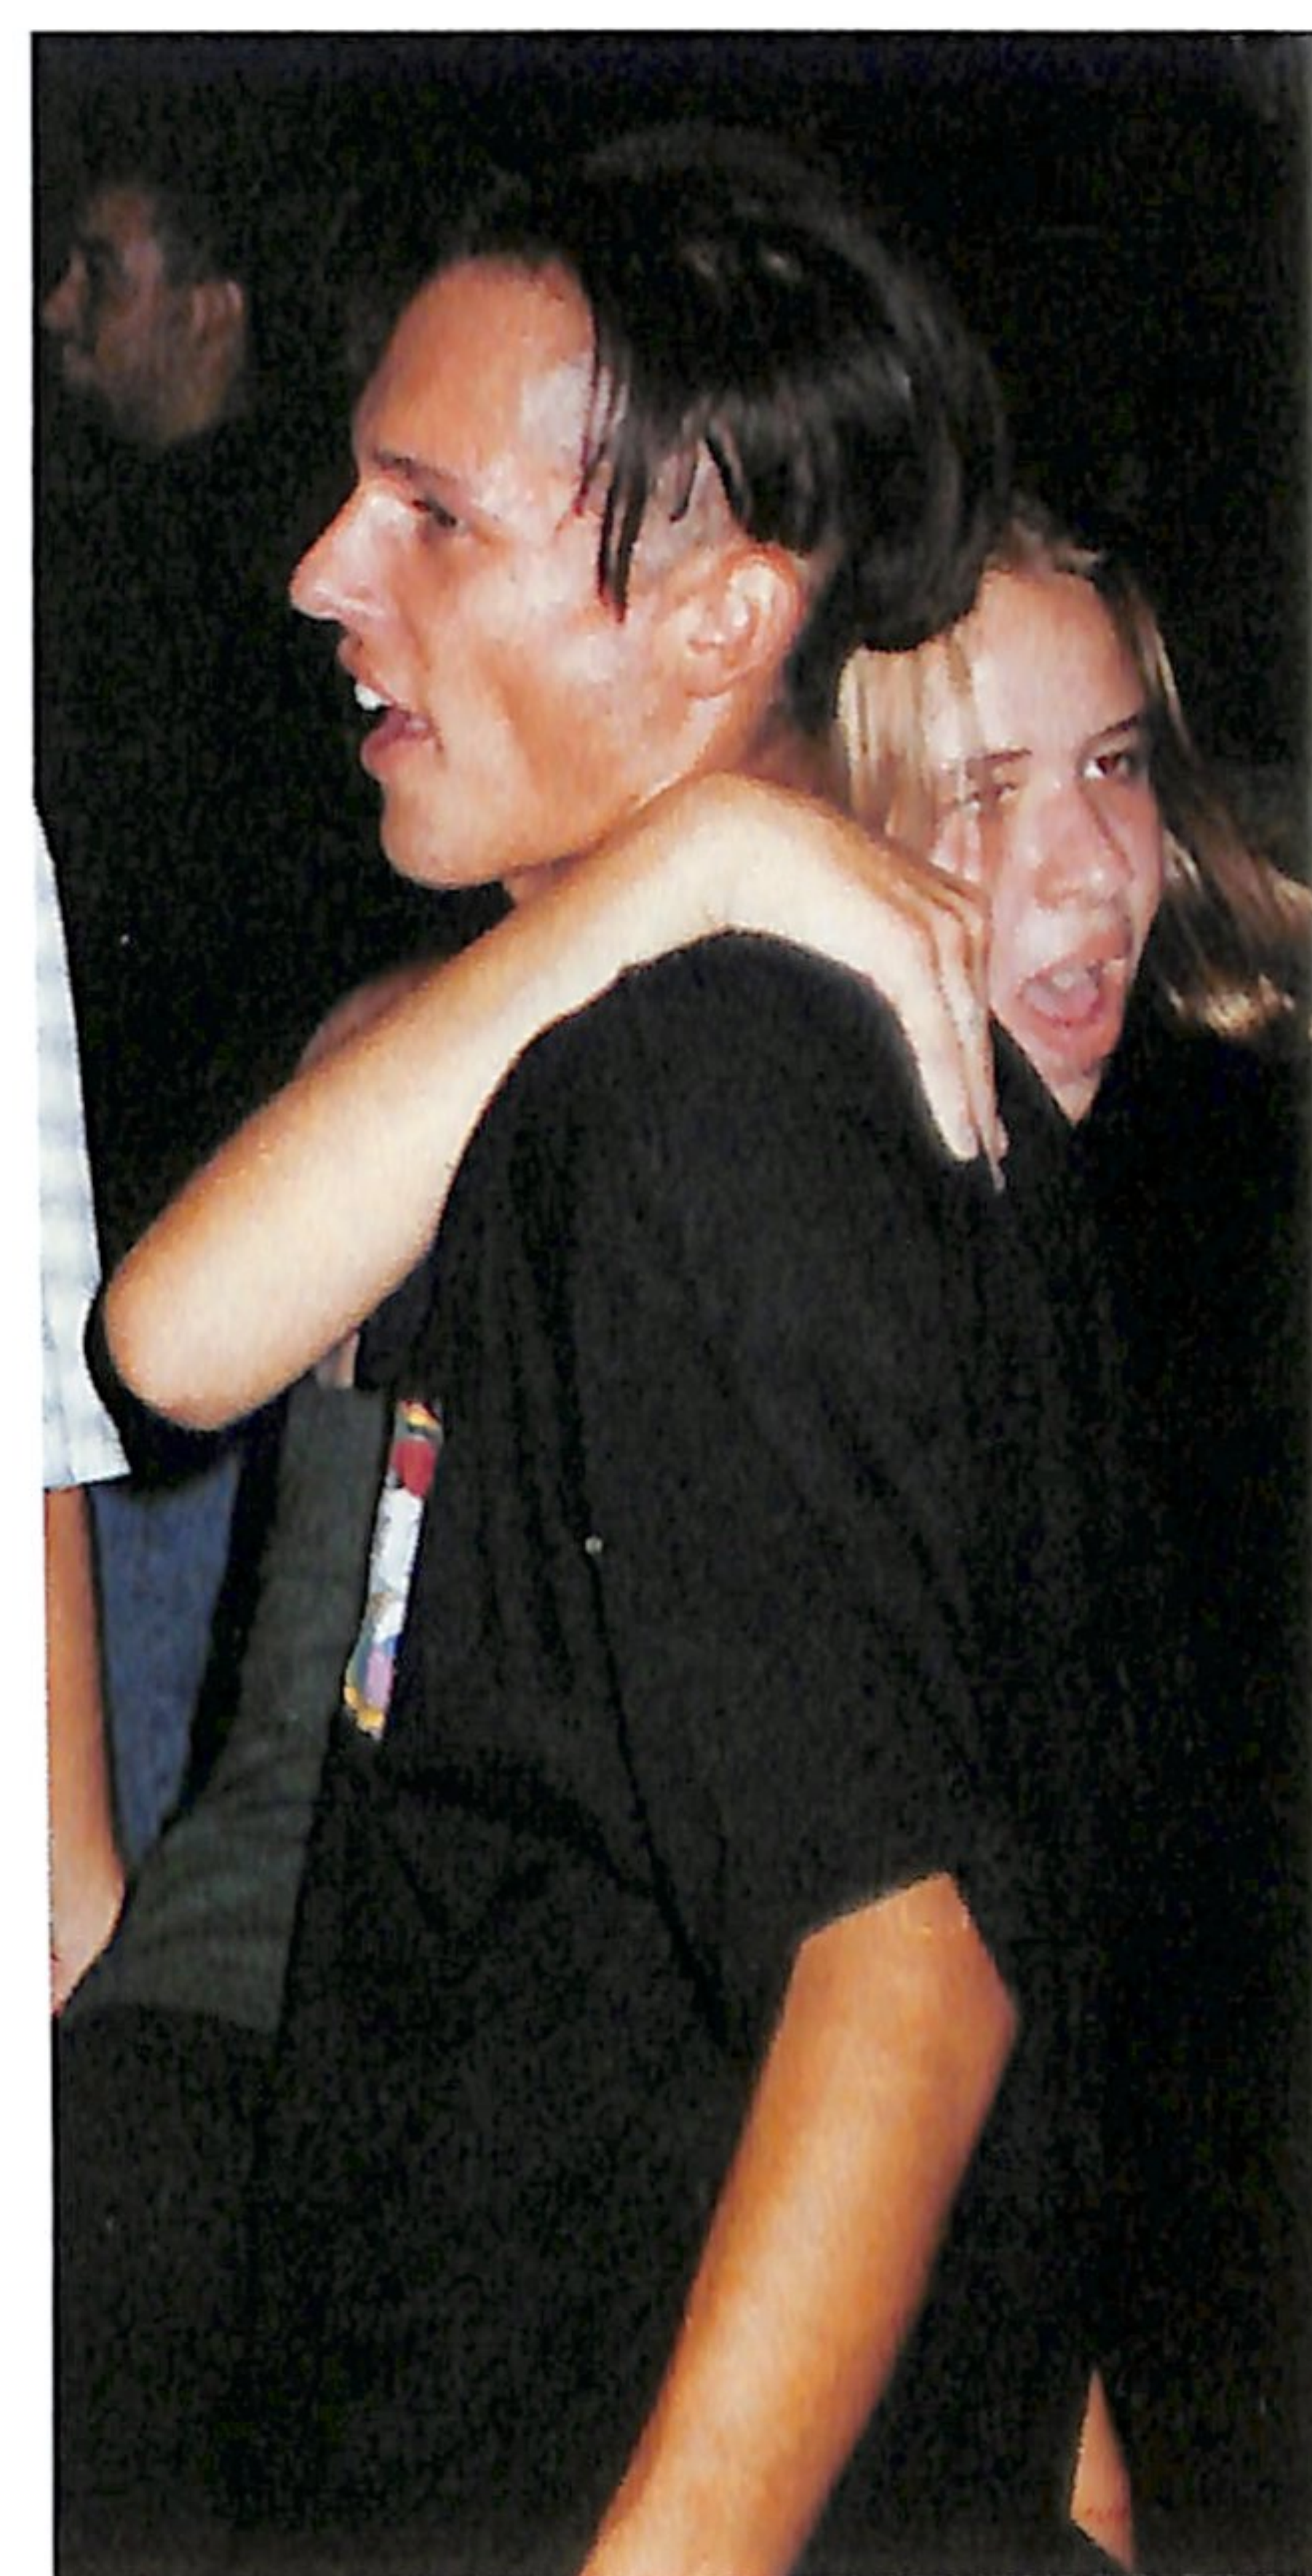

-James Summers

Jessica Boardman and a troop of seven friends all shared a dance together. Jessica said, "We love getting kind of freaky. It was fun." Many felt that large groups of friends made for a more enjoyable time at dances.

At Armijo's Football Homecoming dance, Jimmy Etchison, Laura Diermier, and Danny Formella danced to YMCA. Jimmy said, "The dance was exciting and it was a fun thing for friends to get together and do something." With all the fun people were having, many wished the dance would never end.

Carlos Garcia and Chrissy Schwartz got together for a dance. Carlos Garcia said, "I love dancing and when I heard 107.7 was coming to the dance I couldn't pass the chance to dance." Wild 107.7 deejayed many dances at Armijo this year.

Getting freaky at the dance was how Katrina Morris and Ed Walbolt had fun. Katrina said, "Ed and I had hecka fun at the dance because he's a really good dancer." Many people had fun when they were able to lose their inhibitions.

Dancing didn't only require two people, as Rodney Fitzhugh, Alicia Silvez, and Gina Moore demonstrated. Rodney said, "I enjoyed the company of two friends who enjoyed shaking and wiggling and having a good time." Dances were a place that friends, not only couples, could have a good time.

At the Football Homecoming dance, Tracy Walker, Paula Conhain, Brian Almeida, and Jennifer Costanzo enjoyed the music. Tracy said, "Dances are so much fun because I got to be with my friends and party!" The great turnout at dances was attributed to the popularity of the music played.

Sadie Hawkins

The Girls Ask the Guys

There were many people at Armijo who couldn't or just don't like going to the school dances. Although there were just a few dances a year that everyone wanted to go to, one of these few dances was the popular Sadie Hawkins dance.

Sadie Hawkins was a very different dance. With this event it was customary for the girls to ask the guys to the dance, not the other way around. Getting up the nerve took a lot of work on the girl's part but, in the long run, the guy really appreciated it. Nick Hanley said, "I think that it is great! All of us guys need a break from having to ask the girls to do everything."

Vivian Brassel and friends were showing the good time that they are having at the dance. She said, "I thought that the Sadie Hawkins dance was very fun. My friends and I all had a good time." There were over two hundred and fifty couples at the dance.

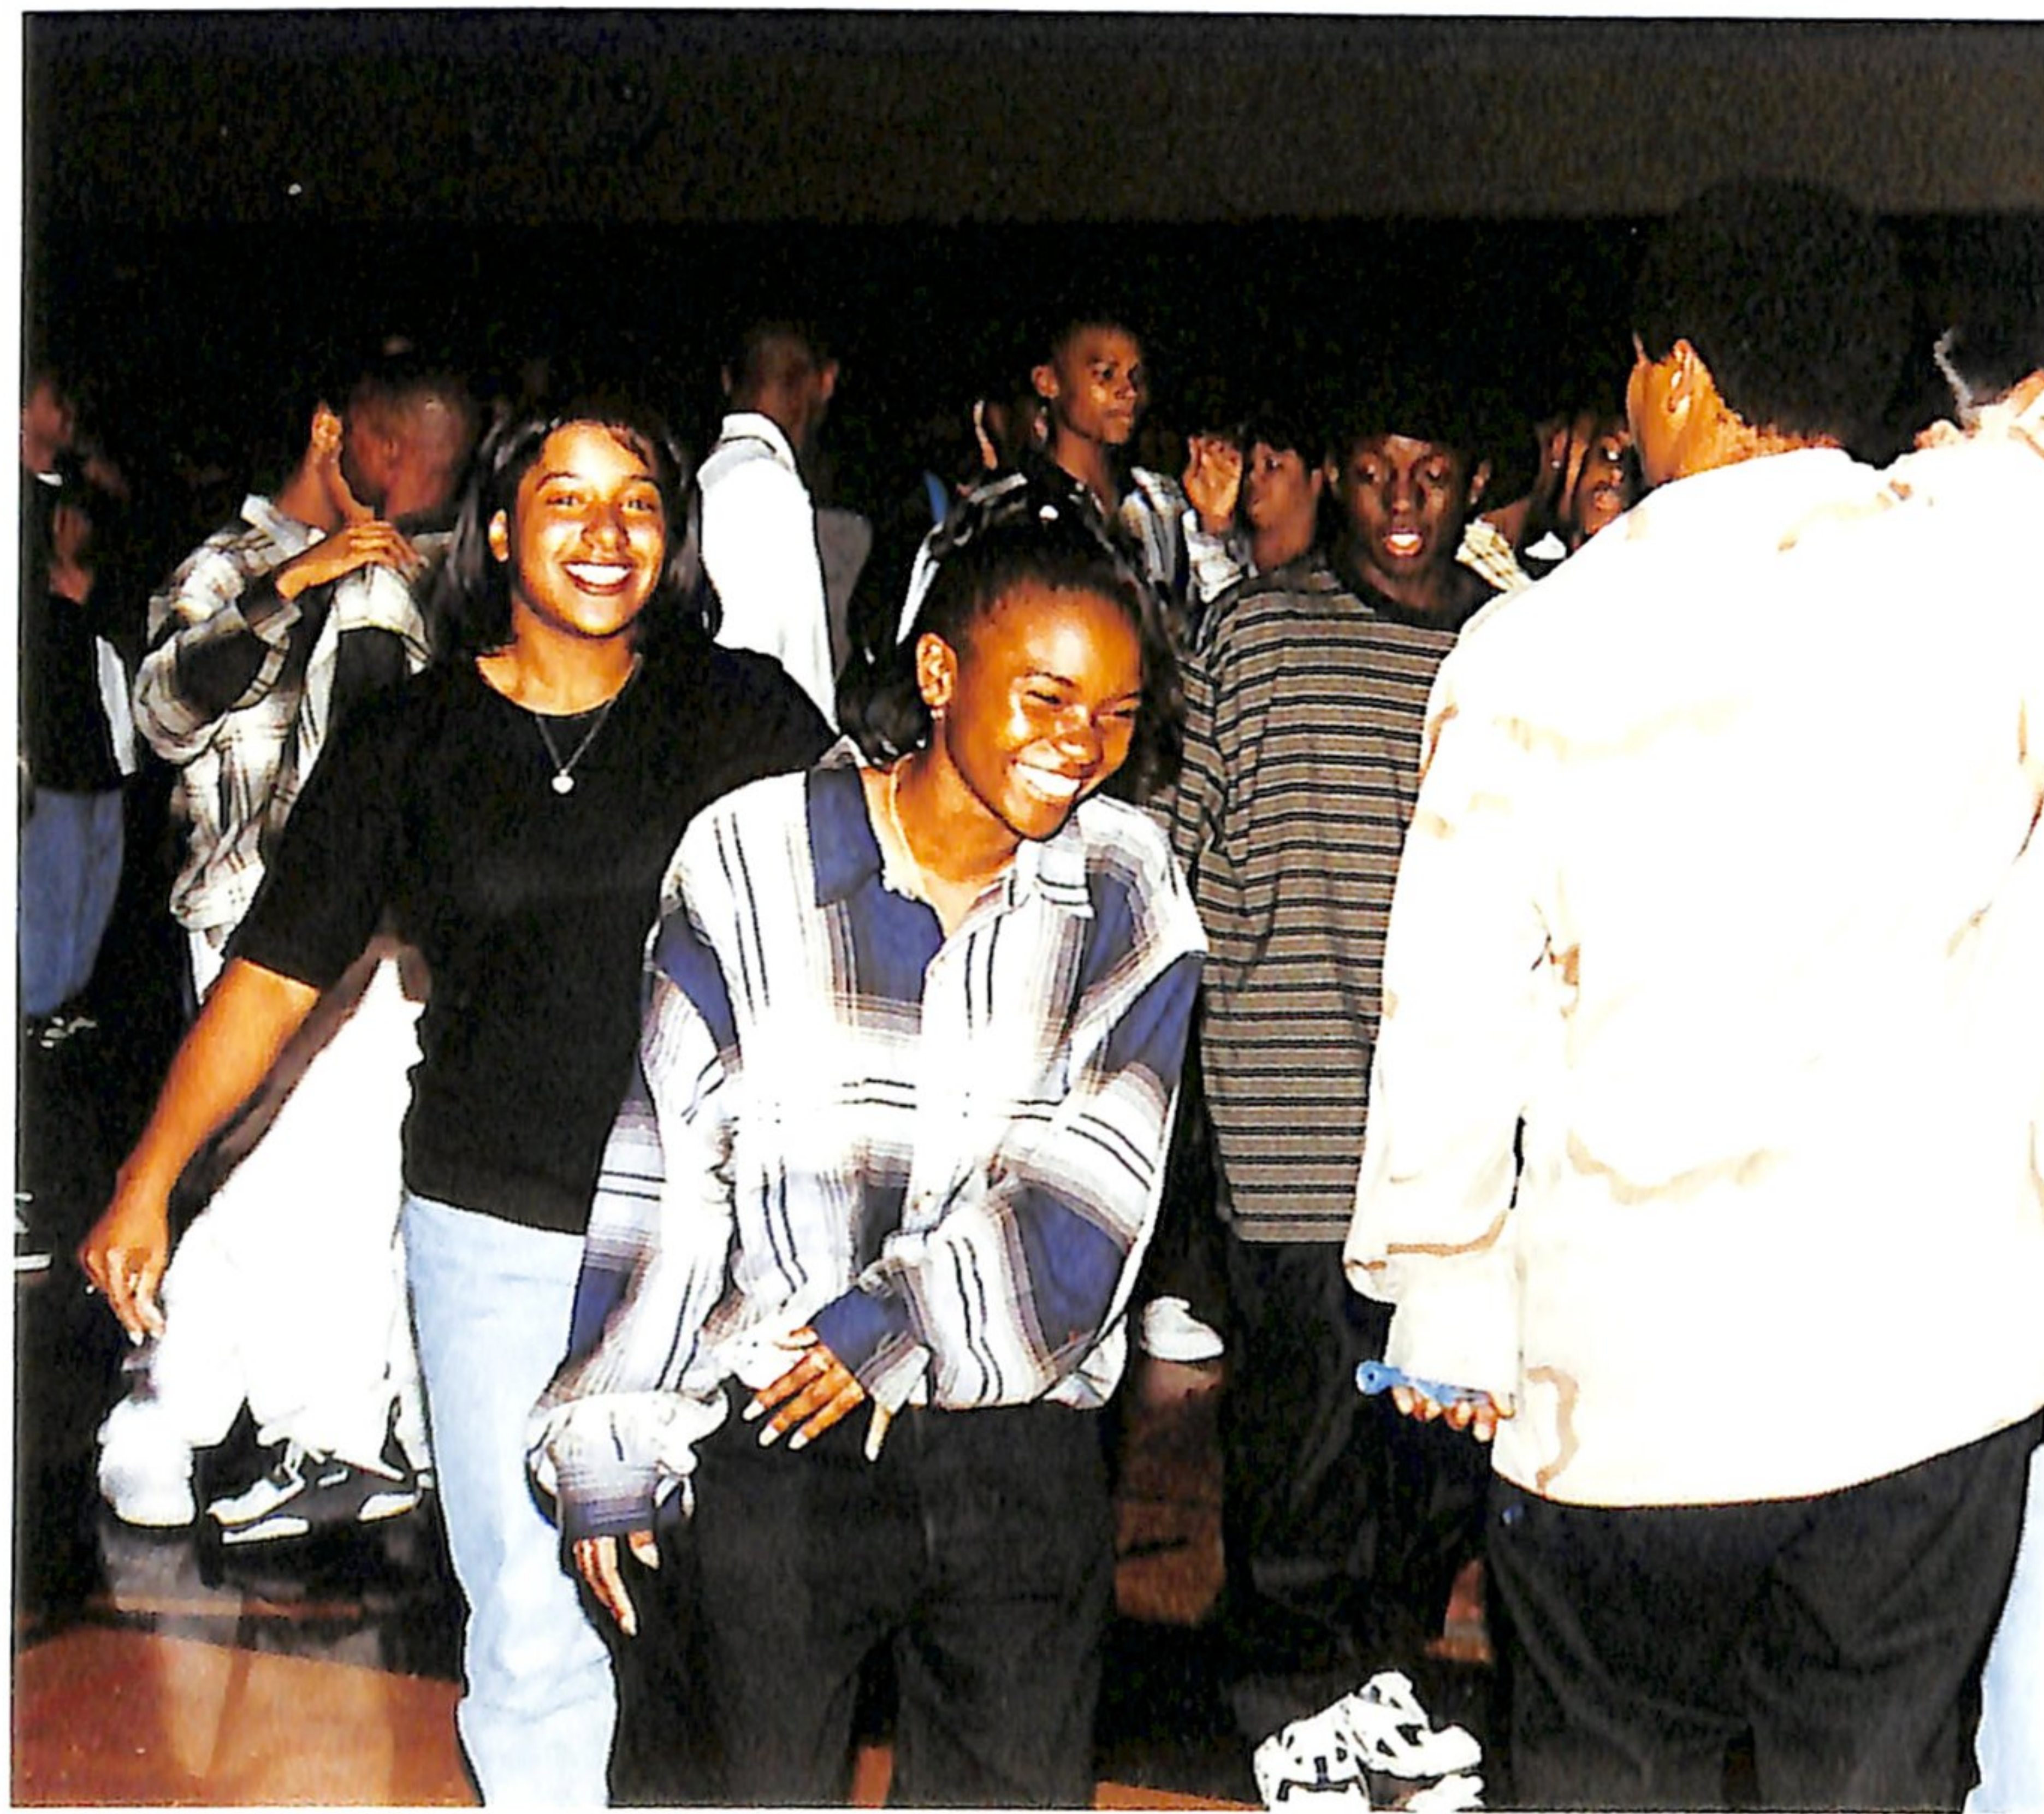

Another unique difference about the Sadie Hawkins dance was that couples traditionally dressed alike in matching shirts. Being able to go out together before the dance often times gave the couple a chance to get to know each other better and spend some time together before the "big night". "I think it is a good idea to stay with the traditional ways of buying the matching shirts. It adds to the style of the dance," said Ryan Pickett.

At the dance there were a lot of things to keep the many masses of people busy and entertained. A couple could have gotten their pictures taken, gotten married by Marrying Sam, or they could have done the obvious, dance.

Many students liked the fact that there were many other things to get involved with. Dan O'Brien said, "Having more activities than just dancing brings more people to the dances and makes it a lot more fun. I like having the different things to keep me busy."

The girls' P.E. department put the Sadie Hawkins dance on every year. The dance had a great turn out, just like it always did. With the support from the students and staff, the girls P.E. department was able to raise enough money and reach their fundraising goal.

Is it all right for the girl to ask the guy on a date?

“It's all right just because it is.”

- Dalon Teat

“Yes. It's the 90's and things are changing.”

-Bryanna Netherly

“I guess if they want to. It sounds kinda weird though.”

-Frank Catalano

“Yes. Guys are wimpy at that kind of stuff.”

-Alison Miller

Mrs. White laughed with her husband as they waited for another song to play. Mrs. White said, "It was fun. I loved seeing the kids out having fun and it is cute to see them all dressed alike." Students weren't the only ones who attended the dance; many teachers also went.

Getting married was a common sight at the dance. Noah Battle said, "It was nice spending time with my girlfriend especially when we got married." As a tradition, Mr. Harrison was the Marrying Sam.

Taking a rest from the dance floor, Michelle Camara sat with her boyfriend, Brian Higgins. Michelle said, "I liked going with my boyfriend, we had a lot of fun." Many of the girls decided to ask their boyfriends to the dance.

As they waited to have their picture taken, this group got very impatient. Katrina Morris said, "I wanted my picture taken, but I also wanted to dance. I just wanted it to be over with." Having pictures taken was a given for everyone at the dance.

Seniors were a common sight at the Sadie Hawkins dance. Frances Chua said, "Since it was my last year I wanted it to be the best and it was." Sadie Hawkins wasn't the only event that many seniors attended as their "last" high school event.

Dancing with his date, John Adonna had a lot of fun. John said, "The music at the dance was really good. I enjoyed all of the music." Wild 107 was the DJ at the dance.

Wearing their customary matching shirts, Shannon Ward and Jay Laufer, enjoyed themselves dancing to the music. Shannon said, "It couldn't have been any better, I went with superman." Many girls brought dates from another school.

Powder Puff

Reversing the Roles

Fierce competition and good clean fun was the basis for Powder Puff '95. The players were fully equipped, from team jerseys to cleats. "Some of our players have had jerseys since our freshman year," said Erica Blubaugh.

With weeks of preparation and hours upon hours of grueling practice, the teams were finally ready for the face off between classes. "Even though we only had two practices with our actual team we still worked together and had fun," said Tracy Walker.

The 6th annual Powder Puff game gave the ladies the chance to play football, whether it was for fun or to prove that girls can play ball, too. As the tradition continued, the freshmen played the sophomores, and the juniors battled it out with the seniors.

They were games that would be remembered for always. "Although there were a few problems at the beginning, we had fun and I am might be in Powder Puff again next year," said sophomore Phim Soungpanya.

Some people in the crowded stands enjoyed laughing at the cheerleaders. "I thought that the performers were really wonderful," said Nicole Baran. Guys from all four classes performed at the after school rally but only the senior guys performed at the game. James Summers said, "I didn't really want to cheer at the game because it was embarrassing."

In the first game, the freshmen played the Sophomores with the Sophomores winning 20-7. In the second game the Seniors held off the Juniors in a last second win 13-12. "I thought we would win, but it was tough. However, I had a lot of fun," said Amanda Shermoen. After the tough night was over, the players celebrated for a pizza party at Mary's Pizza Shack.

Even though only two classes could win, the tradition of a girls' football game was kept alive with the pride and spirit of the Powder Puff football activity.

Freshman Cris Claus, Sam Caddle and Ricki Kendall perform during the Powder Puff rally for their class. "The whole routine was put together the night before, but when we got out there we all had a lot of fun," said Sam. This was the second time that we had all four classes perform in the rally.

THE MOST OUTRAGEOUS

Everything I do is outrageous!

-Brandon Riley

I ate a worm for extra credit last year during my biology class.

-Belen Solis

I threw a baseball, hit a car, and when the alarm went off I ran away.

-Andy Ford

We tried to go dancing but instead we're lost PWT's at the bowling alley.

-Nikki Albrecht

Junior Monica Bustos ran down the field with the ball in one hand and determination in the other. "I just wanted to have fun out there and I did, plus I helped score a touchdown and that made me feel really good about myself," said Monica. Even though the junior class didn't win the game, everybody still had a blast.

Seniors Carlos Garcia, Jason Hargrove, Mike Roberts, and James Williams showed the screaming crowd what they had. "The rally was fun but the only thing that I couldn't stand was the makeup; it was so hard to get off," said Mike Roberts.

Matt Haggerty and his fellow teammates pump up the crowd during the afterschool rally. "By having Joy choreograph our routine, she did a really great job but we ended up adding some of our own funny moves in at the end," said Matt. The Juniors really got the crowd going at the rally.

STUDENT LIFE

O'lisa May and Jami Rodriguez raised their football helmets to show off their spirit before the rally began. "I had a lot of fun being with my friends and I can't wait until the game tonight. It's going to be so much fun," exclaimed O'lisa. The seniors and sophmores won the Powder Puff game that night.

Alisa Albrecht, Mindy Braaksma, Sarah Ries and Adam Barngraff laughed at stunts that members of the senior class preformed. "I didn't know that they could of run around exposing their fake butts that like that," said Alisa. The rallies turned out to be a big success this year that all the classes enjoyed.

SRS. ARE REMEMBERED

They were the kings and queens of Armijo--revered and emulated by underclassmen anticipating their turn at the top. A diverse mix of personalities, the senior class of 1996, left their legacy affecting Armijo's traditions and history forever.

However, four years ago, this wasn't the case. All great things start small and the class of 1996 was no exception. Like a bottle of wine aging to perfection, so did this year's graduating class. They matured during their high school years. Even though as freshmen, learning the ropes was difficult, the new experience of high school was merely a novelty. R.J. Tell said, "When I first got here as a freshmen, I was so amazed at how big it was and how many people there were. All of a sudden I was part of this huge thing and all I knew was that I wanted to have fun."

But as time progressed, the pending decisions of the future drew closer causing many to understand the importance of their education and the importance of their role in the future. This metamorphoses entailed gaining a sense of responsibility. Undergoing this realization took longer for some, but it nevertheless materialized. "It's hard for me to realize how much I've grown.

Forcing myself to get serious and work hard was tough when I was tempted so often by parties and being lazy. But I'm glad I was able to put forth that effort, because I wouldn't be where I am today if I hadn't," said Michelle Camara.

Nevertheless, through their four years at Armijo, although at times difficult and sometimes wonderful, the class of 1996 made a strong impression on Armijo as a whole. Their influences will remain fond memories of the staff.

Their

positive attitude and willingness to go the extra mile for the sake of Armijo and their class became synonymous with the Class of 1996 and was envied by other classes. Mr. Harrison spoke positively about the seniors and said, "The senior class this year always knew how to have a good time. I'll always remember how much I enjoyed the activities we did together." Without a doubt, the Seniors are remembered.

Nikki Albrecht, who was an escort at the Homecoming Court presentation, said, "We will be remembered for planning Prom on a cruise ship and going against conventional ways."

Mindy Braaksma and a small group of friends spent a quiet lunch together in the parking lot. Mindy said, "The togetherness and friendships of the senior class make us memorable." These times were also memorable for the seniors.

The Senior class Powder Puff team collected small gym. Tracy Walker said, "Our team will be remembered because we did a great job of working together." The Seniors' victory was also to be remembered.

Kelly Newman glanced around the parking lot, admiring the cars. "Keith Dilbeck's Karmen Ghia will be the car of our class to be remembered," said Kelly. Many shared in her opinion.

Eileen Sansano and Lucy Postelwaite stopped for a quick second at their cars. "Our class is famous for going from group to group, finding out the gossip," said Eileen. This practice wasn't unlike past years at Armijo.

The Future

Marla

Terri

Paul

Phillip Bailey

The class of 1996 are the next leaders of our country. They are the controlling force in what the future has in store for generations to come. Their Armijo life began four years ago as freshmen, when many of them had no clue as to what their goals for the future entailed.

Achieving a high school diploma opens the door for many opportunities after graduation. Some students opted to enter the military, like Tonnie Lapaz. "I'm entering the Airforce so I can become an aerospace engineer. Maybe I'll work for NASA or the Department of Defense," he said. Other students chose to enter the work force right away. Rodney Fitzhugh said, "I plan on working for a friend of mine. I'll get paid big bucks plus benefits to pay for my schooling."

Many seniors will move on to further their education in college. Kate Natrass said, "I'm going to Smith College in Massachusetts, which will hopefully prepare me for grad school." With the education the seniors received here, the sky's the limit!

Frances Chua and other seniors were listening to a speaker from U.C. Davis. Frances said, "I'm considering Davis as a college for me because it's a good school." Many other colleges sent speakers to Armijo on their behalf.

ROTC student, Michelle Kilmer, practiced her marching technique. Michelle said, "ROTC taught teamwork and teamwork is needed if you enter the work force." Many graduates served at Travis Air Force Base.

SENIORS

Sr. Costs

Whether it's cash, check or charge, it seemed like the costs of being a senior never ended. From graduation announcements to caps and gowns, from senior proms to senior trips, all you heard from the registers was ching, ching, ching!

Many students understood why all the expenses were necessary, but others weren't as resigned to spending all of that money. "Good lord, that's a lot of money. Why can't we just get it for free?" asked Justin Anthony who felt that the costs got out of hand. Michael Montoya also felt that "the costs are unbelievable."

Nonetheless, the cost of being a senior is very high and completely unavoidable. In a nut shell, Tara Lewis summed it up saying, "You spend a lot of money, but it's worth it because it's your last year of high school and you'll always remember it."

Nathan Lee and Ross Meltzer waited while the Jostens' representative informed them of just how much their graduation package would cost. Nathan Lee said, "Graduating from school is very important, so I tried not to worry about the expenses." This year the least expensive package cost $78.75.

Darell Teat, Alisa Albrecht and Mindy Braaksma bought their Grad Nite tickets in Mrs. Franey's office. Mindy said, "I hated giving up all the money that I had worked so hard to earn." Few seniors thought that $40.00 was too much for the Grad Nite party.

Graduation

Graduation... a time to be remembered for a lifetime. Graduation was the last time spent with childhood friends. Frances Mallorca said "I had mixed emotions about graduation. I will miss all of my friends and all the time we spent together, but the memories I will treasure forever. "While sitting in the stands, the dreams materialized from four years ago about becoming a senior. " These four years went by fast with stress and senior-itis." said Lindsey Wigley.

Along with the purple and bright gold gowns that filled the chairs as the band played "Pomp and Circumstance", many seniors looked back at the memories. After the hour and a half while the class member's names were announced, purple and gold caps fluttered into the air. Shouts of "congratulations" enveloped the graduating class, admist loved ones.

Suddenly, students were out of high school and on their way to college, to work, or vacation. You no longer had to wake up early, go back to high school, or worry about parking permits to get in the school parking lot. Norman Devera said "I am happy I graduated because school was tough on me, but I will miss Armijo High."

Four years of high school were filled with good times and bad memories all of which were fond and unique. Through all of your high school years you had good and bad memories. No matter what students do in life they always have four years to look back on.

Mr. Stevens gave a speech at graduation as the class adviser. He said "Being an adviser is an extraordinary rewarding experience. It's like magic watching the next generation mature." Graduation was a fun event for students as well as teachers and parents.

Mr. Lanpheir and the crowd supported the graduates. Mr. Harrison said, "I think the ceremony was great the way Mr. Lanpheir does it in an hour or close to it." All of the graduates and their parents had a lot of support through the year.

Friendships

Freshman year can be the roughest year on anyone. But with bad times, always came the good, and with the good times came your friends. "Freshman year, I always had a lot of older friends that were really weird, so I always felt lucky because I always had someone weird to hang out with and something weird to do." Andy Robertson said.

Regardless of age, friends could always find something to pass the time and make the pressures of your first year in high school bearable. "Tim Silva, Kevin Webb, and Chris Tignor and I used to just sit around and make jokes. We always had a great time no matter what we did." Adam Wadenius remembered how he and his friends passed the time.

As the years went by, changes occurred not just in hairstyles and fashion trends but in relationships as well. Emily Batson thought back, "I think it changed the most because we're not as close as we were. Everyone went their separate ways." Growing apart didn't always happen. Sometimes people grew closer instead of further apart. "I used to travel with a group everywhere I went, but now it's just me and a couple of friends, and we are alot closer." Ging Saelee said.

Whether you had a group of friends or just a few, there was one thing that was the same: all the private jokes nobody else understood, all the laughter, all the tears and especially the memories, all this couldn't have been possible without friends.

Jennifer Clark, Andy Robertson, and Jeff Patterson showed how much their friendship meant to them. "Jeff and Andy mean so much to me; they have been there for me as far back as I can remember. They always will be," Jennifer said. Friendships were an important part of everyday life.

Jennifer Costanzo, Tara Lewis, and Heather Grady took a break after an after school rally. "Working together as friends helps us both on and off the field. I can't imagine the squad without them. They're great," Heather said. Friendships made things better.

Senioritis

Senioritis was back and it was worse than ever. Uncontrollable and contagious, but worst of all it was out to sabotage! Denise Woodring said, "Senioritis is contagious because you see your friends slack off and still pass, so you try it and you fail your classes."

Fortunately, it didn't last long. After cutting a few classes and not turning in a few assignments, it was back to working hard in your classes.

Jimmy Thaxton and Deandre Hawkins were napping in one of their classes. Deandre said, "I was dreaming about flying hot dogs and talking cheeseburgers." Sleeping during classes was only one symptom of senioritis.

Karen Hall was caught staring into space. She said, "It's like a disease; everyone in my class has had it. They either sleep or talk to all their friends." Senioritis seemed to spread like a virus, soon most of the senior class was affected.

Senioritis attacked even the most innocent students. Jimmy Thaxton might have looked alright, but inside senioritis took control. Jimmy said, "I break into cold sweats when I feel a case of senioritis coming on."

Senioritis caused many seniors to worry about graduation, but in the end, it all worked out. Senioritis faded away at the end of the year, so it could prepare for the next victims.

Erik Arceneaux looked blankly into space as he waited in the office. Erik said, "I can't wait to graduate." Most seniors could hardly wait for graduation day.

Sober Grad

There was the scent of excitement in the air. The graduating class geared up for the most fun night they had ever spent here at Armijo. Parents and volunteers had been preparing for Grad Nite for a full year. This year's theme was "A Night at the Movies."

Grad Nite was an all night party aimed to keep students safe and to give the class of '96 the opportunity to party with their friends. Alison Sims, head of the committee, said, "The purpose is to create an exciting, yet safe and sober environment for all seniors." The fun started a few hours after graduation and ended the following morning.

A sidewalk cafe at Mardi Gras, last year's Grad Nite, wired graduates as they drank cappuchios. Karen Eason, a parent volunteer said, "It's good for parents to get involved in their kids lives." All the effort put into the night really showed in its spectacular outcome.

A ferry boat graced the entrance to Grad Nite '95. Jennifer Sims remembered touring the place. "I was amazed! The gym didn't look anything like normal!" The transformation can be credited to all the parent volunteers.

There were all sorts of fun activities for the seniors to do, from gambling to sumo wrestling. The community became involved and pitched in whatever they could to make that last fling memorable. Cenarios had been donating their efforts since Grad Nite began.

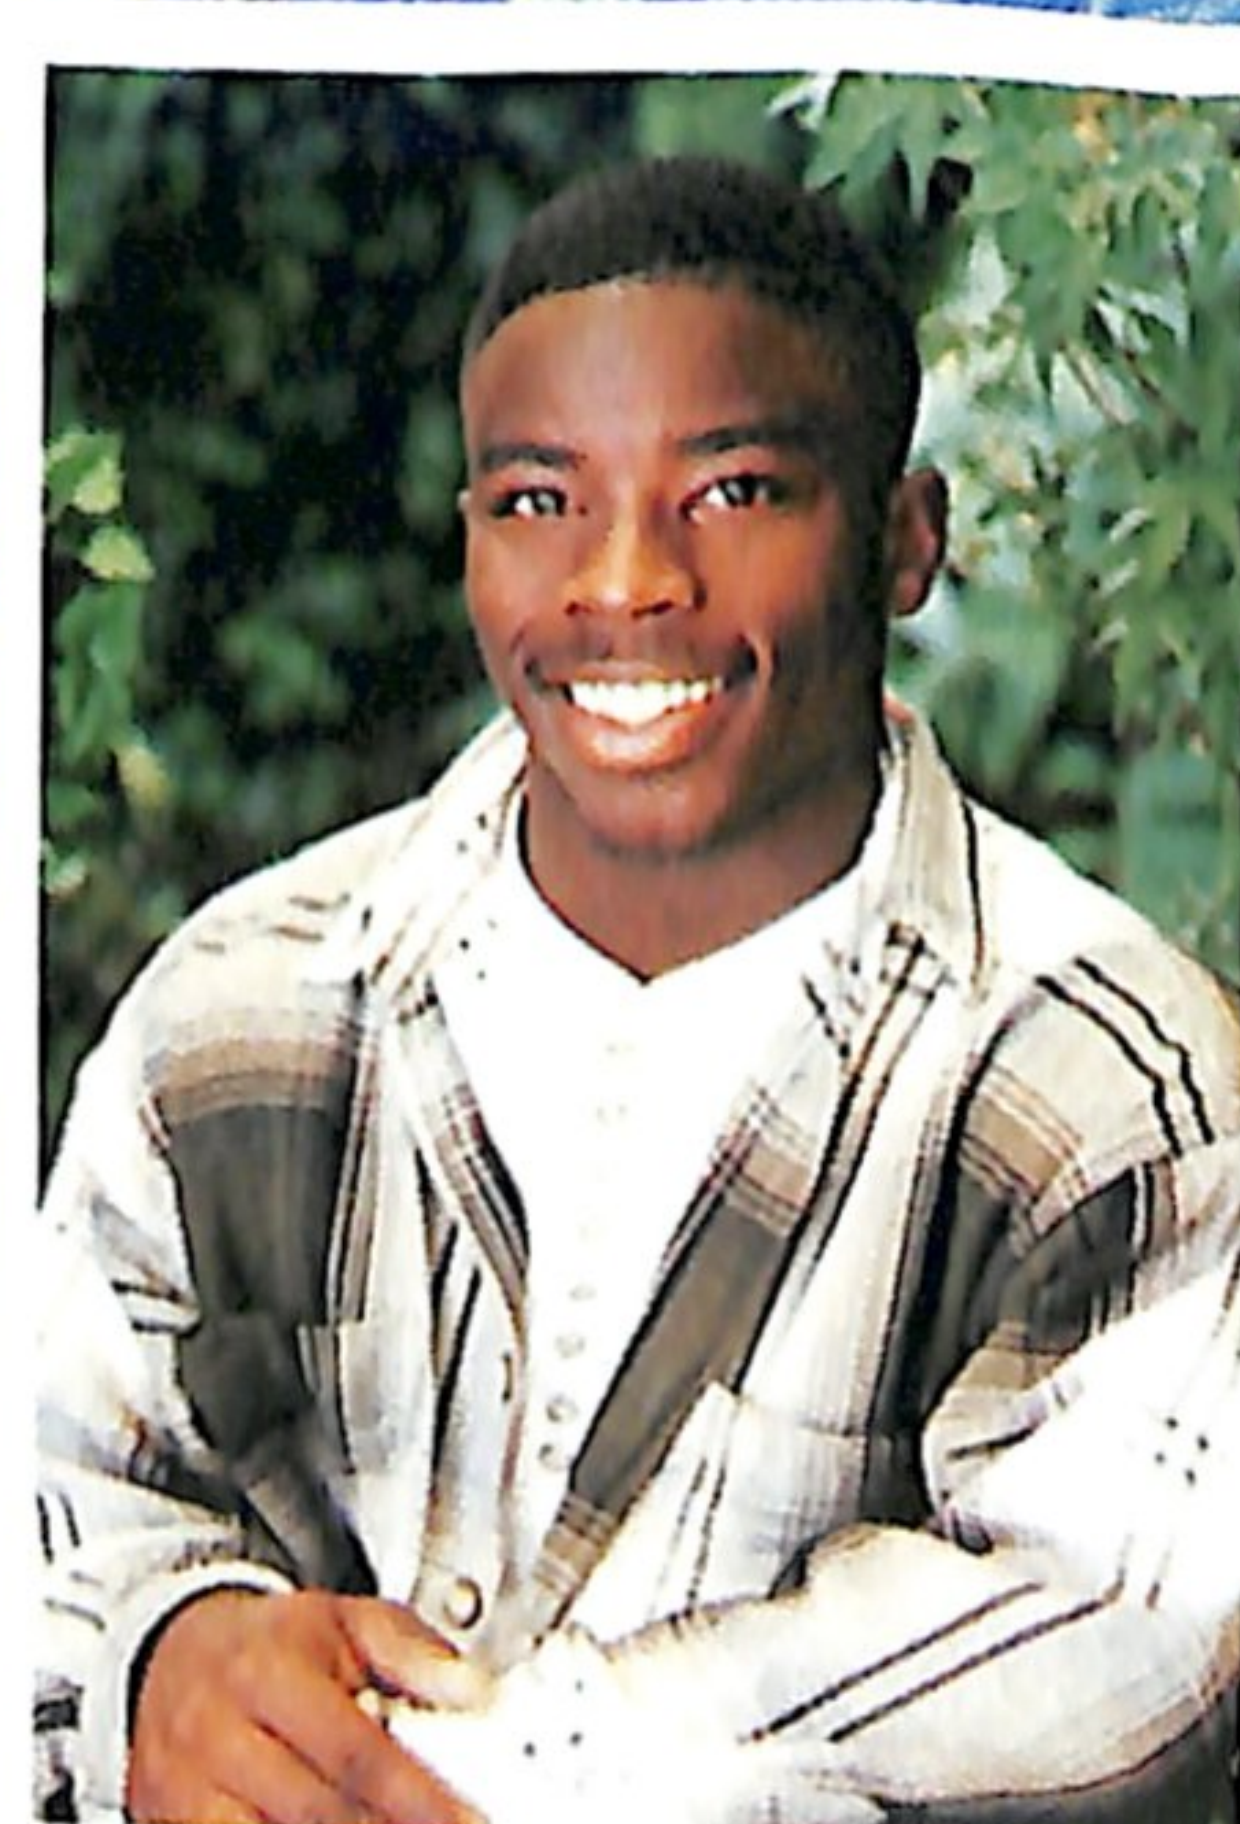

Many of the graduates had been looking forward to Grad Nite all year. "I'm looking forward to it, but it's sad because it's the last time we'll be together," said Rodney Fitzhugh. Grad Nite was out to prove that the class of '96 could "party hardy" without getting drunk, plus, all the seniors remembered what they did that very special night.

Senior year was full of worries. There's prom, pictures, hard classes, college, graduation, SAT's, jobs, and of course, money!

Seniors were busy because of school all year round. Nikki Albrecht said, "I had homework in all of my classes, and I had to work afterschool. When I didn't have time to do my homework, I got stred!"

College was also a major concern for many seniors. O'Lisa May said she was "worrying about getting into college, and surviving in the real world on my own."

Many seniors worried about how well they did in school this year, because it affected if they would get scholarships to a good school or not. Darrell Teat was hoping to get a basketball scholarship. He said "grades and getting into a prestigious college," worried him.

Nick Steemers was "feeling the pressure from his government and economics classes." All seniors had to take government and economics. They usually took some of the harder classes like trigonometry, calculus, physics, and anatomy.

"Almost everything for seniors costs money, and so much of it!" said Jenifer Clark. The most expensive of them all were prom bids, limousine rentals, and corsages. There's tuxedo rentals for the boys, then there's gowns, shoes, hair, and nails for the girls. All of this together was a whole lot of money!

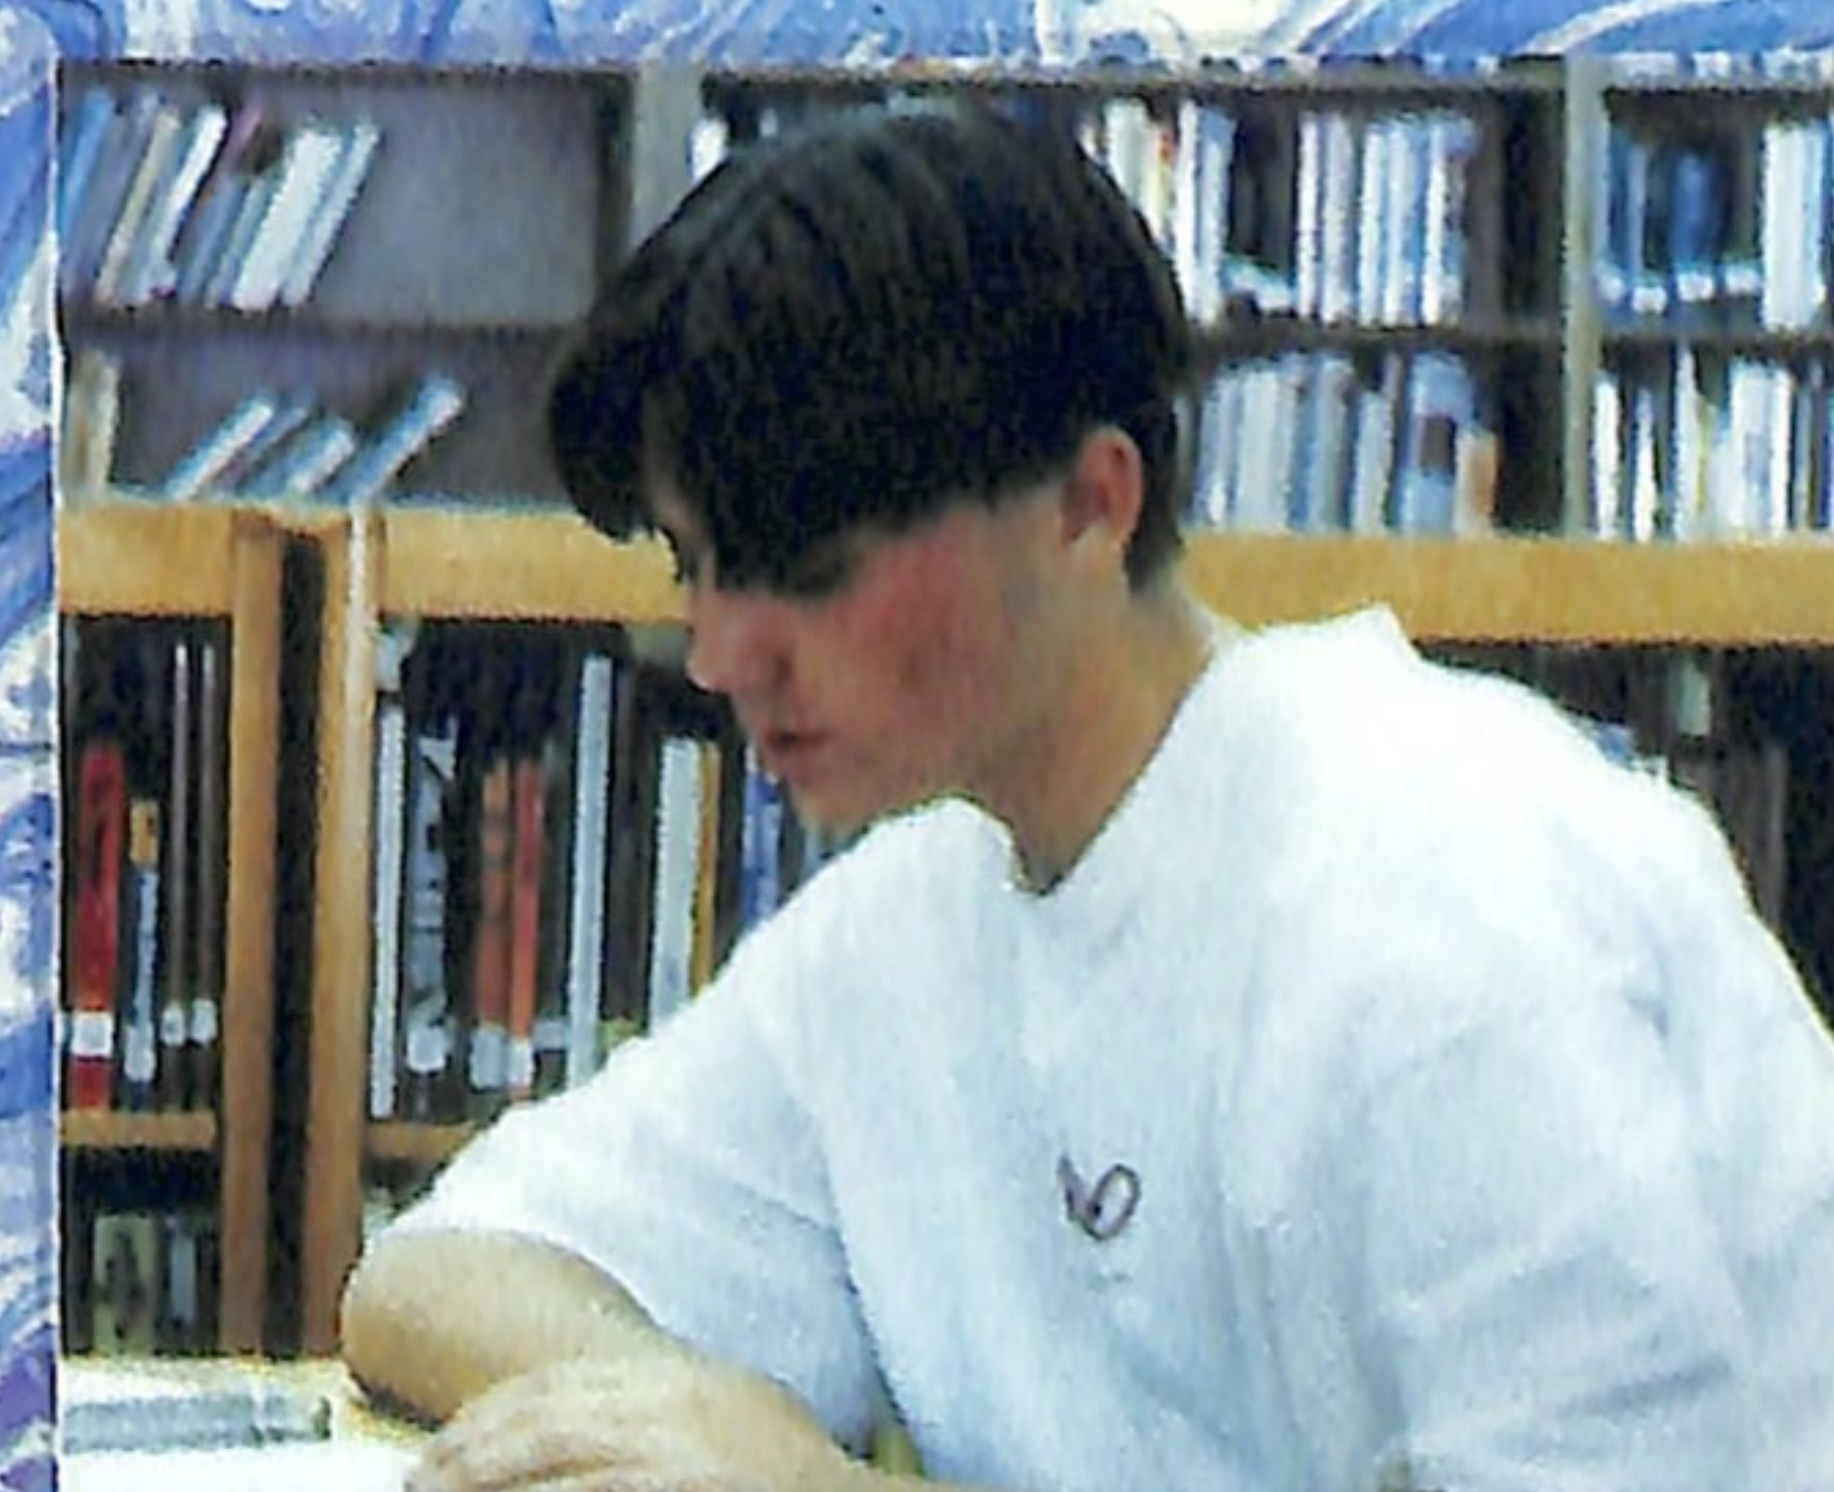

Seniors had a lot of pressure put on them, but they made it through it all and will leave Armijo better equipped to deal with stress.

Mindy Braaksma and Victoria Oldridge crammed for an upcoming test. Mindy said, "Worrying about graduation, taking care of grades, and juggling a job can be extremely stressful." Many seniors shared this feeling.

Amy Catania and Paloma Levya were doing Anatomy work together. Amy said, "The world doesn't seem to want to stop, so I can catch up." Many seniors thought Anatomy was one of their hardest classes.

Adam Wadenius studied in the library. Adam said, "It's stressful to go to work after school, get home late, and have to get up early the next day." With all the activities the seniors did, they were always busy.

Prom

It was a night of beauty and splendor. The girls looked beautiful in gorgeous gowns, and the guys looked stunningly handsome in tuxes. Each wrist was adorned with a fragrant corsage, as well as elegant boutineers on every tuxedo collar. "A Night Under the Stars" was the theme to this year's prom and what a memorable night it was!

The junior's had been hard at work for months, planning and preparing for that very special night. "Every Tuesday the juniors got into subcommittees for prom preparations," said Jocelyn Fernandez. The class of '97 estimated that it took $3000 to put on the prom, but it was worth every penny. The juniors had to go to Freebourne Hall, in U.C. Davis, to get an early start on decorating the building.

Everyone who went to prom had to prepare. Some girls bought their dresses far in advance and many spent hours at the beauticians and got their hair, nails, or makeup done. The guys didn't have it easy either; they made appointments to get their tuxedos and often made arrangements for limosine rentals or dinner reservations. Darrin Gutierrez said, "It was an expensive night, but it was worth it." Another part of prom was getting pictures to capture that magical moment forever.

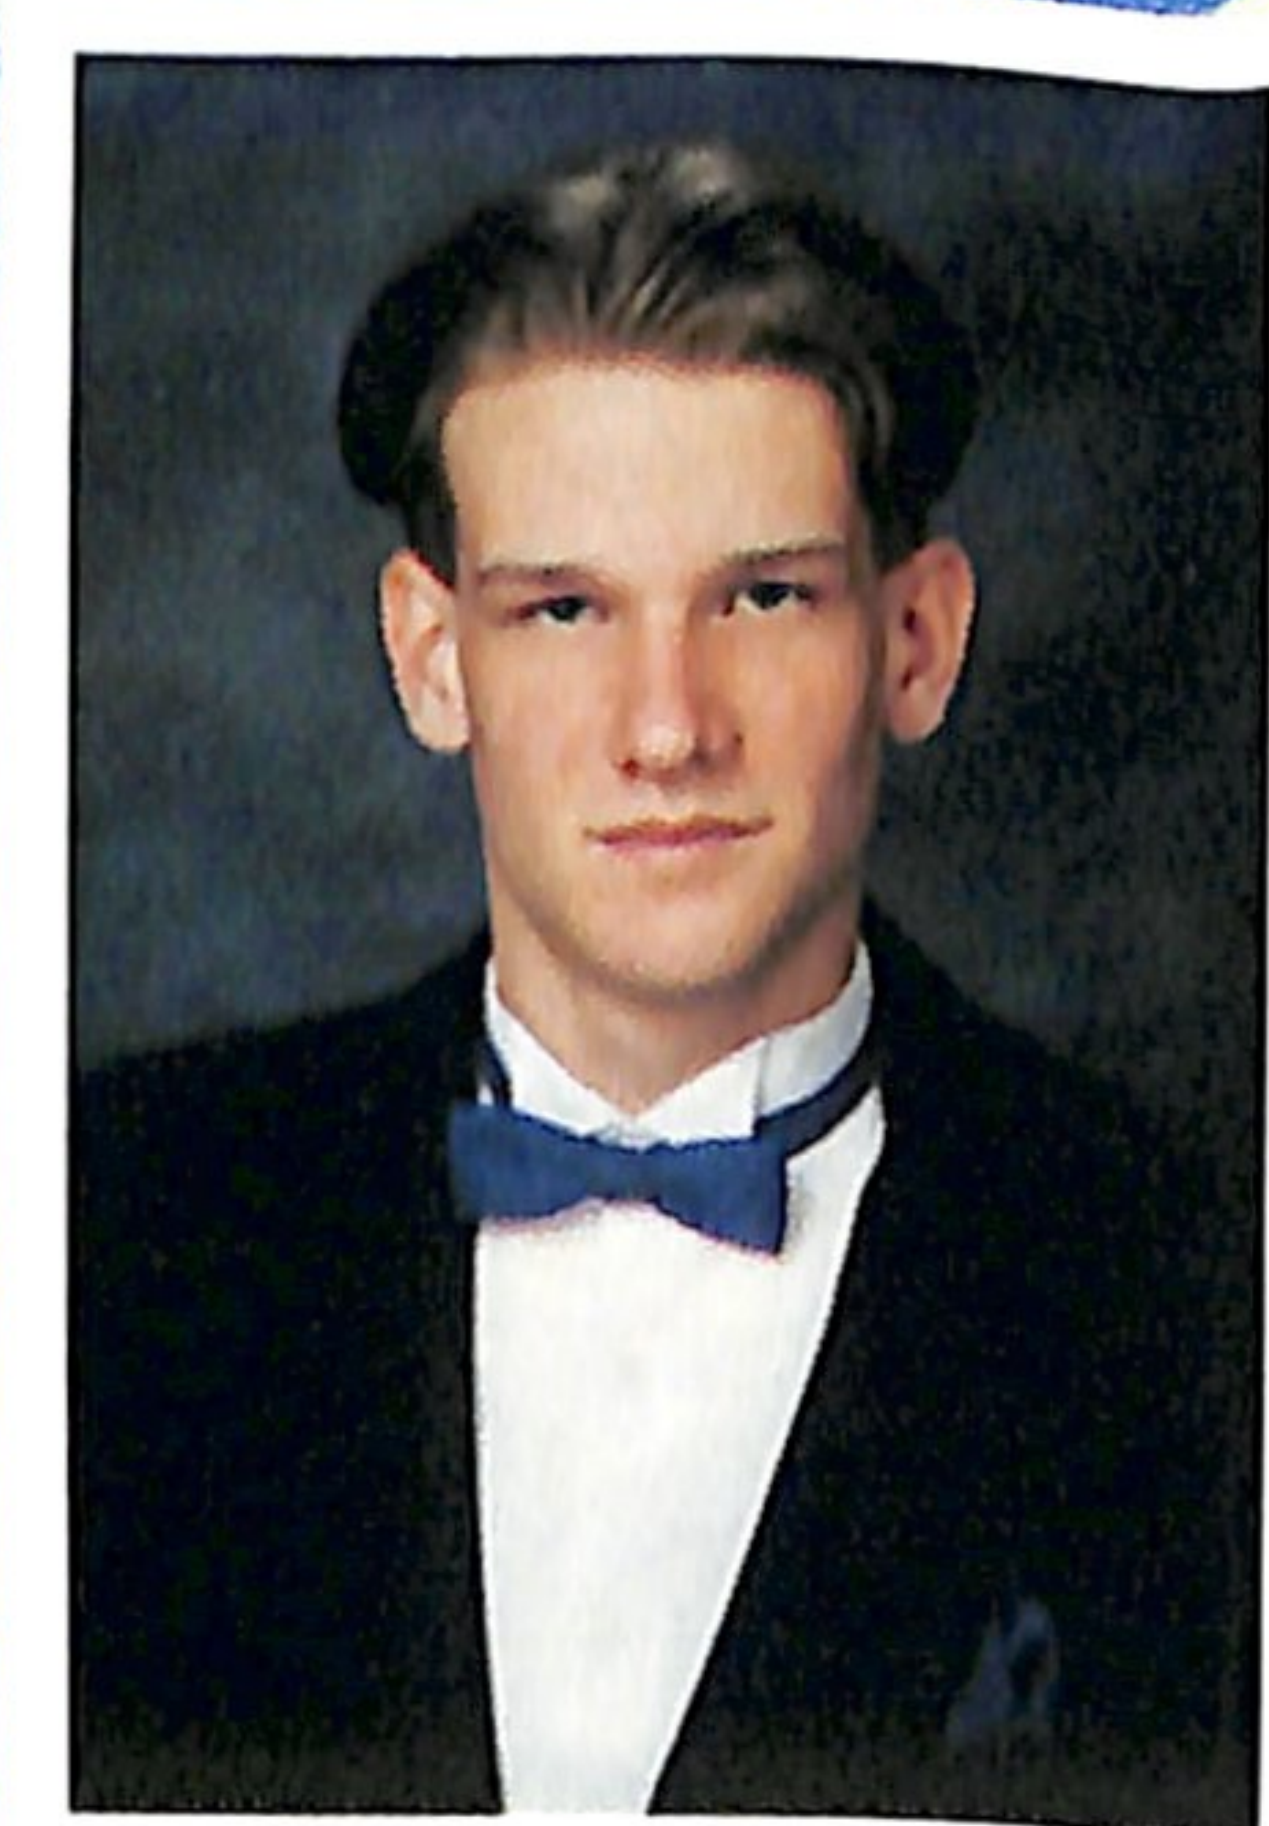

When the end of "A Night Under the Stars" rolled around, many seniors still wanted to go out and have fun. Sarah Ries said, "I went to Ghiradelli Square with friends after prom ended." It was an exciting evening that few would ever forget, especially since it was their last year at Armijo.

April Dionosio and Nick Talbert danced at last year's prom. Nick said, "April is a good friend of mine and I was glad to go to prom with her." Prom was an annual event where everyone had a good and memorable time.

Daniel Morse and Chad Cooley hang out at a friends house before prom. Daniel said, "I had a great time this year, especially since it's my last year." Many seniors had similar feelings about prom.

Reflecting on the times past, the good and the trying times, that the seniors have all shared for the last four years is hard. Many things were accomplished and done by all sorts of students, from different walks of life.

The great Roman scholar, Virgil, said, "If we do not learn from the past, we are destined to repeat it." There were lessons that were learned here at Armijo, many of which were not taught in the classroom.

The class of 1996 was led their four years by various class presidents. "It is hard to think back to our 9th grade year and the time I had as President," said Griena Choi. Karen Hall and

Florence Jao, the sophomore and junior class presidents respectively, remembered the floats that won first place. Shannon Ward said, "Being President during my Senior year was a big highlight and I was glad to represent my class."

Of course there was a lot more to reflect on than leadership. Some seniors recalled their attempt at a Parent's Nite Out, a dance and banquet for parents designed to raise money for the class.

There were more successes than failures for the class of '96, like the 1995 Prom, "In the Still of the Night." The seniors learned not to give up on their goals.

Leanna Wilson and teammates were pumping themselves up for their Powder Puff game against the juniors. Leanna said, "Playing on the Powder Puff team was something I will always remember," said Leanna. All the seniors were announced at the rally to a cheering crowd.

Becky Ramos reflected on her school work, as the rest of the class studied for a test. "Sometimes I really need to look things over before I do the work," said Becky. Anatomy proved to be a hard class for many seniors.

Fun Times

Senior year finally came to an end and it was time to say "good-bye." But one thing's for sure, the fun times will never be forgotten. "I remember the times when my friends and I would just sit around, and always make fun of one another. Making fun of other people and calling each other names—it was so abnormal!" said Ging Saelee.

The childish things many seniors did during their early years of high school were fond memories. "I remember when my friends and I would make fake passes just to get out of class. We would say it was for leadership and we would always get away with it," said Emily Batson.

Time went by so fast, that it seemed like only yesterday high school started.

Everything changed. "Homework got harder through the years, but my social life got better. Friends came and gone," Froy LaGuardia said.

The only thing that hadn't changed were the memories shared throughout the years. Those were the good old days, but now those days are gone. They aren't permanently gone because the memories you will hold in your heart forever. It's so hard to say good-bye to them, but life goes on. Thinking about college and the future was the number one priority for many seniors. "The fun times, I would have to say, were in R.O.T.C. Being with my friends and helping each other out. I'll miss those days, now that they're all gone," said Tonnie Lapaz.

Ted Parks congratulated Brian Fong at the announcement of his win. Ted said, "It was fun being in Homecoming because it was my 3rd time and it was cool that Brian won." Homecoming was a fun event for all that were involved.

Michelle Nemson and Jason Hargrove were goofing around at Wednesday Nite Jam. Michelle said, "It's fun watching the classes compete and the seniors prevail." The Jam was tons of fun and the senior class took first place.

Look Back

As a senior there was a lot to look forward to and a lot to look back on. Their years at Armijo have finally come to an end, but their memories remain strong. Each senior left Armijo with various recollections, good and bad. Some seniors said they watched the freshmen and remembered their freshmen orientation and their first day of high school. Some leadership students remembered being on the rally crew, making homecoming floats. Other seniors sadly remembered the bleachers being taken down. Eileen Sansano says, "I recall playing Powder Puff and dealing with coaches who had no idea what they were doing."

As seniors, they could look back and they could laugh at their freshman year. Ninna Amora was smiling as she said, "I remember almost being dumped in the garbage can by some older students, but I hit them and ran."

Many seniors recalled their sophomore year as their chance to experience new things. A lot of seniors got their licenses as sophomores and their real freedom began. Rachel Passama, soon after she got her license, received her first truancy notice, "I cut classes because I was a sophomore and I wanted to have fun. I didn't really think about what I was doing."

As seniors looked back on their junior year, they smiled. They had completed what they had found to be their hardest year academically. "In my junior year, I realized that high school was almost at an end. I needed to continue excelling in school in order to get into a good college," said Frances Chua.

Many seniors reflected on how much they have grown at Armijo. Anthony Blackman said, "I remember when I first started track. I was lazy and didn't think I would do well. Now that I'm a senior there is no stopping me."

Mariah Spriggs

Sue Anne Tagama

Der Thor

Laura Turek

Seniors changed immensely since they were freshmen. "When I look at my freshman picture I barely recognize myself. I've matured into a beautiful young woman," said senior Angelique BoMarc.

As seniors grew older, their self-esteem increased. Senior April Dionosio says, "During my highschool years, I have matured a lot. I've felt more confident making new friends."

Along with all the other things that went on in their lives this year, seniors also had jobs to deal with. Whether they needed money for a car or just for spending, cash was the bottom line.

Seniors also learned about responsibility and managing money. Steve Cornelius said, "Juggling school work and a social life is harder when you add the responsibility of a job." Even though for most seniors, their current job was not their first, there was always something new to learn. "You have to learn how to give people what they want without talking back," said Susie Lopez.

Having a job meant making sacrifices and compromises. Jessica Palmer said, "I have to work all day Saturday. I've had no real weekend, since I started working." Some people had to pass up parties and hanging out, while others had to change their lifestyles all together.

Kelly Sawyer attended to a customer at JC Penney's. Kelly said, "I work to pay my monthly car payments." Car upkeep and payments were common among seniors.

Michelle Mundy made an espresso for a customer at Gloria Jean's. Michelle said, "It's hard working long hours, because it's difficult to keep up with school work." Many seniors worked in the mall to get money for various costs.

Carina Santos and Juliana Stange talked about the football games. Carina said, "The exchange program gave us the chance for new friendships." Even though they met just this year, they have become good friends.

Football games were a huge part of Armijo and a place to show pride in the school. Carlos Garcia said, "The crowd always showed up and I always had fun cheering." Seniors had the chance to cheer from the new bleachers.

Lindsey Depue and fellow seniors displayed the "Class of '96" sign during Homecoming. Lindsey said, "It felt good helping my last year at Armijo." The banner was made when the class was freshmen.

JUNIORS ARE MOTIVATED

Paula Cohain and Su Jin Gatlin enjoyed the ride on the junior float. "We worked really hard on the float, and it showed because the juniors took first place," said Su Jin Gatlin. They were proud to represent their class at Homecoming.

Every junior at Armijo High was more than motivated this year. They've adjusted to high school life and now they were ready to become seniors. They knew that being a junior was the most important year in high school. Everyone was scrambling to get as many required classes as possible so that they can sit back and enjoy their senior year. "The only required classes I want next year are Government and Economics. That's why I'm getting everything out of the way now," said Olivia Nolan as she sat in Mr. Falk's history class.

But being a junior wasn't just about required classes or homework, it was about being a part of the school. From football to Drama, leadership to yearbook, everyone was a part of the school. The juniors this year were a huge part of the school activities. The cheerleaders kept the crowd going at the football games and more than half were juniors. "I love being a cheerleader because it let's everyone know I have school spirit," says Jamie Covey. This junior class put a lot of effort into everything they've done and next year the new juniors will try to top them.

The class of 1997 were more than motivated. They were ready to achieve every activity, dare, and problem set in front of them. They've been through three years of hard work, building their reputations to their best and now it was time to move on. By the end of the year, the juniors of 1995-1996 were ready to become the seniors of 1996-1997!!!!

Casey Lynch and Courtney Bell were joined by their friends on twin day as they show their school spirit. "All six of us thought it would be fun to dress the same for twin day this year," said Courtney Bell.

Drew Higgins, Brandon Ferguson, Tyrone Trigg, and Jason Williams had fun as they watched an Armijo football game. "I go to the games to watch the cheerleaders, and sometimes to watch the game," said Tyrone.

Before a football game, Marie King and Kathryn McClelland were checking out the J.V. team. "I like going to football games especially for the football players," said Marie.

Amy Stubbs enjoyed her weekend so much that the smile from her face just couldn't disappear. "For some reason that weekend was great. I don't know why but that smile stayed on my face all weekend," said Stubbs. Many students enjoyed the weekends because it was time off from school.

Joeey Vera, Ruben Vera, and Jeremy Segovia hung out at a friend's party on a weekend. Jeremy said, "At the party, all we did was play around with the balloons and talked." Parties were popular weekend hangouts.

Chris Mass and friends had a long weekend so they decided to take a little break at a friend's house to relax. "All we did that weekend was party and it was time for a break, so we took one," said Mass. Many students used the weekend to relax.

WEEKEND Is Here

It's Friday, sixth period, and every student waited anxiously for school to end and their weekend to begin. At 2:53 the bell rang. It's party time!! People rushed out of their classes to their cars and were ready to relax with a fun-filled weekend. Carolyn Pivarnik said, "Once the bell rings I try to get to my car quick so I can go," Weekends were two days out of our busy school week where we could do anything we wanted. Some people hung out with their friends. Others partied. But for Allison Schlien, it was work, work, work. "I thought once school started I'd have my weekends free, but I've got a job and that's all I do."

True, jobs had some effect on your weekends. And if it wasn't your job, then it was the seven or eight hours of homework that ruined your weekend. But once the homework was finished and the job was over, you had time to relax, even if it was Sunday night. Autumn Rasmussen said, "Having a job is great, but I don't get to relax until the weekend is almost over."

As the fun ended, so did the weekend and it was time to start another week. But in just five days another fun-filled weekend arrived.

PARKING lot

Coleman Connolly relaxed in his green Barracuda after school. "I love the parking lot because it is filled with harmony and joy from the loving students of Armijo High. YA RIGHT! It's the 90's," said Coleman. Many students took breaks from their hectic days in the parking lot.

Senior Phil Bailey chatted with friends Devin Anderson and Ted Parks during passing period. "I like the parking lot except when it is hard to get out of 'and' stuff," said Phil Bailey. Armijo rush hour was approximately 2:54 to 3:05 every school day.

Traffic at lunch, before and after school was a pain for those who braved the wait. Becky Ramos said, "I'm lucky I get to leave after 5th . . . cuz after school its hard to get out of the parking lot." Many students also waited until after 05 to miss the rush.

Parking permits, speed bumps and Josephine's watchful gaze . . . why did student drivers keep coming back? "The best part of getting your license is not having your parents nag you from the passenger's seat and not having your parents drive you to school," commented sophomore Amy Eason.

Many people enjoyed the convenience of a storage area roughly the size of a car's trunk. "I love having a portable locker!" Su Jin Gatlin exclaimed with glee. Another plus for student drivers was the vast lunch menu to which driving to school gave them access. Taco Bell, Wendy's, Burger King, McDonald's or simply congregating at someone's house were all popular options.

When Brie Foft wanted to leave campus for lunch, she parked off campus all day. "I spend half my lunch getting in and out of the parking lot and finding a space." Too many cars and only two gates equalled giant lines of cars and one obnoxious wait. Armijo drivers experienced the same problem after school. Melissa Stopponi testified, "It takes me ten minutes to get from my space to the tennis parking lot just around the corner. By the time I get there it is already filled with the other tennis players and the water polo team."

The same people who crowded the lot at dismissal also created the diverse atmosphere. "I just love how the cowboys have wrestle mania everyday after lunch," joked Tara Lewis. Between the wide range of people, screeches of laughter and the peeling of tires, the parking lot provided a never ending source of amusement.

HOBBY Time

Angie Echevarria's hobby was dancing. "Besides spending time with my friends, most of my spare time goes to dancing. I devote my spare time to dance and I love every minute of it," said Angie.

Justin Hanson's hobby during school was hiking through Rockville Park. "My friends and I like to come up to the park and hang out," said Justin. All sorts of people hung out in different spots.

Joeey Vera's hobby of playing soccer got him in the state championships. "Playing soccer is the only hobby I have and I work very hard. I'm proud of what I've done so far," said Joeey.

School was a time full of worries and stress. Having time to do what you wanted was hard, but when free time was available, most people had their hobbies to keep them busy. From dancing to karate, everyone had something to do. "I go four-wheel driving in the mud with my friends," said Ben Gammon.

Some people think that a hobby has to be making model airplanes or doing something constructive with your hands. Having a hobby is just doing something you like and at which you're good at. For example, Dana Flanagan spent her free time in the water. "I like to go water skiing on the weekends at Lake Berryessa."

Everyone had a hobby, even if it was listening to the radio or reading comic books. Sports were also a great hobby. B. J. Pomeroy said that his hobby was football and that he loved to play. Many students found that having a hobby not only kept them from boredom, but relieved the stress and pressures that built up at school.

"If I could change something about Armijo, I would change our school colors."

-Jose Olmedo

"I would change the new Armijo paint color if I could."

-Liwayway Corpuz

"I would change the food at Armijo because it stinks."

-Adam Johnston

"I would get rid of the stink coming from the vent by the farm."

-Kerry Garben

Jessica Correa, Anneline Valenzuela, both Juniors, gathered together after school to discuss how their days went. Jessica said, "I miss my sophomore year. But my junior year is getting better because of my car." Many juniors found that the added stress of upperclassmanship was counterbalanced with the freedom of having a car.

Kim McMaster, Celine Waterman, Christine Tomasello, and Patrick Sukeforth sat together to watch a football game. Kim said, "I love being a junior because I feel powerful over the little underclassmen." Getting one step closer to becoming a senior was a feeling many juniors enjoyed.

Claudia Sussperreguy and Rachel Ambrose, juniors, hung out at the parking lot before school. Claudia said, "As a junior, I enjoy the challenge of the schoolwork and enjoy participation in school activities." Junior year for many meant lots of activity, but also the freedom of a driver's license.

Laura Diermier and Mike Alcocer walked through the parking lot together during lunch. Laura said, "Mike and I have a lot in common because we are both juniors. It's really easy to get along that way." Many relationships were between people of the same grade.

SOPHOMORES ARE INVOLVED

Being involved at Armijo can be as simple as going to a football game and supporting the team. Lisa Anderson said, "I liked going to the football games because I could see all my friends and plus it's a lot fun." Sometimes people become more involved with their friends than watching the game.

Even though the sophomore float came in last place at this year's Homecoming, the class still had fun working on the float together. Jenel Jansen said, "I had fun working on the float and being on the float." The spirit of Homecoming wasn't to win or lose, but to have fun.

At the Renaissance assembly, Rhonda Bailey and Tom Gros received awards for the highest GPA in the sophomore class. Tom said, "It takes a lot of involvement in schoolwork to achieve this honor." Involvement in the classroom was just as important as involvement outside.

After finishing their freshmen year, the class of 1998 moved on to become the sophomore class. This class became synonymous with spirit and involvement. School involvement, such as shown by the sophomore class officers, brought their class to life and made the year a lot better.

They had class competitions, rallies, Homecoming events, and special holiday activities. In each activity, the sophomore class showed enthusiasm, and a willingness to be involved. "I loved it when the school has activities in which to get involved. It helped bring about school spirit," said President Chor Thao. There were plenty of activities for sophomores to be involved with throughout the year.

Football and basketball games were another way for sophomores to show their involvement, whether it was attending the game and cheering, or participating as an athlete. "I thought it was great to be involved on the varsity football team," said Sean Davis. By the end of the football season, their were seven sophomores playing for the team.

Sophomore involvement brought out the class' true colors. Their involvement stemmed from pride in their class. "I enjoyed the different activities, especially the school newsletter and the swim team," said Christen Parker. For the sophomores, school involvement made the year more enjoyable.

This year Cheryl Portades was a representative for the sophomore class at the Jam. Cheryl said, "It was a fun thing to do, but I won't ever do it again because I got sick."

DATING Game

Jimmy Thaxton and his girlfriend Therese Sullivan were walking to class. Therese said, "We've been together the longest out of everybody I know." You could always see couples walking around campus.

Melissa Stopponi pinned a boutonniere her date Eric Dallida. Melissa said, "I try to have fun on a date and not take it seriously." Some students liked to go out with many different people on dates.

Tara Lewis and her boyfriend Bryan Spain went to Cadillac Ranch on a date. Tara said "It doesn't matter what we do. We always have fun together." Many couples liked to go to dance clubs on the weekends.

Dating... the big dilemma. It was on everybody's mind. Nobody wanted to sit home on a Friday night and do nothing. Everybody wanted to do something with their friends or maybe go on a date. The problem was deciding what to do since every one's ideas were different. Parties, the movies, dance clubs, concerts, and Scandia were places that couples regularly visited on weekends.

Steve Tally said, "I like to go to the movies with my girlfriend."

Some people liked to go out in groups, while some people preferred to go out alone with their date. Joey Vera said, "I like to go alone because you have more privacy."

Going on a blind date could have been a fun or scary experience. Meeting new people, having fun, and even making new friends were positive prospects of blind dates. If you and your blind date got along, you might have become friends and gone out again. Susanne Phillips said, "I would go on a blind date because I could meet new people and have fun at the same time."

The dating dilemma could have been rewarding. Especially when you might have found the person that you could have gotten along with or you could have "played the field all year" until you met a person with whom you could get along with.

Seth Braselton waited for a pass in soccer. Seth said "I work really hard for good results in both school and sports." Many students in sports like to keep their grades up while doing sports.

Andrew Cotey and his teammates ran along during practice. Andrew said "Doing well in a sport is considered to be a reward in itself, and when your trying your best the reward will come." Most students liked to try to get scholarships through sports.

Taking the time to concentrate on their schoolwork, several football players studied for various classes. "School is not as fun as football, but it is more important," stated Tony Fabiani. Studying and playing must be balanced carefully when participating in sports.

THE STUDENT Athlete

What did it mean to be a student athlete? To some, it meant just being part of the team. To others, though, it meant hours of hard work and stress. Whatever it meant to the athletes, it was not an easy accomplishment by any means. Imagine going to school all day long. After a hard day at school, it's off to practice for as much as three hours. Getting home around dark, you would hurriedly eat dinner and would start your homework. "When you get home late from practice, squeezing in your homework is pretty hard," said Stacy Austin.

But being a student athlete had its rewards too. "It gives you a sense of accomplishment when you finish a race," said Eric Chadbourne. Whether it's completing a race or winning a game, sports also had an effect on students outside of school. "It helps you keep your priorities straight," stated Jim Smith.

Belonging to a team was not something just everyone could do. Most student athletes wouldn't have given up what they did, no matter how hard it was. Ashley Sanderson summed it all up with, "It can be difficult, but it is rewarding."

To say that it takes a special kind of person to be a student athlete is an understatement. To accomplish things on the field or court and in the classroom deserves great recognition.

WORKING Class

Paul Arendes was at a construction site in Vacaville where he worked. "I helped finish the wood work detailing this house. I love to help build houses, but its a lot of hard work." Paul loved his job even though it was strenuous.

Along with lifeguarding and teaching swimming lessons, Su Jin Gatlin worked as a tutor for elementary school children. Su Jin said, "Working with little kids makes me feel smart because everything they're doing is easy to me." Su Jin is the student's favorite tutor.

Tiffany Anderson helped a customer look for a book at Walden Books. "Whatever the customer needs, I help them find what they're looking for. In this situation, I had a little trouble finding the book the customer wanted." Many People had jobs which dealt with customers.

Money! That's what we wanted and needed. Most of us got little or no money at all from our parents. Some alternative ways that were needed were collecting cans or asking someone to lend you some money. But the best way to get money was to work for it by getting a job.

Most students liked their job. "Working at Marine World Africa U.S.A. is fun. I meet and see different kinds of people, and I work with people my age, so that makes it more fun. The only thing I hate about working at Marine World is that the animals stink," said Cameron Giddings.

Some people got bored working. "I work at Walden Books, and its boring. But the pay is good. I also work for Avon," said Tiffany Anderson.

Some people had an easy job and some people had an stressful job. "Where I work, I make gutters and down spouts for the new homes. I also do line sets in the new houses. Sometimes I get so stressed out doing my job because when it is 90 degrees outside, its at least 110 degrees in the shop where I work in. It's a lot of hard work, but I like it," said Paul Arendes.

Many students during the school year worked hard for their money. Whether it was fun, boring, or stressful, the paycheck made it all worthwhile.

ARYING Heights

At the Armijo-Vacaville football game, Armijo students demonstrated how varying heights didn't matter. Junior Valerie Pena said, "I like diversity and when things are different. It makes things interesting." Height did matter, though, when a tall person sat in front of a short person.

Have you ever walked around campus and noticed people half your size? If you have, you're not alone. Armijo had a vast mix of diversity, and the height of each student varied each year.

Some seniors were mistaken for freshmen by members of their own class because of their height. Amanda Shermoen, a senior said, "Because my friends and I are short, we were mistaken for freshmen!"

When you hear someone talk about freshmen, the first image that comes to mind is a short little kid. Now freshmen enter Armijo at a height of 6'2". Sean Almeida said, "Being tall makes me feel powerful, even though I'm only a freshman."

Most of the students at Armijo were able to look each other in the eye. Melissa Wilson said, "Almost everyone I know is of average height. It's easier to have conversations that way."

This may be the reason why people chose the shoes they bought. Everyone wanted to fit in with the crowd. So shorter people bought shoes with higher soles and taller people bought shoes that weren't so high.

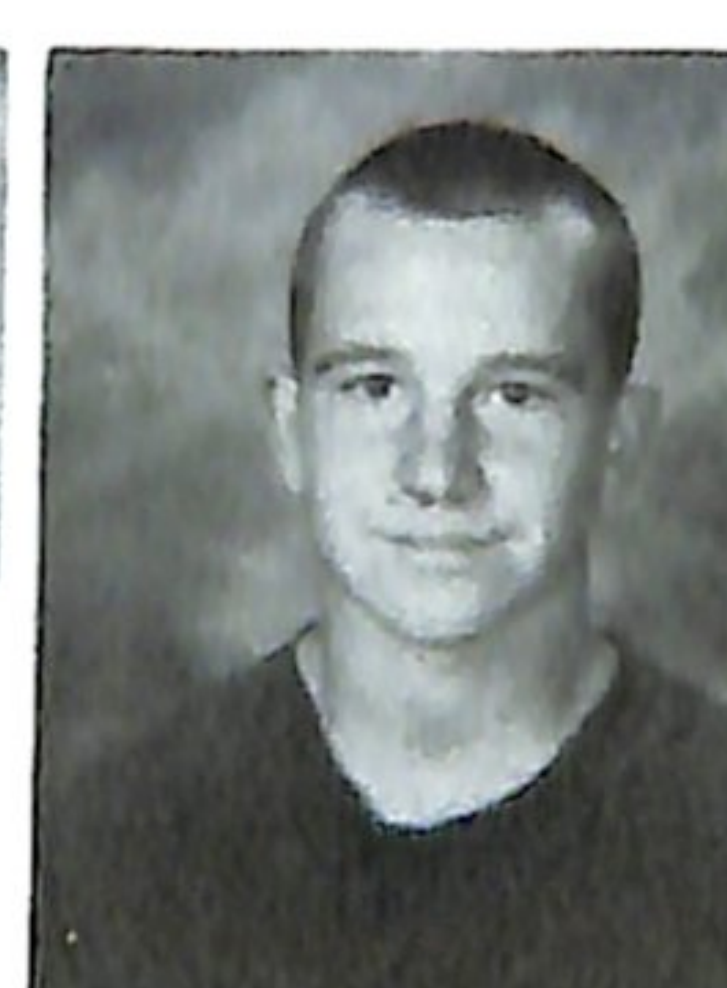

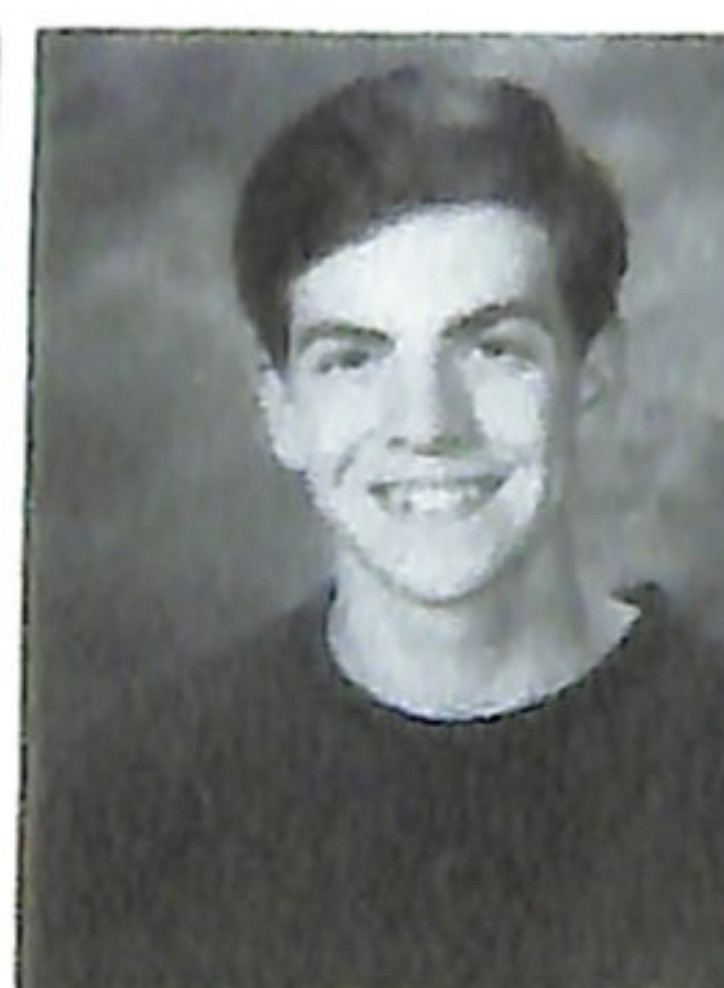

Whether you're 4'5 or 6'5, people will think what they want of you, and only your friends will know you for who you really are.

As the students left from a football rally the different heights of everyone was evident. Justine Certeza looked over the crowd for other friends. Justine said, "I like my height cause I'm neither too tall or too short." It helped to be tall in a crowd to be able to see everything better.

Michelle Toolson pinned a corsage onto Chor Thao before the Homecoming assembly. Michelle said, "Because I am tall, I usually have to stoop down a little for shorter people." Even though people were different heights, they were able to get along well.

FRESHMEN ARE JAM-PACKED

During typing class, April Snow concentrated on her typing. "I like having a lot of people in the class. It isn't boring because you have more people to talk to," April said. Many students took this class because of its usefulness in the future.

With an estimated 736 freshmen attending Armijo High School for the school year of 1995-1996, the class of 1999 was "jam packed"! Whether they came from Green Valley, Dover, Crystal, Holy Spirit, Grange, Sullivan, or B. Gale Wilson they have made the halls of Armijo full. Practically everytime you time you turned around, you were surrounded by freshmen.

With so many students, each individual didn't get as much attention as if there were fewer. Having "jam-packed" freshmen classes were also difficult for the teachers.

"You want to be able to build a relationship with your kids, but with a lot of them you can't get around to one individual," said Mr. Evans, a biology teacher.

Some freshmen didn't enjoy having a lot of freshmen in their classes. Kathryn McClelland was one of these people.

"Sometimes people sit on the floor!" However, others enjoyed being in a class with many other freshmen. "I think it's fun because you get to meet more people," said Erin Fuchs. As the year ended, many held hopes that next year wouldn't be so "jam-packed."

I think there are way too many freshmen on this campus. All the classes are full, and it is hard to get anything done.

-Jennifer Justice

Biology freshmen students talk in their "jam-packed" 3rd period class. "After we're done with our work, Mr. Evans lets us talk with our friends in our "jam-packed" class," said Tina Olsen. The freshmen in this class socialized about their lives when their work was done.

In typing class, Jeff Barton dreaded being in 3rd period. "I didn't like having "jam-packed" classes because you don't have a lot of space," said Jeff. Some students enjoyed having "jam-packed" classes, and some didn't.

Talents

Playing an instrument, playing a sport, singing, dancing, or being a wiz on the computer--these are all things that most people had a talent to do. But only a number of students at Armijo had their own unusual or weird talent. Junior Joseph Mallorca said, "When I was about nine or ten years old, I was able to wiggle my ears."

Out of the estimated 1830 underclassmen attending Armijo, there were a lot of students that were able to amuse others with their weird talent, but many of them were too shy and embarrassed to speak out. But among the bold and proud was

Ben Olmedo. "When I was about twelve years old, I was able to make my tongue into a 'W' shape," Ben Olmedo explained.

Students weren't the only people in the school who could entertain with an unusual talent.

Julie Judd showed her weird talent: kicking her shoulder with her heel. "This is just one of my many strange and unusual talents that I enjoy doing," said Julie. She only showed her weird talent when people ask her to, which was very often.

Mrs. McPeck, an Algebra teacher, was able to put a string up her nose and pull it through her mouth. "When I was in high school, I saw someone do it and decided to try it," said Mrs. McPeck. She entertained the seniors at the Senior Tea last year.

Not all freshmen had first day fears, Danielle Schultz was one of those few. "I don't think there is anything to be afraid of. Everybody has to go through the first day of high school," said Danielle. But some students did have that fear of that first day of high school.

Biology was a required freshman course, also one of the hardest freshman classes. Kristi Braaksma said, "I wasn't that scared. My older sister goes here so I already knew my way around, and that doesn't leave much to be afraid of." Looks of confusion and worry were common among the freshmen on the first day.

Melissa Sudhiemer, a freshman in Mr. Cymanski's typing class, didn't look like she's had anything to be afraid of. "Everybody has a first day of high school so why worry about what people will think. Actually I was excited to go to school," said Melissa. A lot of people have different opinions on that first day of high school, but there's really not anything to be afraid of.

THE FIRST DAY Fears

Everyone had no choice but to go through that first day of high school. Some were excited, some had many fears. Lots of freshmen had many first day fears. "I missed the bus, so I was afraid of being late," said Jackie Vidal.

It may sound silly, but some students were even afraid that they would get beat up by seniors. That happened to be Nate Smith's first day fear. "I was afraid that a senior student would beat me up!" said Nate. Most freshman came from middle schools with a small campus so they were not used to the much larger crowds of students. In addition, classes were so far away from each other that it could take eight minutes to get to one class from another. "I was afraid because there were so many people. I wasn't used to that," said Rami Fernandez.

The most popular first day fear was not being able to find your classes. "I was not sure if I would be able to find my way around," said Ruben Vera. Armijo had a very large campus that there were nine hallways full of classrooms. "There are so many classrooms that I wasn't sure if I would find the right classes," said Alice Chung.

First day fears were normal, but most likely the first day of high school didn't turn out so bad after all.

THE DIVERSITY Mix

The crowd was out as the bell rang for lunch. "My friends and I either stay on campus, or go out to some other place to eat," said Arthur Villanueva. Different people went their own ways just for food.

We were all surrounded by different people of every race, culture, and ethnic background everywhere we went. This school was made up of a wide variety of people. There were Filipinos, Caucasians, African-Americans, Indians, Asians, Mexicans, Pacific Islanders and other ethnic groups. "It's cool how we are all different 'cause we all learn something from each other," said Teresa Catudan. Every one of us had different thoughts and opinions. We all had different styles of clothing that we liked to wear, and we listened to different types of music. This showed how every person was unique in his or her own way. Obviously, no two people were alike. That's what made Armijo so diverse. "I think if everyone were all the same, this school would be absolutely boring and dull," said Hazel Lobusta.

"La Mezcla" meant 'the mixture' which described Armijo, the people and the diversity we had here on campus. From the students, to the teachers, to the administrators, and the rest of the Armijo staff, all of us were different. "We are all in the mix! "I think there's more diversity here in high school than in middle school. Everyone is unique," said Sean Almeida.

That was one of the best things about our High school; the fact that we were so diverse and different.

Christina Patterson, Jocelyn Fernandez, and K-la Amora sat and watched a football game. "It's fun going to the games because my friends and I like to show our school spirit," said Jocelyn. A good old football game brought everybody together.

The main campus was full as passing period came long. "During passing period I usually go to my locker and talk to my friends," said Regina Bernal, it was time to get to the next class and try to learn more.

WE ARE OUTSTANDING

Aaaack! Another project?" This was a common cry among the Armijo student body during the 1995-1996 school year. In the long run, however, students realized that the assignments they had deemed as "madness" were actually essential to the learning process. Many labored hard for improvement and were able to improve their G.P.A. from previous semesters. "After grades came out my mom helped me organize my time better and set my priorities straight. The Renaissance prizes were an added bonus to my improved grades," said Jason Hargrove. Renaissance was not the only reward for good grades and conduct. The annual titles of student and teacher of the year were rewarded to Julie Rosenberg and Mrs. Evers.

Becoming an outstanding student required help from Armijo's teaching staff. Teachers took not only class time, but also lunch and after school to help needy students. Ms. Cretser held math tutorial sessions in her room, where she and a group of student tutors were available for help. AP American History teacher Mr. Falk said, "I set high standards for my students and encourage them to improve." Ultimately however, it was the student who dictated their success and teachers could only help with so much before releasing students on their own.

1 995 Student of the Year Julie Rosenberg worked diligently at her computer on a story for the Armijo Action newspaper. Julie was ecstatic to hear the news and replied, "It was an honor well worth my effort."

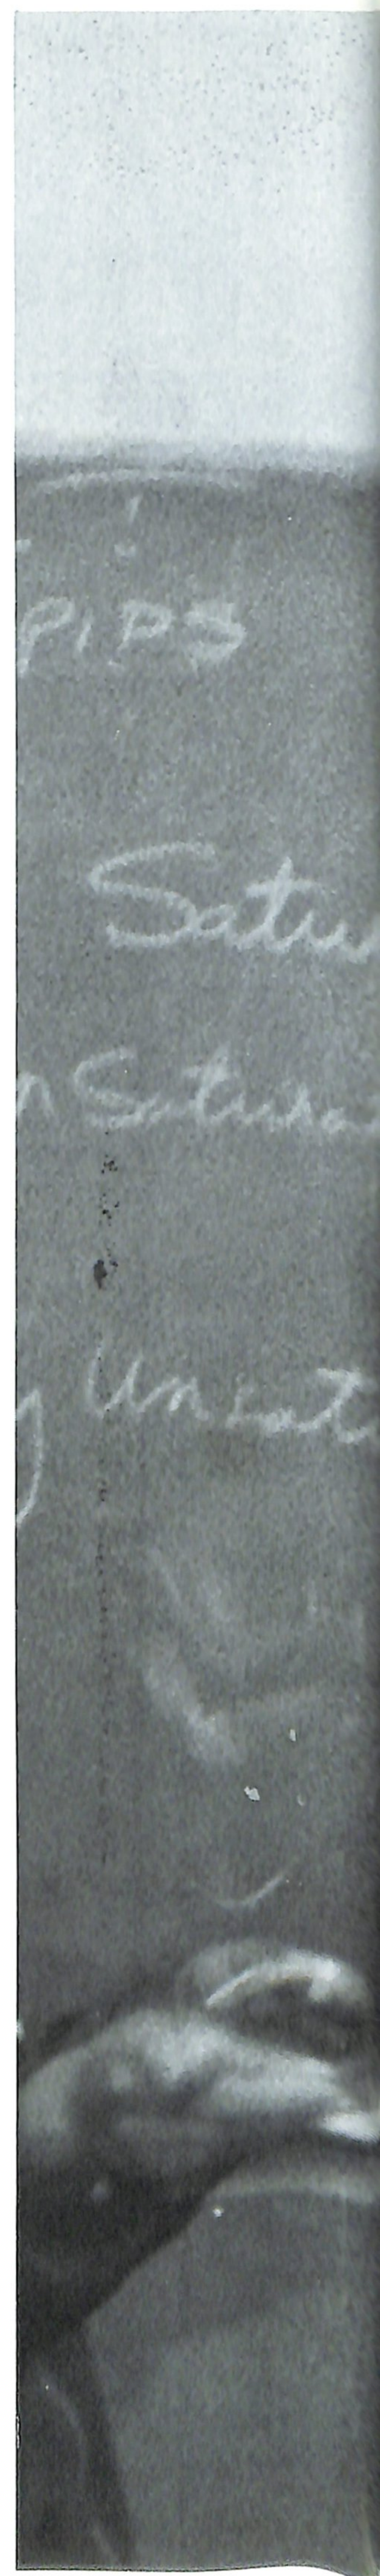

Aside from the ordinary class routine and assignments, each class had their own projects. Mr. Facque's DNA model, Mrs. Radesky's 20 page essay, Mr. Bryan's Geometry project and many other reports, essays and speeches were all a part of the curriculum. Commenting on the Honors Chemistry first semester report, Melissa Smith said, "I am ever-grateful that Kinko's is open 24 hours. The paper was hard and took me forever, but I got it done by 3:00 a.m." Many students found themselves charged with caffeine on the due dates of their projects. Despite the pressures of projects and the time they required, they were still welcome activities by students because it allowed them to express their creative sides.

After all the lectures and reading, the time for students to shine arrived on test day. Some were diligent, cracking open the books every night, while the majority were subject to procrastination. This led them to group cram sessions or solo all-nighters. Either way, students hustled to get the job done and emerged with outstanding success.

Mr. Art Aronson, a Chemistry instructor, performed a demonstration using fire in front of his class. "I love chemistry. I think it is really hot stuff," said Mr. Aronson. He has been at Armijo for six years.

Janet Leach took a head start on her homework in Trig class. "Senior year is much easier than all my other years, but there is pressure to have everything to graduate," said Janet. Many seniors shared this sentiment.

Mr. Bryan helped junior Michelle DeVera with an assignment. Michelle thanked Mr. Bryan and said, "He is an inspiration to my math career." Teachers' help was always welcome when difficulties arose.

Math teacher and Renaissance coordinator Mrs. Ann Evers was Armijo's 1995 Teacher of the Year. She said, "Teaching is the most important job because we educate and influence the future leaders of the world." This attitude led to outstanding teaching techniques.

After School Contributions...

The Extra Duties

It's 2:53. As many Armijo High School teachers packed up to go home, a number of teachers stayed to offer after school help. Many dedicated teachers were available before and after school for tutoring or help.

From English to Math, teachers' contributions made a difference. Mrs. Evers, one of Armijo's math teachers, tutored many students. Mrs. Evers said she tutored because "some kids need help but can't get the one on one help that they need, so they come in after school." Due to the overcrowded classes, many students found it difficult to get the help they needed during class. Teachers helped before and after school and made a difference in the education of many students.

Teacher contributions made a difference even during the lunch hours. Teachers helped students outside of class by opening their rooms at lunch. Many met in classrooms to socialize with friends or do last minute homework. Eric Carvalho explained that he ate in a classroom at lunch because, "It's somewhere to go during lunch to be with my friends."

Clubs were another way teachers spent spare time helping students. Being a club adviser meant giving up your lunches one or two days a week and often times coming in before or after school. "When I started teaching, the art club was not operating, so I started it up for the students," said the art club advisor, Mr. Sechler.

Credit for the many clubs at Armijo and for the extra tutoring help went to Armijo's wonderful teaching staff. We appreciated their contributions to our school with great thanks.

Mrs. Cornell explained to Jennifer Ceballos and students what they would do in their next scene. "I love the theater; it is my life. Any opportunity I have to inspire others with theater is something I enjoy," said Mrs. Cornell. This was her second year at our school.

Mrs. Kennedy assisted Laura Sequin as they dug a new pond for the farm. "I enjoy advising Armijo's FFA Club because I like being with the kids and the animals," said Mrs. Kennedy. She had been advising the FFA Club for all her seven years at Armijo.

Mr. Gutowski directed student Eddie Carrea at a DECA meeting. "I advise DECA club, because it is a part of the marketing program here at Armijo. DECA club is a motivational tool to get students interested in their future careers," said Mr. Gutowski.

The Support Staff...

Making A Great Contribution

The support staff at our school did a lot of work that went unnoticed.

Attendance clerks, receptionists, secretaries, treasurer, custodians, cafeteria workers, and teachers aides all made up the fabric behind the scenes of our school. "Sometimes the adults that give you the real help are the ones in the offices," said Mason Thompson.

Unfortunately, these people did not get enough of the credit that they deserved. "The support staff did a lot of important work, and deserve more recognition," said Mr. Harrison.

Who did you go to if there was a problem with your attendance record? What about an off campus pass? Did you need help in the library? These questions and more are just some examples of questions that ran through students' minds every day. "Students always have plenty of questions; some more important than others," said Mrs Williams.

All the answers were inside the heads of one of our schools support staff.

Another example of support staff were the teachers aides. They assisted the teachers in there classrooms, and we all know how crowded the classroomms were. "I enjoyed being in the classroom helping out with what ever was asked," said Ms. Ann Fisher.

Whatever their role, the support staff at Armijo accomplished a lot. They proved to make a valuable contribution to the school.

Mrs Franey, the Armijo Treasurer, worked hard everyday selling different items, managing the ASB accounts, and helping students. "I love what I do here at Armijo. It certainly makes life interesting," said Mrs. Franey she has been at Armijo since 1972.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Williams were the secretaries in the Attendance office. "I liked all the students and activities that went on in my office," said Mrs. Williams. Both ladies helped students when they needed to call home or needed to talk to a counselor.

Linda Loken and Linda Schuyler talked outside D-Wing. "I like meeting most of the kids, because they are all so different," said Linda. Mrs. Schuyler was the Registrar for our school, and handled grades, transcripts, and other items.

Oldies But Goodies...

The Teaching Experience

I bet you never thought you'd be able to see your teachers when they went to high school. Well, here they are: Mr. Hambright, Mr. Blakesmith, Mr. Harrison, Mrs. Calvert, and Mrs. Hart. It seems hard to believe that our teachers were our age at one time. Times have changed and so have many of our teachers. Just take a look at them now!!! "I like what I teach, and I enjoy giving the knowledge I have learned to my students," said Mr. Yip.

Not only have the teachers changed but so has Armijo. Did you know that when Armijo was brand new only 1200 students attended, compared to our 2500 students who attend now? Many of the changes at our school were an improvement such as our annex, which used to be an elementary school that the school incorporated.

Armijo also had some other new additions, such as the school being painted and air conditioning installed in the annex. Some of our unfortunate changes have been the overcrowded classes and campus, and of course the police on campus.

Mr. Maddalena explained that many of the changes here were due to the increased amount of students. "The one thing that we have gained with our increase in students is our many choices in our curriculum," said Mr. Maddalena

Not only the curriculum, but graduation requirements have changed as well. "Graduation requirements have changed drastically over the years. There was a time when the requirements were lessened but over the last decade or so the requirements have increased," said Pat Calvert.

Life Away From School,...

Teachers' Outside Interests

Mrs. Moore worked hard everyday for the students but left her weekends open for herself. "I spend my weekend watching old movies on T.V. and just relaxing," said Mrs. Moore. Mrs. Moore was also very active with the football boosters.

During Mr. O'Brien's vacation away from school, he spent his time in Guatemala. "I like to spend my vacation time out of state, because it helps take away the pressure from school." Guatemala was a good vacation for Mr. O'Brien because he taught spanish.

Mr. Glick spent his days working hard for his students, but once on vacation Mr. Glick relaxed. "Relaxing for me is just watching T.V or spending time with my family," explained Mr. Glick. For a lot of staff, vacations were the only time they can relax.

Teachers had more to do after school than just grading papers afterschool. Most of them actually did something besides school work, like watch television, work in the yard, play golf or just stay at homes. "I don't normally have free time because I am always grading papers," said Mr. Hambright. "But when I do have a free moment I like to spend it with my family."

Students never look at teachers as "normal". They can't imagine teachers doing anything other than school work but school was not their entire life. "I have my students, but when I have a free moment I spend it reading a book," exclaimed Mrs Frost.

Some of the teachers at Armijo even teach after school classes to give students and even adults a little extra help. Mrs. Evers, an algebra teacher here at Armijo, took time out to teach a study secession at night to help those who have trouble studying. "A lot of students don't know how to study and I am here to help them.

Teachers aren't just teachers, they really are people.

A Leaders Roll...

The Administration

This year like all others brought on many new faces, especially among the Armijo staff members. The new members included three new assistant principals. Mr. Marsh, who was in charge of the disciplinary actions of the students, began his first year here at Armijo High. "This year has been interesting. I think things will only improve next year," said Mr. Marsh. Another addition made to our new staff was Ms. Rollins, the assistant principal in charge of the freshmen class. "It was different here at Armijo, but I got used to the students," said Ms. Rollins.

Mr. Rae Lanphier did his job very well as a fourth year principal at Armijo. "I think the school responded very well to all the things that went on this year," said Mr. Lanphier. To many students here, Mr. Lanphier has played a big part in their lives. He had the hard job of looking over the school as a whole and making sure that it ran as smoothly as possible. With the help and personal dedication of our assistant principals they made running a high school look as easy as making a sandwich.

Another addition to the administration was Mrs. Carol Orr. Even though she started in the middle of last year, this was her first full year. Many people seemed to know her well. She was seen all over campus with the new walkie-talkies the assistant principals got this year. "I really liked being in charge of the annex this year," said Mrs. Orr.

Ms. Rollins talked to a student's mother about something that occurred the day before. "Talking to parents is an everyday ritual, and it helps when dealing with their students," said Ms. Rollins. She worked in the annex this year and was in charge of the ninth grade.

Assistant Principal, Mrs. Pat Calvert, was busy at her computer preparing for second semester schedules. "I really like my job. It has challenges and it has easy parts, but overall it is fulfilling," said Mrs. Calvert. She was also in charge of the counseling office and discipline for the seniors.

Ms. Orr was working at one of our home football games. "Working at the games was not a highlight, but we didn't have too many problems and things worked out," said Ms. Orr. She kept things in line at all the night time football game.

Mr. Marsh seemed to pop out of the walls; whenever you turned around he was there. "At first it was hard to get used to this large campus, but by November I had a feel for the whole school. Mr. Marsh also attended after school activities.

Classroom Activities...

The Extra Stuff

Dittos, dittos and more dittos! Teachers knew that this was not the way to get students to learn. Students needed to find a genuine interest in a subject in order to make an effort in the class. Many teachers planned special activities to capture the interests of their pupils.

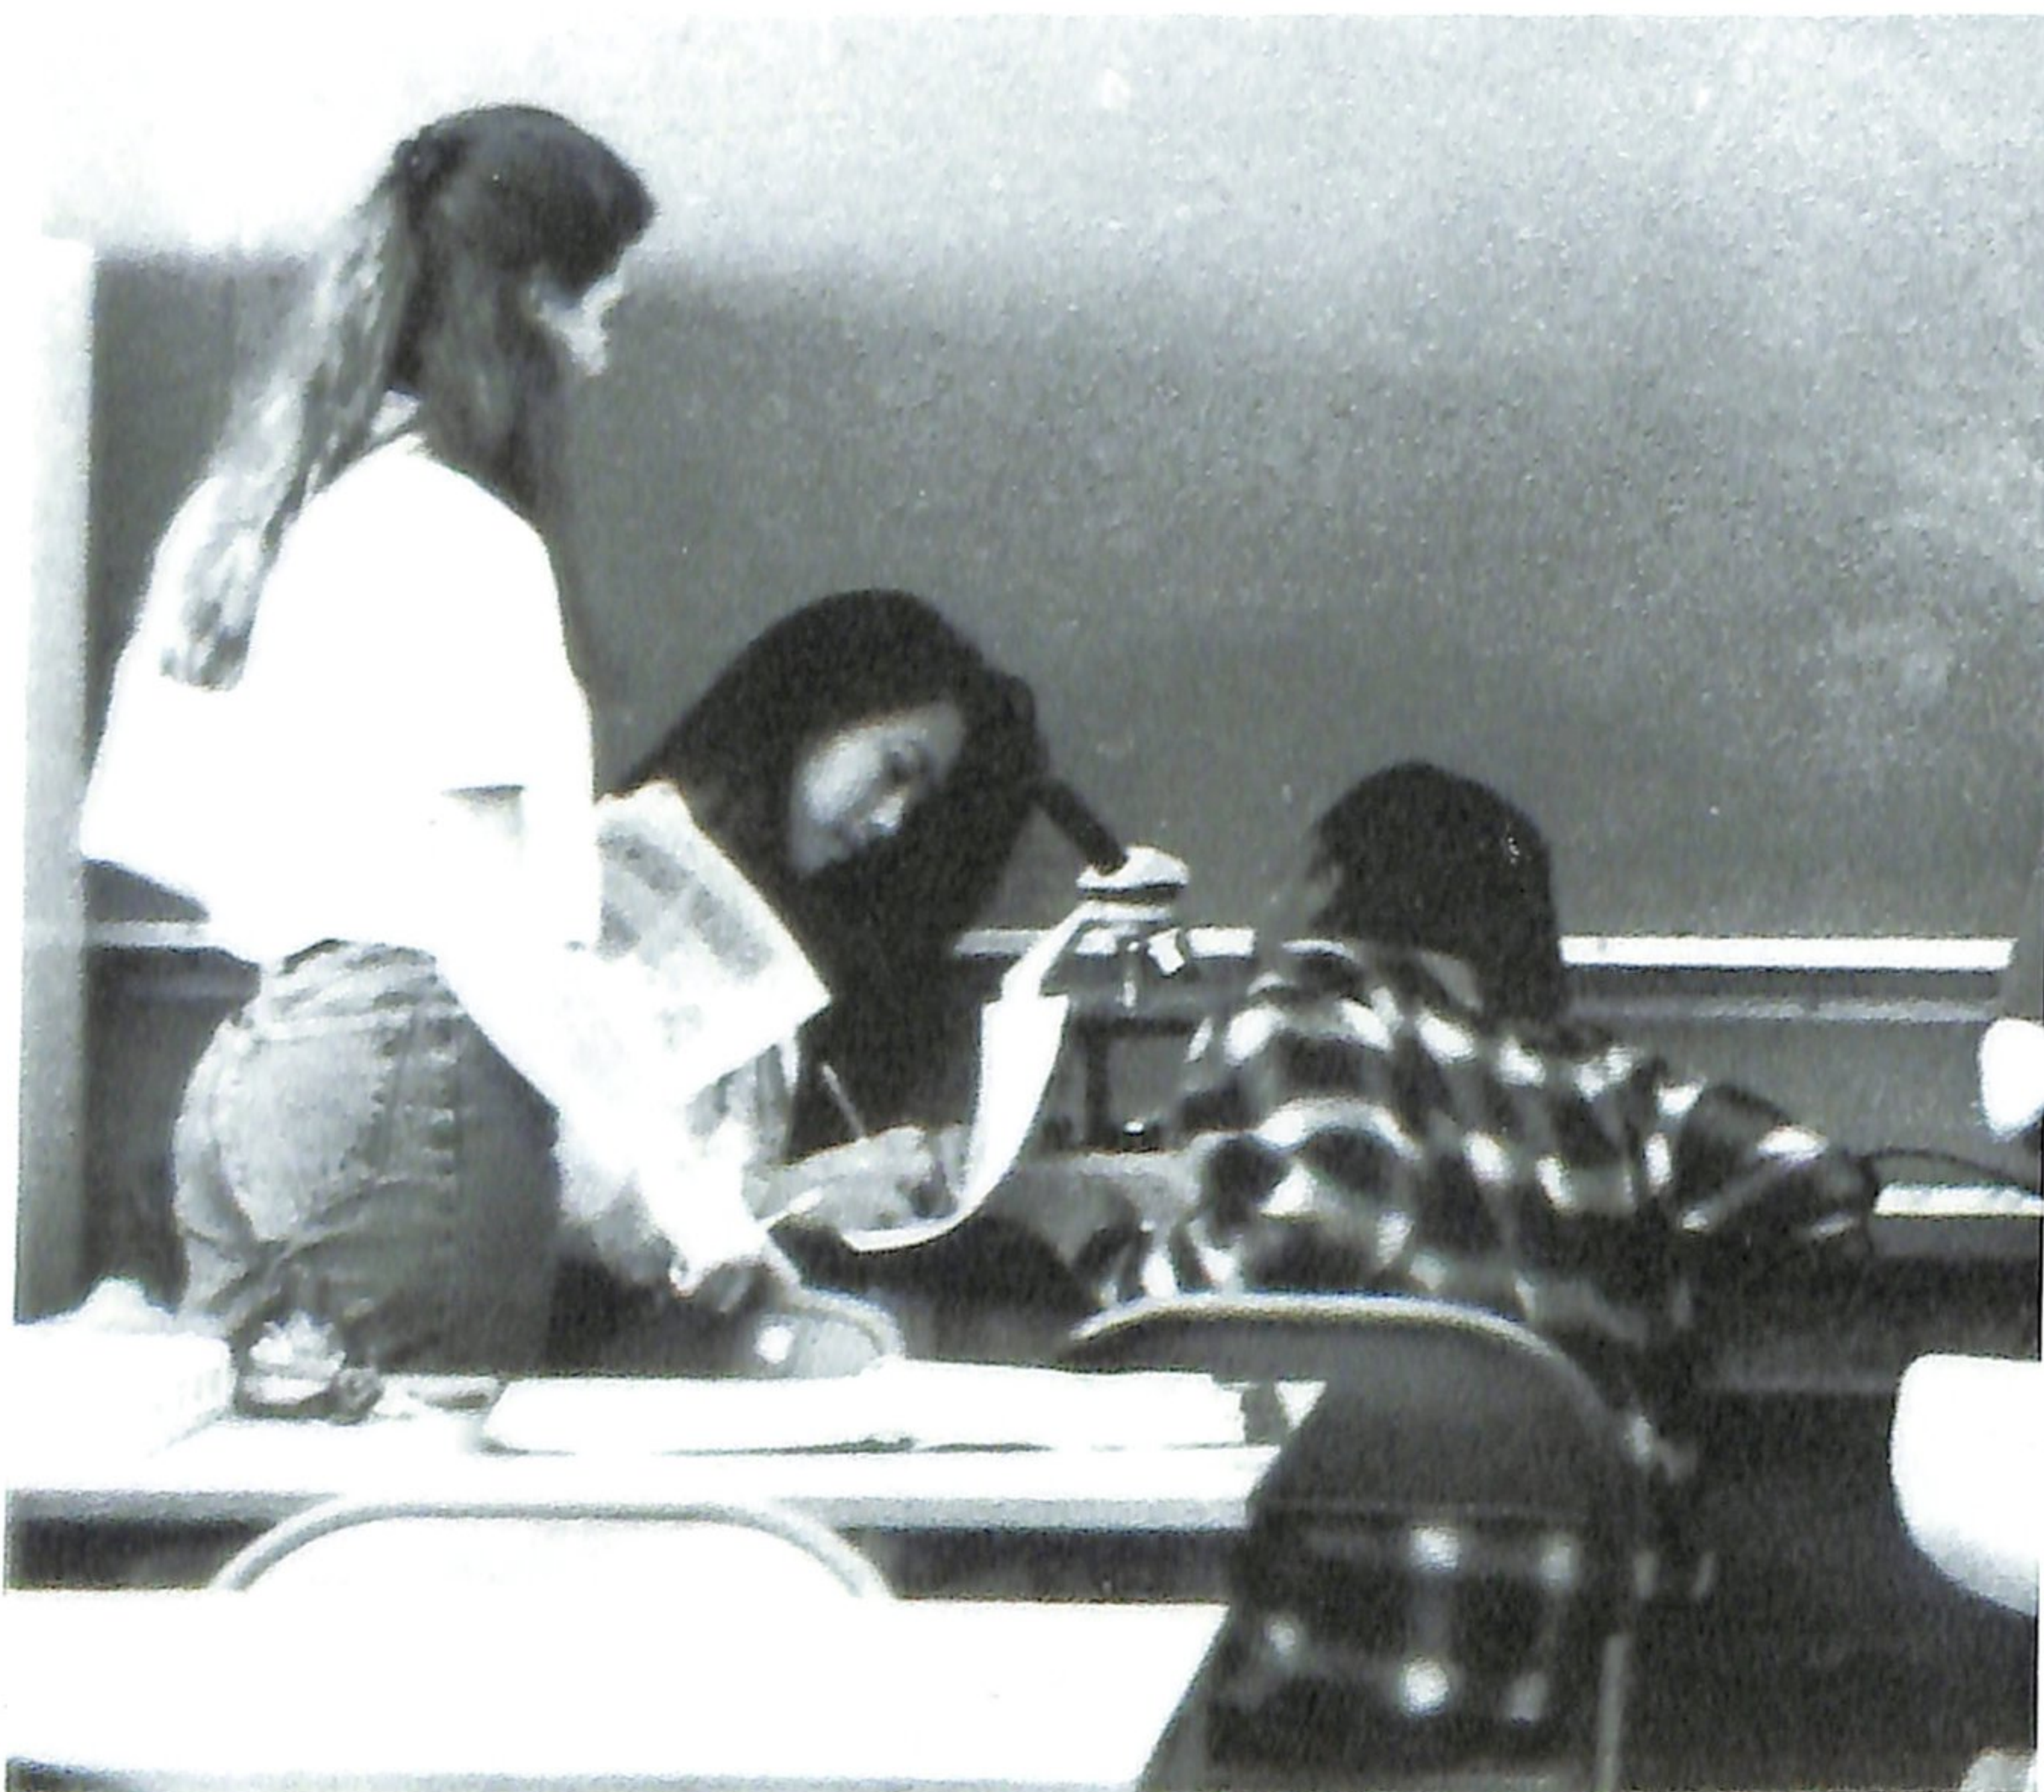

Special activities took place right in the classroom. The majority of science students enjoyed the labs provided by their teachers. Sophomore Ben McGowan talked about his favorite lab, he said "I enjoyed looking at goldfish under microscopes in biology last year. We had to place a water-saturated cotton over its gills so that it could breathe." Other classes participated in special events as well. Ms. Mugg's ninth grade honors English class re-enacted scenes from Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." The freshmen enjoyed memorizing their lines, dressing in costume and performing before an audience.

Special activities also commenced out of the classroom. Spanish teacher Mr. Carlson took his classes to a downtown restaurant called Los Gallos. The students ordered their meals in Spanish and enjoyed delicious Mexican food. The French classes also took a similar outing. Field trips were not limited to the foreign language department.

Mrs. Vaughan escorted her eleventh grade honors English class, along with the Literary Club, to a theatrical performance in Berkeley. Students were allowed to walk and shop along Telegraph Avenue after the play. "It was really fun because I enjoyed the plays and we got to shop afterwards," said Su Jin Gatlin. All students agreed that after a break from daily work with a special activity, they were re-energized to begin their learning again.

Monique Knoroski, Eileen Sansano and O'Lisa May wrote down their observations for their Anatomy lab. "This class has really challenged me, but that is the way you learn best," said Eileen Sansano. This particular lab taught the students about the microscopic world of cells.

Mr. Carlson took his Spanish I class to the Los Gallos restaurant in downtown Fairfield. Freshman Staci Saldino commented, "It was a lot of fun since we got out of class and got to bring some friends along with us." The class ordered their food in Spanish and lunched on an authentic Mexican feast.

Mr. Glick's Physical Science class performed an experiment using two cars connected by a string and measured their distance apart. Mychal LeGrande said, "The lab taught me a lot about the subject of momentum." Many agreed that labs offered a variety to the everyday science education.

Kathryn Nicholas, Gardelyn Jayme and Stephanie Weitemeyer included a dance in their project about Native American Literature for Mrs. Phillips' AP English class. "We had fun performing the dance and the whole class joined in," said Kathryn. The panels were one of the year's highlights.

An exciting part of drama class was the long awaited performance after all of the hard work. Playing the part of Abbey Brewster in "Arsenic and Old Lace," Katy Maffei said, "It took a ton of hard work and dedication from all the actors and the director. Ultimately, it was a lot of fun." The cast worked on the project for over two months.

Greg Harper, Jennifer Miranda, Frances Mallorca and Chris Silfies worked on a silkscreen for Mr. Bartz's class. Jennifer said, "I was happy to be in the class and help other students." The students were able to create numerous different designs for cloth and T-shirts.

Sophomore president, Chor Thao, invited the top students in her class to join her and be recognized for their achievements in front of the whole student body. Chor said, "It was an honor to be a part of the assembly. It's great seeing my peers being rewarded for their hard work." Peer admiration was another incentive for students to do well.

Students received their Renaissance cards before the assembly. "I really love my Renaissance card - I was amazed at all the cool discounts on the back," said sophomore Ben Hillery. The discounts were a big incentive for students to earn a Renaissance card.

Gary Falati was a guest speaker at the Renaissance assembly. "We invited Mr. Falati to speak at the assembly as a motivational speaker," said administrator Mr. Marsh. Gary Falati is a former mayor of Fairfield and a former administrator at Armijo.

Mrs. Evers, the person who started the Renaissance program at Armijo, straightened an educational sign. "The Renaissance program is very special to me and I hope it will continue to have a positive influence on the students," she said. Mrs. Evers has devoted hours of her time to insure that the Renaissance program was a success.

An Academic Marvel...

The Renaissance Program

Many of the students had more than just a student body card in their wallets this year they had a Renaissance card! The 95-96 school year marked the second year that the successful Renaissance program has existed at Armijo. The Renaissance program was an incentive program designed to motivate students to do well in school.

The Renaissance program was started by Mrs. Evers last year. "I started the Renaissance program because when I came to Armijo a few years ago I didn't think anything was being done to reward the kids with good grades. I feel that hard work and effort should be rewarded and that's what this program was designed to do."

Renaissance cards were given to students that earned a GPA of 3.00 (grey card), 3.50 (purple card), or 4.00 (gold card). These cards enabled students to receive fabulous discounts at over 20 businesses in Fairfield and Suisun. "I think it's wonderful that we are finally being rewarded for all of our hard work. I love being able to get discounts at some of my favorite stores because I get good grades," said Patrick Sukeforth. Students in grades 10-12 who increased their GPA by one-half point from the previous semester received a gift certificate book from Top Notch valued at over $100. Students with perfect attendance also received the book.

The students who received Renaissance cards were acknowledged at an assembly in September. The top students from each class were given their cards in front of an admiring audience of their peers. "It was an honor to be recognized as an outstanding student. I'm proud of my grades and I think it's great we hard-working students are finally getting recognition for our effort," said Jena Hillery.

The success of the Renaissance program showed that Armijo students are committed to excellence in education. This meaningful program has made a big impression on students and will hopefully continue to do so for many years to come.

The Armijo Superband entertained the students at the Renaissance assembly. "I enjoyed having the opportunity to have been a part of such a successful assembly. I was glad that the band was received so warmly," said band member Kelly Lum. The band added a festive spark to the assembly.

Students sat and enjoyed the Renaissance assembly. "I really like this assembly because it gives all the hard working students a chance to be acknowledged for their efforts," said Tom Walbot, a proud recipient of a Renaissance card.

WE ..... ARE HARMONIOUS

The diversity of Armijo High School created numerous amounts of diverse organizations to join. Clubs were important because colleges looked for well rounded students. Joining a club gave students the opportunity to enhance themselves in the eyes of the college recruiters. "Being part of ROTC has a lot of benefits such as scholarships for colleges. It looks nice for those college recruiters," said Keith Hartsell.

The clubs' activities at Armijo helped the school by giving it character, like the play "Arsenic and Old Lace" put on by the Drama Club. Many of the rallies and activities were coordinated by the different committees of Leadership. DECA represented our school in statewide competitions and national conferences, and also ran the Armijo student store, The Indian Outpost.

FFA represented Armijo at the Dixon May Fair by raising pigs to be sold to farmers. Armijo in Action kept the students informed with their monthly newspaper, while the Construction Club built sheds to be sold to the public.

These clubs, and many more made Armijo a fun and exciting place.

One of the biggest reasons why people joined clubs was their friends. "I joined Leadership because my friends were there and I met new people," said Jessie

Morrow. Having friends in the same club motivated people to stay involved and to participate in the club's activities. Friendship was the major theme of AFS. AFS hosted Christmas around the world to educate people of the different cultures that were represented by the exchange students.

The clubs not only helped the school, but also the community. Leadership sponsored a can drive which raised over 4,000 canned foods that were donated to the Solano Food Bank.

During Christmas Leadership also had a teens helping teens program. Armijo teenagers bought gifts for other teens that were less fortunate than they were. These gifts were given out with the help of Emporium and the students of Armijo.

AFS members talked about the annual AFS event Christmas around the world. "I like being in AFS because you get to meet people from all over the world, like Germany, Brazil, and Holland," said Gomanna Choi. AFS members met every Monday at lunch in the small gym.

The motivation for joining clubs at Armijo ranged from meeting friends to impressing colleges with an extensive activities record. The many clubs created a harmonious atmosphere where everyone all worked together to make the school more fun and enjoyable.

Evelyn Kwok and Quiana Robertson went on a trip to the Daily Republic. "The newspaper has helped me experience the journalistic world and it fulfilled a requirement," said Evelyn Kwok.

Jessica Correa and James Birchall took down who was going to the Norcal Conference. "Clubs have made me more active in my scholastic life and it's lots of fun," said Jessica Correa. Jessica was in FBLA, DECA, Leadership and CSF.

Peter Bosson acted as a detective in the classic play "Arsenic and Old Lace." "Being in drama has made it easier for me to speak in front of other people and it also made me more confident," said Peter Bosson. Peter also performed plays at the Theatrical Arts Center in downtown Fairfield.

The ROTC colorguard held flags for the traditional patriotic song held at an Armijo football game. "The discipline that I learned by being in ROTC has made me more responsible, and it's a fun club to be in," said Lucas Sullivan. ROTC colorguard also performed at many of the assemblies held here at Armijo.

LEADERSHIP

Lisa Stone and Marie King talked about the Dance Committee. "I like being the head of Dance Committee because I get to meet a lot of people I wouldn't have met otherwise," said Marie King. Marie was senator for three years.

Every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, 300 students showed up to school at 7:00am. You might ask yourself, "Why would anybody go to school an hour earlier?" The reason was Leadership. Seniors, juniors, sophomores, and freshmen came to Leadership to help plan school activities. To Joy Addington, Leadership was "not only getting involved in school activities, but helping to make sure they run smoothly."

Work was divided among committees and each member chose which one they wanted to get involved in. "When it was Homecoming, everyone got together to build a float. It was nice to see everyone working together," said Christina Ma, who was involved with Homecoming week activities. Community involvement was also important, so each committee was responsible for donating their time and energy to a community cause.

Being part of Leadership helped many friendships come together, as well. "Since I got into Leadership, I met a lot of people that became my friends," said April Snow, a freshman.

Leadership members were motivated by school spirit to come to school early and be involved with activities that happened at Armijo. The dedicated efforts of these leaders gained Armijo a reputation for excellence.

Karen Hall and Florence Jao listened to what Mr. Harrison had to say. "Leadership was fun this year, especially second semester because I was ASB president," said Karen Hall. Melissa Chadbourne was elected ASB vice-president for the spring semester.

Jocelyn Fernandez signed in for Leadership. "Leadership is fun and exciting, but the only downfall is waking up early in the morning," said Jocelyn Fernandez. Jocelyn was the junior class vice-president.

Leadership students woke up early in the morning to participate in the club. "Leadership is a pain. You have to wake up early in the morning, but it pays off in the end because you get to find out what is going on," said Hugh Wilson. Hugh woke up at six o'clock in the morning to get ready for Leadership.

R.O.T.C.

ROTC volleyball team played many games against other ROTC volleyball teams and won. Daniel Dominguez said, "I enjoyed playing for the team this year because it was a fun time for me to be with my friends." The Armijo volleyball team came in first place this year.

College isn't the only choice after High School; there is also the military.

ROTC is just a pre amp to what will happen in the military. Going through the ROTC program-students learned about leadership, working with others, as well as military basics, and its technical aspects. "I joined ROTC to enhance my leadership skills and to earn the respect of my peers," said Jade Anunciacion.

Upon entering ROTC the basic of Aerospace was taught, and was continued for the first two years. The final two years of Aerospace the focus was put more on entering the military. After finishing ROTC at Armijo students were able to join the military at a higher rank. Not only did ROTC gave students a jump in the military, but it also gave students alternative choices for classes as Craig Pace said, "Since I'm in ROTC, I don't have to take Careers or P.E."

Armijo got the chance to see ROTC at it's best. Their colorguard performed at the football games and assemblies, the saber team at Homecoming, the annual ROTC ball. Every Thursday, ROTC students showed off their uniforms to the whole school.

Ryan Burke said, "My favorite thing about ROTC was that I sat in class with many of my friends." ROTC was not only about learning areospace, disipline, and leadership. It was also about having fun with friends and classmates.

The Armijo ROTC Staff members:
Top: Chief Kardach, Miguel Dotte, Jennet Johnson, Tonnie Lapaz, Stacy Matthews, Asiza Gooden, Michelle Kilmer, Major McGray. Bottom: Faiz Nasser, Tommy Lapaz, Gordon Brown, Jason Leigh.

Joe Pipitone, Robert Avacan, Melissa Holt, Tomas Cook, and Elliott Leigh made up this year's illustrious color-guard squad. They're seen on the football field, basketball court, and at the beginning of every assembly.

During first period ROTC Chief McGray lectured to his students. "I like being in ROTC because you get a scholarship after four years in ROTC and maintaining a 3.0 average, and I don't have take physical education," said Jazmine Baustista. First period consisted of many first and second year students.

Erupting in a spontaneous cheer, a group took a break from the music. Courtney Parvin said, "This was the best ball because they organized it better. I had a great time." Although the ball was a formal affair, many took off their jackets and their shoes to loosen up and have fun.

Janean Butler and her friends escaped the crowds to have some time together. Janean said, "I am a freak. I know how to act when I go to a dance and party." Amidst all the music and groups of friends, finding an area to quiet down and relax was difficult.

Jennet Johnson, crowned Queen and Leanne Dorotan, crowned Princess smiled at the receipt of their honor. Jennet said, "I was surprised that I won because I didn't expect it, but I'm happy that I did." The crowning was a highlight of the evening.

"Being the captain of this year's Saber team has been a rewarding experience, thanks to the cooperation of my members," said Froy LaGuardia.

It's Thursday, uniform inspection time in E2. Each class was inspected by their commanding officers. This was Tom Lopez and Chance Chappell, looking over their core. Here is what flight sergeant, Chance Chappell had to say about his Corp, "CA-071 Cadet Corp is a proud distinguishable Corp that sets its goals such as honesty, valor, and pride in oneself."

BAND

Band was, just one of the many elective choices here at Armijo High. Whether it's Marching Band, Super Band, Color Guard, Concert Band, Jazz Band, or Pep Band all of these students are very talented. Besides winning 1st, 2nd, or 3rd places at many competitions, they've gone to Disneyland and performed. "I think it's great that we win in many competitions, but it's still fun to just travel everywhere," said

Tobias Morgan.

The band not only performed everywhere, but it took a lot of dedication, practice and a good instructor. "Ms. Pajita can be strict sometimes, but she is a great teacher and I think she's great at what she does," said Jacqueline Vidal. Not only did Ms. Pajita take her time to teach bands, but she also taught at Green Valley Middle School. "She's a very dedicated teacher," said many other students.

The band wasn't easy, it took a lot of hard work. These students practiced weekends and weekdays. Not just anyone could join band. These students had to be willing to not only give up a lot of time from other activities, but they had to be able to work as a group not just an individual. "The best part of band is working with other people, because you get to meet new friends," said Hasi and Karinda Elliot.

During a football game the Pep Band cheered for the Indians between performing. "It's really fun to play at school activities with the Pep Band, not only do you get to talk to all your friends but we also get to watch the games," said Gabrielle Marsch. Pep band includes all the bands put together.

Getting ready to perform in just another field show, the band warms up on Napa High Schools football field. "It's really fun to go to all the field shows. We get to travel almost everywhere in California," said Sean Hold. Band competed in many tournaments.

The colorguard performed in just many field shows. "I enjoy performing in all the field shows I went to, but it was sort of scary at first but then you get the hang of it," said Tina Olsen. The colorguard has won many tournaments.

Here at Armijo High there was a tradition to lift school spirit during homecoming week. The school band marched through the halls during class. "It's really fun, all the people look at you as you go by, and we get to be as loud as we want!" said Tommy Clark. Band was involved in many of Armijo's Homecoming Activities.

During the Renaissance Assembly on September 22, Griena Choi directed the band. "It's great to help other people with music. There is a kind of bond that is created and when you're Drum Major, you get to see it all," said Griena Choi. She has been in Band for four years.

Foreign exchange students and their friends ate at a restaurant before going to Davis. "I like being in AFS because I liked meeting new people and I get to be independent," said Christian Meyer. Christian Meyer was an exchange student from Germany.

AFS, which stands for American Field Service, is an international organization whose mission is to promote world peace. At Armijo, AFS was designed to make the annual foreign exchange students feel welcome in America. "AFS is important because you get to meet people from all over the world, who may become future leaders. It also promotes mutual understanding," said Mrs. Fout, AFS' advisor.

Throughout the year, AFS hosted a variety of exciting events that brought students together. Among the most memorable events were the camping trip and Christmas Around the World, an annual AFS event. "Christmas around the world gave the students a chance to learn about other cultures," said Nina Kudzus.

The clubs activities were organized by the Executive Committee. They met to discuss upcoming events and plan the meetings. "It's fun being part of the club, but I don't like Thursday morning meetings," said Melissa Stopponi.

AFS promoted acceptance and understanding of all cultures and was a productive club on campus.

Halloween parties were one of many activities that AFS had for foreign exchange students. "I like the parties because there are a lot of girls there," said Andre Ludwig. Andre Ludwig has been a member for two years.

DECA

DECA, which stands for Distributive Education Clubs of America, is an organization specializing in market and business management. At Armijo, DECA ran the Indian Outpost. "Working in the Outpost was a great way to make new friends and gain experience for the future," said Abigail Alcantara.

DECA members went to many conferences in San Ramon and Costa Mesa. There they competed against other school from all over the state. The best parts were the dances that were held after a hard day of roleplaying and management tests. "The dances held at conferences gave me a chance to relax and meet other DECA members from all over the state," said Gary Llaguno.

The club's officers worked hard to get students to take part in conferences by hosting a mini-conference, which Armijo competed against Fairfield, and Napa DECA members. "The experience was great and the competition was tough, but I was happy that I won," said Kory Wright.

DECA gave students the tools and a taste of the business world. Hopefully, the lessons that were learned by being part of a club such as DECA has prepared students for the real world.

Arthur Villaneuva, Liwayway Corpuz, and Abigail Alcantara were playing around at the San Ramon, Norcal Conference. "I thought that the conference was fun. I learned a lot, and it was nice to be out of school," said Arthur. Abigail went on to the top six in the AAAL event.

WE ARE INVINCIBLE

GO ARMIJO! An enthusiastic crowd cheered as our team charged on to victory. Spirit at Armijo was amazing this year. Sports fan, Brian Gauthier said, "Cheering was the best part of attending the games. Sitting with my friends and watching the excellent athletes made me realize how much pride everyone has in this school. I look forward to having another year to attend all of the sports events."

This year was a year of firsts. Football went defeated, boys' basketball played with a new zip, girls' tennis ruined Napa's perfect season by beating them 4-3, girls' soccer scored 12 goals against St. Patrick's of Vallejo, and track continued it's excellence with returning state finalist, Tiffani Battle.

Track coach Bruce Conhain said, "I'm really proud of my team. We had the talent and skill to be the best team in MEL, but our team was so small, we didn't have enough people to place in all the events."

One of the highlights out of all of our teams teams was the girls' varsity basketball team. Varsity girls' basketball player, Cynthia Lippstreu talked about their regime,

"We practice a lot. I went to tons of basketball camps this summer and learned lots of new skills and improved my old skills. I also conditioned with and without the team to stay in top shape for the season. Basketball is not just a winter sport, it's year round for me."

Armijo alumni, ex-Athletic Director, and ex-tennis, football, and golf coach, Bill Fuller retired this year. Girls' tennis player, Nina Kudsus spoke highly of him, "He was a very supportive member of the team. He always encouraged us and never put us down. He was a great guy and I'll miss him in my last year of tennis at Armijo nextyear."

The same intensity which launched students to excel in the classroom surfaced on the playing field in athletics to continue our long-standing reputation of dedication. Despite the score at the end of each game or match, Armijo remained victorious in their own right. Armijo's spirit and determination to win was unmatched by any other team.

Sophomore, Jeff Stahlberger, jumped high in the air to get it toward Armijo's way. "Don't worry, it doesn't hurt," said Jeff. "We practice heading everyday in practice." Varsity soccer had a great season this year.

Sophomore Evelyn Kwok was running on the track, practicing after school. She said, "We had a lot of team spirit. I plan to be on the team next year." Evelyn and teammate Erin Smith made it to sections.

Junior varsity player, Nick Beckford, showed his spirit and emotions toward his teammates about the game they were playing. "I always cheered and yelled as loud as I could," said Nick. His participation and spirit in football made the team get even more hyped up against their competitors.

On the junior varsity team, sophomore Riley Wellman and freshman Morgan Lynch tread water to keep their bodies and minds awake while waiting for the ball to be passed to them. "Water polo is really hard," said Morgan. "You have to work hard and compete against rough competitors. It's a good sport if you like to fight."

Senior Jill Graham bumps a ball during the game. "I had a lot of fun at the volleyball camp that we went to and learned a lot that helped me throughout the season," said Jill.

Water polo was a sport unknown to many of our incoming freshmen. But this year, the new girls' water polo team was the talk for many girls like Aja Roper, and Morgan Lynch. "The girls worked hard to bring Armijo a girls' polo team. Hopefully it will be around for a while," said Aja. They did well for their first year as a competitive team.

Dean Drury, has been their coach for three years and has set up an intensive workout for his players. Varsity player Ryan Morris talked about their busy schedule. "Water polo is a sport that takes a lot of your time and you just have to be able to balance your time," said Ryan. During the three months of the season, water polo players practiced every morning and afternoon for five

For many of the returning boys players it was another year to compete and gain more letters for their jackets. But there were more reasons why many of these players came back. Flash Gordon, a junior, has been in water polo for three years and intended on going to his fourth next year as a senior. Flash said, "Water polo is great! It's a great way to exercise. It's also the most vicious sport in the world. I enjoy the competitions that the other schools bring."

Like many sports, water polo players must be in their best shapes to play competitively. The water polo coach, straight days. They worked on their individual skills and skills as a team. Their meets were on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Tournaments were on Fridays and Saturdays. Varsity player, Richard Stemmer, was a major help to the team. "This year we didn't do as well as we wanted to. It varied from game to game. Some games would be good and others were bad, but basically we had a strong team if we wanted to use our skills," said Richard.

Water polo was a challenging sport. Many players had a competitive attitude-if you can't take the heat, then get out of the way.

Freshman, Morgan Lynch, guarded her opponent fearlessly. "Armijo polo is very fun," said Morgan. "We have the first Armijo girls' team and it was a good season." She met a lot of people and had good experiences at the games.

Goalie, Hannah Otto, looked for a teammate to pass the ball to. "Water polo is like a combination of basketball and soccer on water," said Hannah. Her goalie job was harder than it looked, but she enjoys it.

Jessie Hosteller used her strength to pass the ball over her opponent's arm. "Water polo is hard, but you become friends with your teammates," said Jessie. Many also thought going to other cities was fun.

Junior, Nick Hanley, and sophomore, Riley Wellman, pushed their defensive skills to the limit to get the ball in their direction. "You meet a lot of people at tournaments and can compete at higher levels," said Riley. Riley was such a great competitor, that as a sophomore, he was on the varsity team.

Junior varsity player, Kevin King, held on to the ball while waiting for the right moment to throw it into the goal. "Water polo is a very intense and aggressive sport. If more people came out and played, they would find that it's very exciting," said Kevin. The closeness of the scores proved that water polo was exciting.

Morgan Lynch was first introduced to water polo by one of her best friends, Aja Roper. Every summer Aja would make Morgan practice to get ready for Armijo's team. As a freshman, she enjoyed this year and looks forward to playing the next three years.

Beau Roper swam for the City of Fairfield at Armijo's pool. Beau would come early to the pool while Armijo's water polo team practiced. He would fool around, shoot the ball and have fun with the team. When he entered high school, he knew all about water polo.

If there was one word to describe our football program this year, changes would be the obvious choice. A new head coach, new bleachers, and new jerseys topped the list of the most important changes.

Former Will C. Wood coach, Jerry Glassmaker, took the vacant position of Varsity's head football

Brown Lee Field. Football fans were enthused to finally have them built and game attendance increased after they were there. Fan, Rodney Fitzhugh, said, "The spirited atmosphere at the football games is mind-boggling. I went to almost every game, cheering madly along with the other Armijo football enthusiasts. Camper, Derrick Holland, said, "I thought the camp was a good idea. After Camp Armijo, there was a sense of togetherness that I've never felt before in all of my four years on the football team."

Football boosters had been doing fundraisers and getting community donations to replace our old, condemned bleachers. After many sets of temporary bleachers, our new bleachers were proudly erected in everyone still enjoyed supporting our team."

Probably the most exciting thing to the team was the new uniforms. Shiny new purple uniforms replaced the banal ones of former years. The old jerseys were passed down to JV. With the new uniforms, players felt like they were a new team and had a new hope for the season.

This season was a building block for years to come. A new coach, bleachers and jerseys are sure to bring about a change in our reputation, but only time will tell. This year's changes were all greeted with open arms and will aid the team forever.

Jimmy Tannahill, number 89, was thrilled at the team's yardage gain and motions to get the audience pumped and cheering. Jimmy said, "Playing well and gaining yards gives me a great rush." Our football team soon scored after this play.

Senior quarterback, Brian Almeida, waited for our center to hike the ball. Brian said, "I love being quarterback because I'm in control of the plays." The quarterback got the plays from the coach and relayed the play to the team.

Runningback Larry Knox, broke through Harbor's line. Larry said, "I think I played my best at the Harbor game, even though it was one of the first of the season." The runningback had to be quick and powerful to be a successful player.

Deon Barnes, number 21, and Brian Almeida, number 11, discussed football with two of their coaches. Deon said, "The coaches always give us good advice." The coaches' advice and encouragement helped the team to keep its morale up.

Sophomore star John Patton flew past Harbor's defense. John said, "The team and the coaches were great." The coaches admired John's dedication and ambition so John was moved up from JV early in the football season.

Knowing what to expect was a distinct advantage to most players. The Indians played hard and tough every time they stepped on to the field. No matter what the outcome of the game, they kept their heads high and represented Armijo with pride.

Number 24, Kenneth Dubose attempted to run past Harbor's linemen, while number 34 blocked off defensive men. Kenneth said, "I enjoy trying to break through the line because it takes skill and power." Runningback was one of the more difficult positions in football.

Quarterback Mario Alcazer waited for the center to hike the football to him. Mario said, "I have a lot of pressure on me. All of the offensive plays depend on if I do my job right. But it is the kind of pressure I enjoy." It was important that the quarterback knew what he was doing.

The Junior Varsity team got psyched before the game. Team player James Reed said, "Before each and every game, we get really pumped and enthused to play." Doing a little chant before kickoff was an Armijo tradition in football and both teams followed it faithfully.

Freshman Marcus Reliford turned the corner against Harbor High. Marcus said, "It is exciting when I get the ball and see a hole in the defense. I can get a lot of yards if I can spot the hole." Scoreboard-wise, our Junior Varsity team did better than the Varsity team.

An anxious coach watched the game from the sideline along with the rest of the football team. Mark Etue said, "It gets boring waiting on the sideline to play, but I play offense, so I have to wait when it is defense." Very few players played offense and defense.

Marcus Reliford was a freshman running back for the Indians this year. In his first year, he started and carried the ball numerous times during the season. A good combination of speed and quick stopping ability, helped Marcus to success this year.

Since a majority of the players have played since their freshman year, they kid around on the court with each other and still play a good game of tennis. The team played matches every Tuesday and Thursday starting at 3:30pm and practiced Mondays and Wednesdays from 3:10 to 4:40pm. The weather and conditions of the court played a major factor on how well the players were able to work. Fairfield's brisk wind proved to help at times. Other schools were not prepared for the wind that often altered the course of serves and shots, but our players practiced with it everyday and knew how to work with it. Melissa said, "The wind annoys me sometimes. It blows my balls out."

Junior Su Jin Gatlin hit a forehand across the court while practicing. Su Jin said, "I feel more comfortable with my forehand, but my coach says my backhand is much better." Many people on the team practiced outside of the school team with their own coaches.

Second year player, Sotara Manalo, concentrated on hitting the ball down the line. She said, "Even though playing competitions was hard, everyone contributed to the success of our team." Sotara went 7-4 in the MEL season.

Senior and number one singles player, Vivian Kwok, hit an excellent backhand while running. Vivian said, "My most effective weapon is consistency." Vivan was the only senior on the girls tennis team.

Left-handed Kjirsten Finlinson, slammed a forehand past her opponent. Kjirsten said, "I wanted to play tennis this year because it's a great team sport and it's fun." This was Kjirsten's first year on the tennis team.

Besides setting priorities, the players set personal and volleyball goals. These goals helped them to strive for improvement. To help reach those goals, twelve Varsity players and three J.V. players went to camp at Pepperdine University over the summer. At camp, the girls worked hard all day, for five days, with the best coaches and players in the country. They reviewed the basics and learned new skills and plays to dominate the opposing teams. Despite a difficult season, every player on both teams worked hard to improve and make the season enjoyable. "The season was long, but all of the hard work over the summer and during the season made us all improve," said senior Jennifer Linderman. "Although our record was not impressive, working hard and cooperating made the season enjoyable."

SPORTS

Sophomore player Stacey Austin served up an ace. "Serving is an important part of the game," Stacey said. "It looks pretty easy, but serving in a game is hard because of the pressure." Good, consistent serving could score a lot of points.

Leilani Antoque, a varsity setter, set the ball for a hitter. "Setting is a difficult job. The setter is in charge of what goes on out on the court, like a quarterback does on the football field," said Leilani. This year, the setters tried more complicated plays.

Team captain and middle blocker Jami Rodriguez blocked a hit from a Vacaville player. "Playing middle blocker was a lot of fun," said Jami. "Blocking and hitting are the best part." Jami had been playing volleyball for four years and she also played the back row as well.

Brian Fong ran towards the ball, hopefully to put us on the offense. Brian was a sweeper, a defensive position. Brian said, "I've played for various leagues and school teams." Most of the players have been playing soccer for a long time.

Junior Gabriel Sanabria played defense against his opponent. "Soccer players have to be in good shape because we run constantly for ninety minutes," said Gabe. Many of the soccer players, Gabe included, play soccer during the whole year. Most of the team played for the Rowdies.

Danny Martinez kicked the ball hard to get it across the field. "You kick the ball with the intention to pass," said Danny. Soccer was not a one man sport. It's all about team effort and making the psychological and physical connection between the players.

There were some team members who have been running for Armijo for quite some time now, but for others it was their first year. Many of the members on the team did cross country to help them in the spring sports they participated in. "There were many team members

It was a lot of hard work, but it paid off. It got me in shape and built my endurance for other sports." Although winning was the main goal for the whole team, many members said that they just wanted to have some fun. Staying in shape was another important aspect. Erin Smith, a sophomore, was one of the star runners on the team. "Cross country was one of the best things I have ever done," said Erin. "I got to meet people and experience something different. I really enjoyed it." Erin was so good at running, she went to the M.E.L. sections this year.

Sophomore Jamie Yocum quickly sprinted to get to the ball before her opponent did. "I like the challenge of racing my opponent to the ball. After a season of long practice, my running skills have improved," said Jamie. It was important for soccer players to be good runners.

TURNING BACK TIME

On Friday morning, the nervous nominees were introduced to the school during the Turn Back Time assembly. After returning to class, everyone voted for the candidate they wanted to win. "The assembly went well; we had a great turn out. I think that the assemblies really help people decide who they really like," said Homecoming Day chairman, Sarah Ries. At lunch, class officers and nominees went to Round Table Pizza to have a lunch.

As the junior varsity game came to a close, the classes and yearbook put the finishing touches on their floats. "It was fun, interesting, and hard to put the yearbook float

In the final seconds of the game, the Indians secured their small lead when Brian Higgins kept Vintage away from the ball after his free throws. Senior Darrell Teat said, "It felt really good to win our Homecoming game because all of our friends and family came to support us." The win added to the intense spirit of Homecoming Week.

After the game, students flocked to the cafeteria to attend the annual Basketball Homecoming dance. "I went to the dance and had fun getting my groove on," said sophomore Melissa Mazzei.

Jayne Andrews lounged in her bed as she was escorted around the gym. "I had fun on the float because my job wasn't hard, I was with friends and it was fun," Jayne announced. All of her slumbering helped the freshman class come out with fourth place.

James Summers and Anthony Blackman participated in homecoming by dressing up on Halloween Day as female strippers. "I participated in the theme days because I thought it would be fun to show my school spirit," said James. Other theme days included: semi-formal day, twin day, college sweatshirt day, and purple and gold day.

Jamie Rodriguez and Arthur Tuttle strolled across the mist filled gym during the Homecoming assembly. Jamie said, "I was really shocked to be nominated, but I was honored. The assembly was fun because my friends were also nominated." The theme of the assembly was "All I Want to Do is Turn Back Time."

Rhonda Bailey and other spirited sophomores showed off their float around the gym. Rhonda said, "I enjoyed working on the float because I got to be with my friends and create something that represented my class." Though the sophomores took last place, they still showed that they knew how to have fun.

Cristina Gonzales and Lindsey Wigley strolled through the gym dressed like characters in the show ER. "It felt good to be part of a class that never lost a basketball homecoming float competition. Class of '96 rules," said Christina. The theme of the Senior class float was "All I Wanna Do is Be On T.V."

Spencer Hahn was the center of attention on the junior float. "It was fun to get the attention of the crowd, but it's tougher than it looks to dress like a woman," said Spencer. His lounge singing antics helped the juniors to a second place win in the float competition.

Demetrius Edwards and Ninna Amora were the big winners on Homecoming Night. "I was just surprised when my name was called. It was unbelievable that so many people voted for me," said Ninna. Kelly Newman and Brian Almeida were crowned senior attendants at the Homecoming Night festivities. Kelly said, "I was so excited all day. It was a lot of fun." Brian wants to play college football somewhere and eventually become a punter in the NFL and get married.

Kate Nattrass and Tarlan Bananzadeh carried the banner in front of the senior basketball home-coming float. "I really enjoyed being part of the class spirit on our last Homecoming. It was also great working toward our undefeated title," said Kate. The consistent creativity and hardwork of the class of 1996 gained them this high honor.

Nate Strickland and Lisa Crawford were the winners for the sophomore class. Lisa spoke of her Homecoming experience, "I was nervous in front of the crowd. It felt good to win. I was really surprised to win against my friends, and I'm glad people voted for me." Both Nate and Lisa have dreams of being architects.

The junior class attendants, Drew Higgins and Jocelyn Fernandez, posed for their photo session. Drew said, "I thought it was interesting that all of the winners went to the same elementary school, except for Nate." Drew got the pleasure of winning two times that night with the victory of the game and his Homecoming achievement.

The junior attendants waited in anticipation to see who the winners were. Jenny Ceballos said, "It was really fun being nominated and I'm glad that I was given the opportunity to do it." The winners of the junior class attendant slots were Jocelyn Fernandez and Drew Higgins.

"When I found out I had won, I was relieved that the anticipation and waiting was over," said Karinda. "It was a pleasure to know people voted for me." Karinda was one of the many attendants that were basketball players.

The Indians starting lineup consisted of only two seniors, Darrell Teat and Demetrius Edwards. The remaining three starters were juniors Ryan Davis and twin brothers Drew and Brian Higgins. Contributing immensely to the Indians' season off the bench were

A loose ball on the court was rarely without a body diving after it.

They played a hard season this winter and looked forward to making next year an even better one.

As the club struck the little dimpled golf ball, the player's face furrowed in concentration and eagerness, hoping the ball would find its way into the hole. They practiced many long hours at Rancho Solano Golf Course to improve the coordination, power and accuracy of their swing.

Golf is a popular sport, but some people think of it as a boring and useless sport. The golf team proved them wrong. Golfer Paivi Panula said, "I played golf back in Norway and I play here too. Golf is one of my favorite sports because it is really hard." Golf is not only fun and thrilling, it takes enormous amounts of skill and dedication. For me, it is an outlet for pinned up energy as well as as outlet for stress."

The team practiced everyday after school in the gymnasium. Forehand, backhand and serving were the main things they worked on. Cindy Lippstreu said,

Golfer Hugh Wilson concentrated hard as he hit the golf ball. Hugh said, "Golfing is one of those sports that takes more than just strength and power; golf takes finesse and ability." The golf team did very well in the season and gained a lot of experience for future years.

lot of experience that helped me out this season. I knew what varsity competition was like."

Despite the stormy weather in the beginning of the season, the determined varsity, junior varsity, and freshmen teams were determined to practice. Rain flooded the teams' practice fields, which caused even more trouble. Players and coaches ran for cover into the small gym where they set up nets for batting practice. Although they could not practice base running and fielding, team members found that the modified practice was better than none at all. "Although we could not use experienced players, we have played with or against each other on other teams before. All of us got along very well, on and off the field." Playing with each other before helped the varsity and J.V. teams tremendously, because they knew each others strengths and weaknesses.

Teamwork proved to pay off for the teams, as they each improved their records from last year. Hard work, dedication, and great coaching from Dave Marshall and Tim Falkenstein helped to inspire the players to do their best in games and practices.

Senior catcher Ryan Pickett threw the ball back to the pitcher during warm-ups. "I enjoy catching," said Ryan. "It takes a lot of concentration and control." Ryan has been playing baseball for many years and this was his fourth year playing here.

R*J. Tell stepped up to bat during a pre-season game. "Baseball takes a lot of skill, dedication, and training, but is also very entertaining. It is definitely my favorite sport," said R.J. He was the starting pitcher and he has played all four years.

The new coaches had a major effect this year. The new skills taught our softball team to be more competitive and to work together as a team. With this outlook, the Indians were able to achieve many victories. Leilani Antoque, the catcher for the Indians, said, "The new coaching staff's skills make for a better team and Winter showers made the softball diamonds muddy and unusable. Junior Vanessa Romero remarked, "It was a minor setback to not be able to use the fields, but all of the other schools couldn't use theirs either." The rainy season was not enough to stop the dedicated athletes.

Through the changes in the coaching staff and unfavorable weather conditions, the girls' softball team could not be hindered. In fact, they grew stronger with each experience.

Three year veteran, Patty Ramirez, hardly missed a practice. She commented on her practices by saying, "Some days are very intense but they pay off." She also had high hopes to play for a college softball team.

The goal for this season was improvement. During the dry months, athletes and coaches brought out their tools to construct a new high jump pit and discus area. "Without the new high jump pit, I wouldn't be able to compete. And I'm glad I'm able to because I put a lot of effort in it," said Derrick Holland. Despite the difficult work it took, the new field areas benefitted the team's practice conditions.

Each coach helped with their area of specialization and expertise. "Each coachj knew a lot about the events they coached. They really help out in every way," said Kristjian Townsend.

sport, much like swimming, takes practice. A diver would practice one style of diving, such as the forward one and a half with a half twist, and when that dive had been mastered they would move on to the next dive. Divers made goals for themselves and strived to achieve these goals. Persistence was the key and winning was the lock. The dedication started with practice everyday.

Sections is a competition that swimmers take part in when they reach the qualifying time. The fastest swimmers from all over California come together for this fierce competition. Diver and swimmer Kevin King said, "In the afternoon, I swam for one and a half hours and dove for two hours. That took a lot of energy." A diver's goal is much like a swimmer's; to achieve the best and make it to sections. Many divers did not settle for mediocrity, which drove them to consistently practice until perfection.

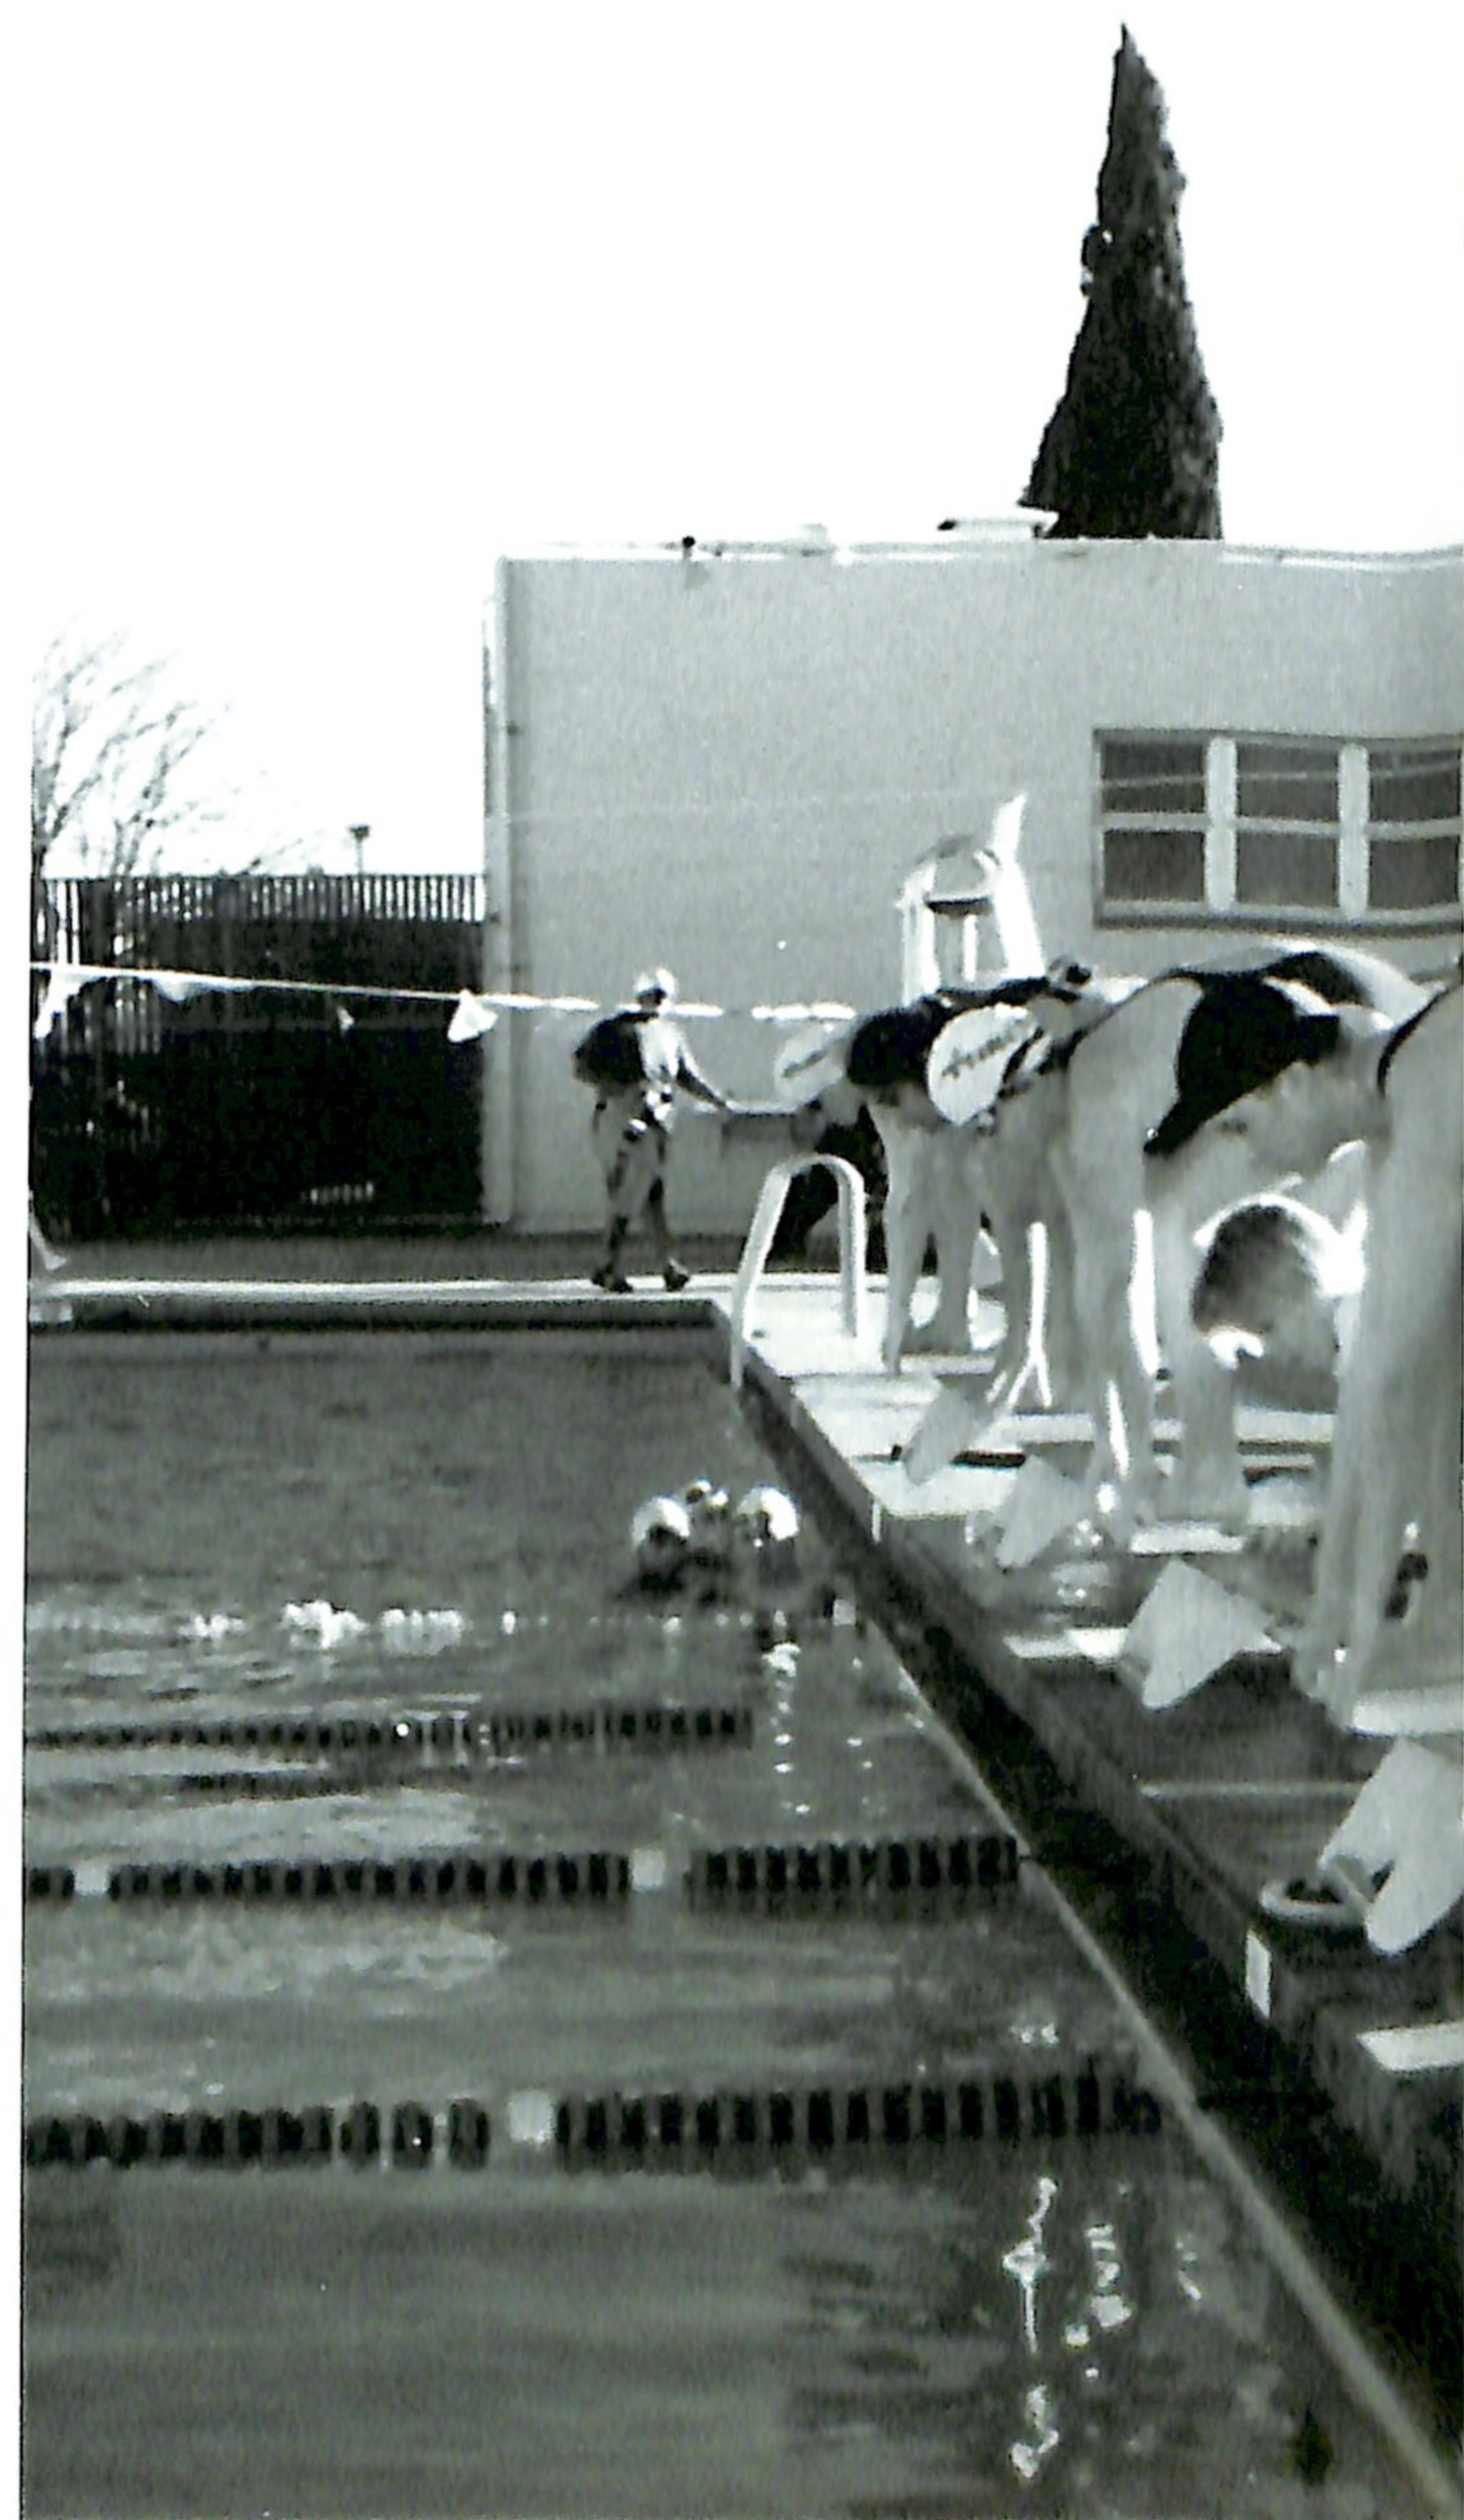

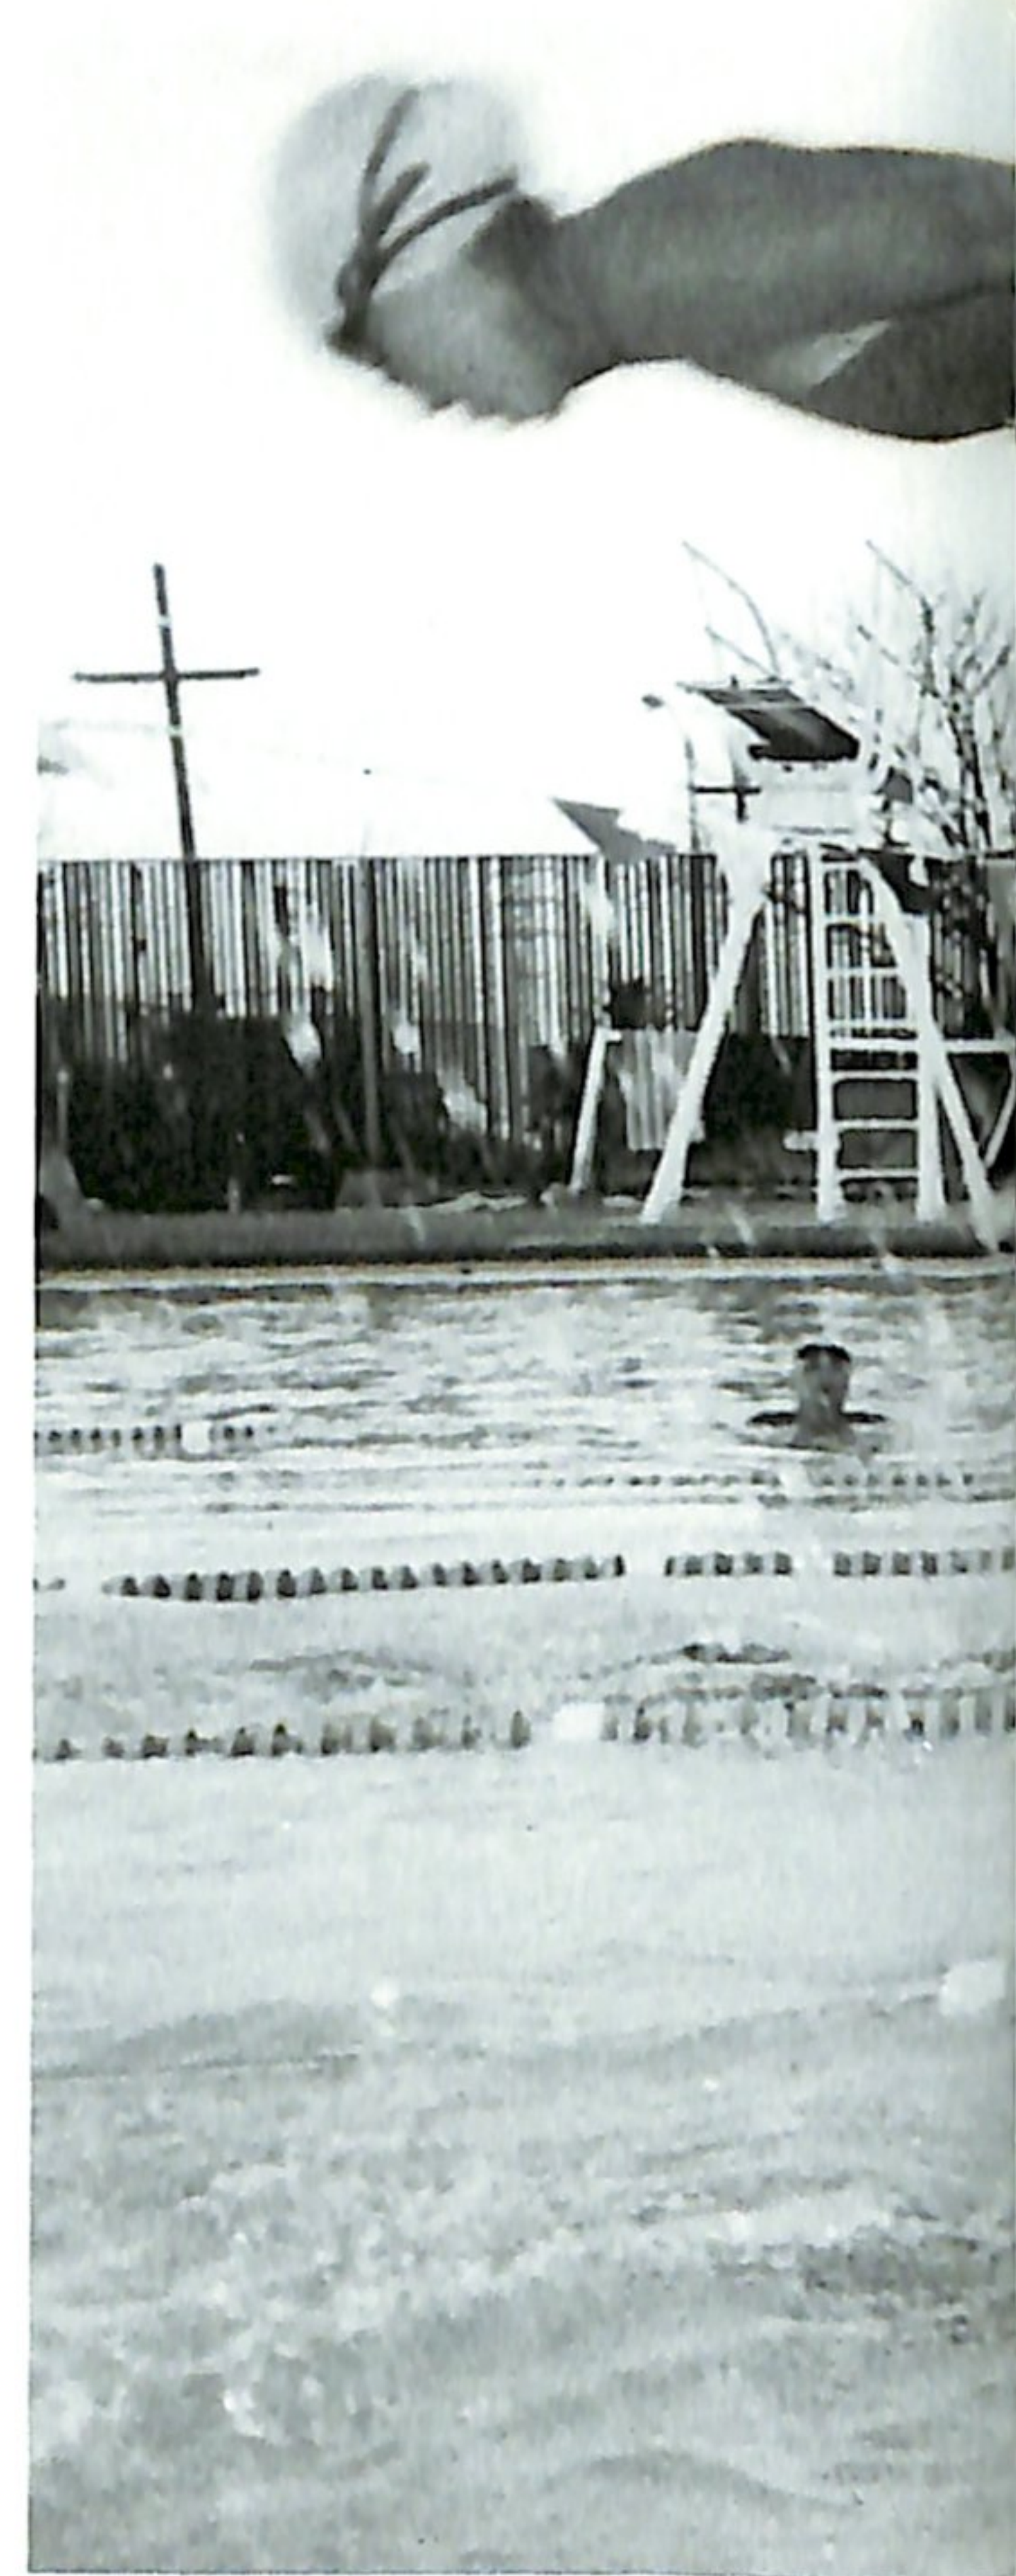

In the beginning of the season, swimmers and divers were faced with cold temperatures and pouring rain. But they toughed it out and did not give up. The swimming and diving teams's dedication and effort pushed them to the top.

WE ARE GRATEFUL

Support comes in various forms, and for this edition of Armijo's La Mezcla, the most numerous form was advertising. Without the support of businesses in the community, parents and friends of seniors, the production of the yearbook would never have been possible. Every advertisement purchased, both business and senior, helped to pay for a part in the making of this year's book. Advertising was a terrific way for seniors to be congratulated on their successes and for local businesses to promote their company.

Grad Ads filled many pages in the advertisement section. Seniors had the chance to purchase an advertisement, whether it was a full page for $250 or an eighth of a page for $45, in which they put pictures and memorable phrases or messages with their friends. Victoria Oldridge placed an ad with eight other of her friends in the yearbook. Victoria said, "Placing a Grad Ad in the yearbook was a great way for my friends and I to remember the fun times we've shared together long after we graduated." Alison Sims, graduate Jennifer Sims' mother, placed a sentimental advertisement in the yearbook including her daughter's senior picture. Mrs. Sims said, "I wanted to let everyone know how proud I was of Jennifer, and how excited I am that she's accepted into the CIA."

Local businesses also supported Armijo by purchasing business advertisements. La Mezcla has seen many advertisements, but there have always been those few businesses the yearbook could always count on. Green Valley Ford, Mary Cornelison Photography, and Hoenig Photography were some of the few businesses returning. Advertising in La Mezcla was a smart move by businesses because their advertisements would remain in the book for years. Without the support of the local businesses advertisements, this edition of La Mezcla wouldn't be the great yearbook it is.

Tim Gillespie, our Herff Jones Representative, was very helpful to the yearbook staff. "I really like Armijo and the yearbooks they put out." He gave to the staff a lot of creative ideas and we were very grateful.

The 1995-1996 yearbook staff was grateful to all the supporters of the yearbook. With every purchase of an ad, whether business or grad, the supporters have a piece of La Mezcla forever and will always be remembered.

The crowds at the basketball games were mixed and varied. "I always came to the games, win or lose," said parent Thomas Higgins. Parents, students and staff all cheered on our teams and we were very grateful for all their time and support.

Coach Glassmaker, in his first year as the football coach, worked very hard, both in the classroom, as well as on the field. He has begun to build up our football program and we are very grateful for all he did.

Bill Fell, owner of Green Valley Ford, was the first business to support the yearbook with an ad. He wanted his ad to have Armijo Cheerleaders around one of his prize Mustangs. The staff was, and always will be, grateful to all the businesses for their support.

Rae Lanpheir, our principal for the past four years, was very helpful towards all the activities that the students initiated this past year. "I thought the year went very well and I'm glad everything worked out in the end," said Mr. Lanpheir. Students, staff, and the community were all grateful for the job that he did.

REBECCA WRIGHT,

Our precious little girl has grown into a fine young woman who knows who she is. We are excited about your future and know that the Critter Connection will bring a fullness to your life. Whatever your achievements will be, you will always be Dad's "TWINKIE" and Mom's "TOOTSIE BABE". Je t'aime ma petite patate douce.

MONIQUE,

If I could gather up all the smiles, laughs, memories, and pride that you've brought us through the years and give them back to you, we would. Maybe that way you'd understand just what it means to have a daughter like you... and why you're one of the most important things in the world to us. No one could ever love a daughter and believe in her more deeply than we love and believe in you. DAD, MOM, AND TAMARA

Jami,

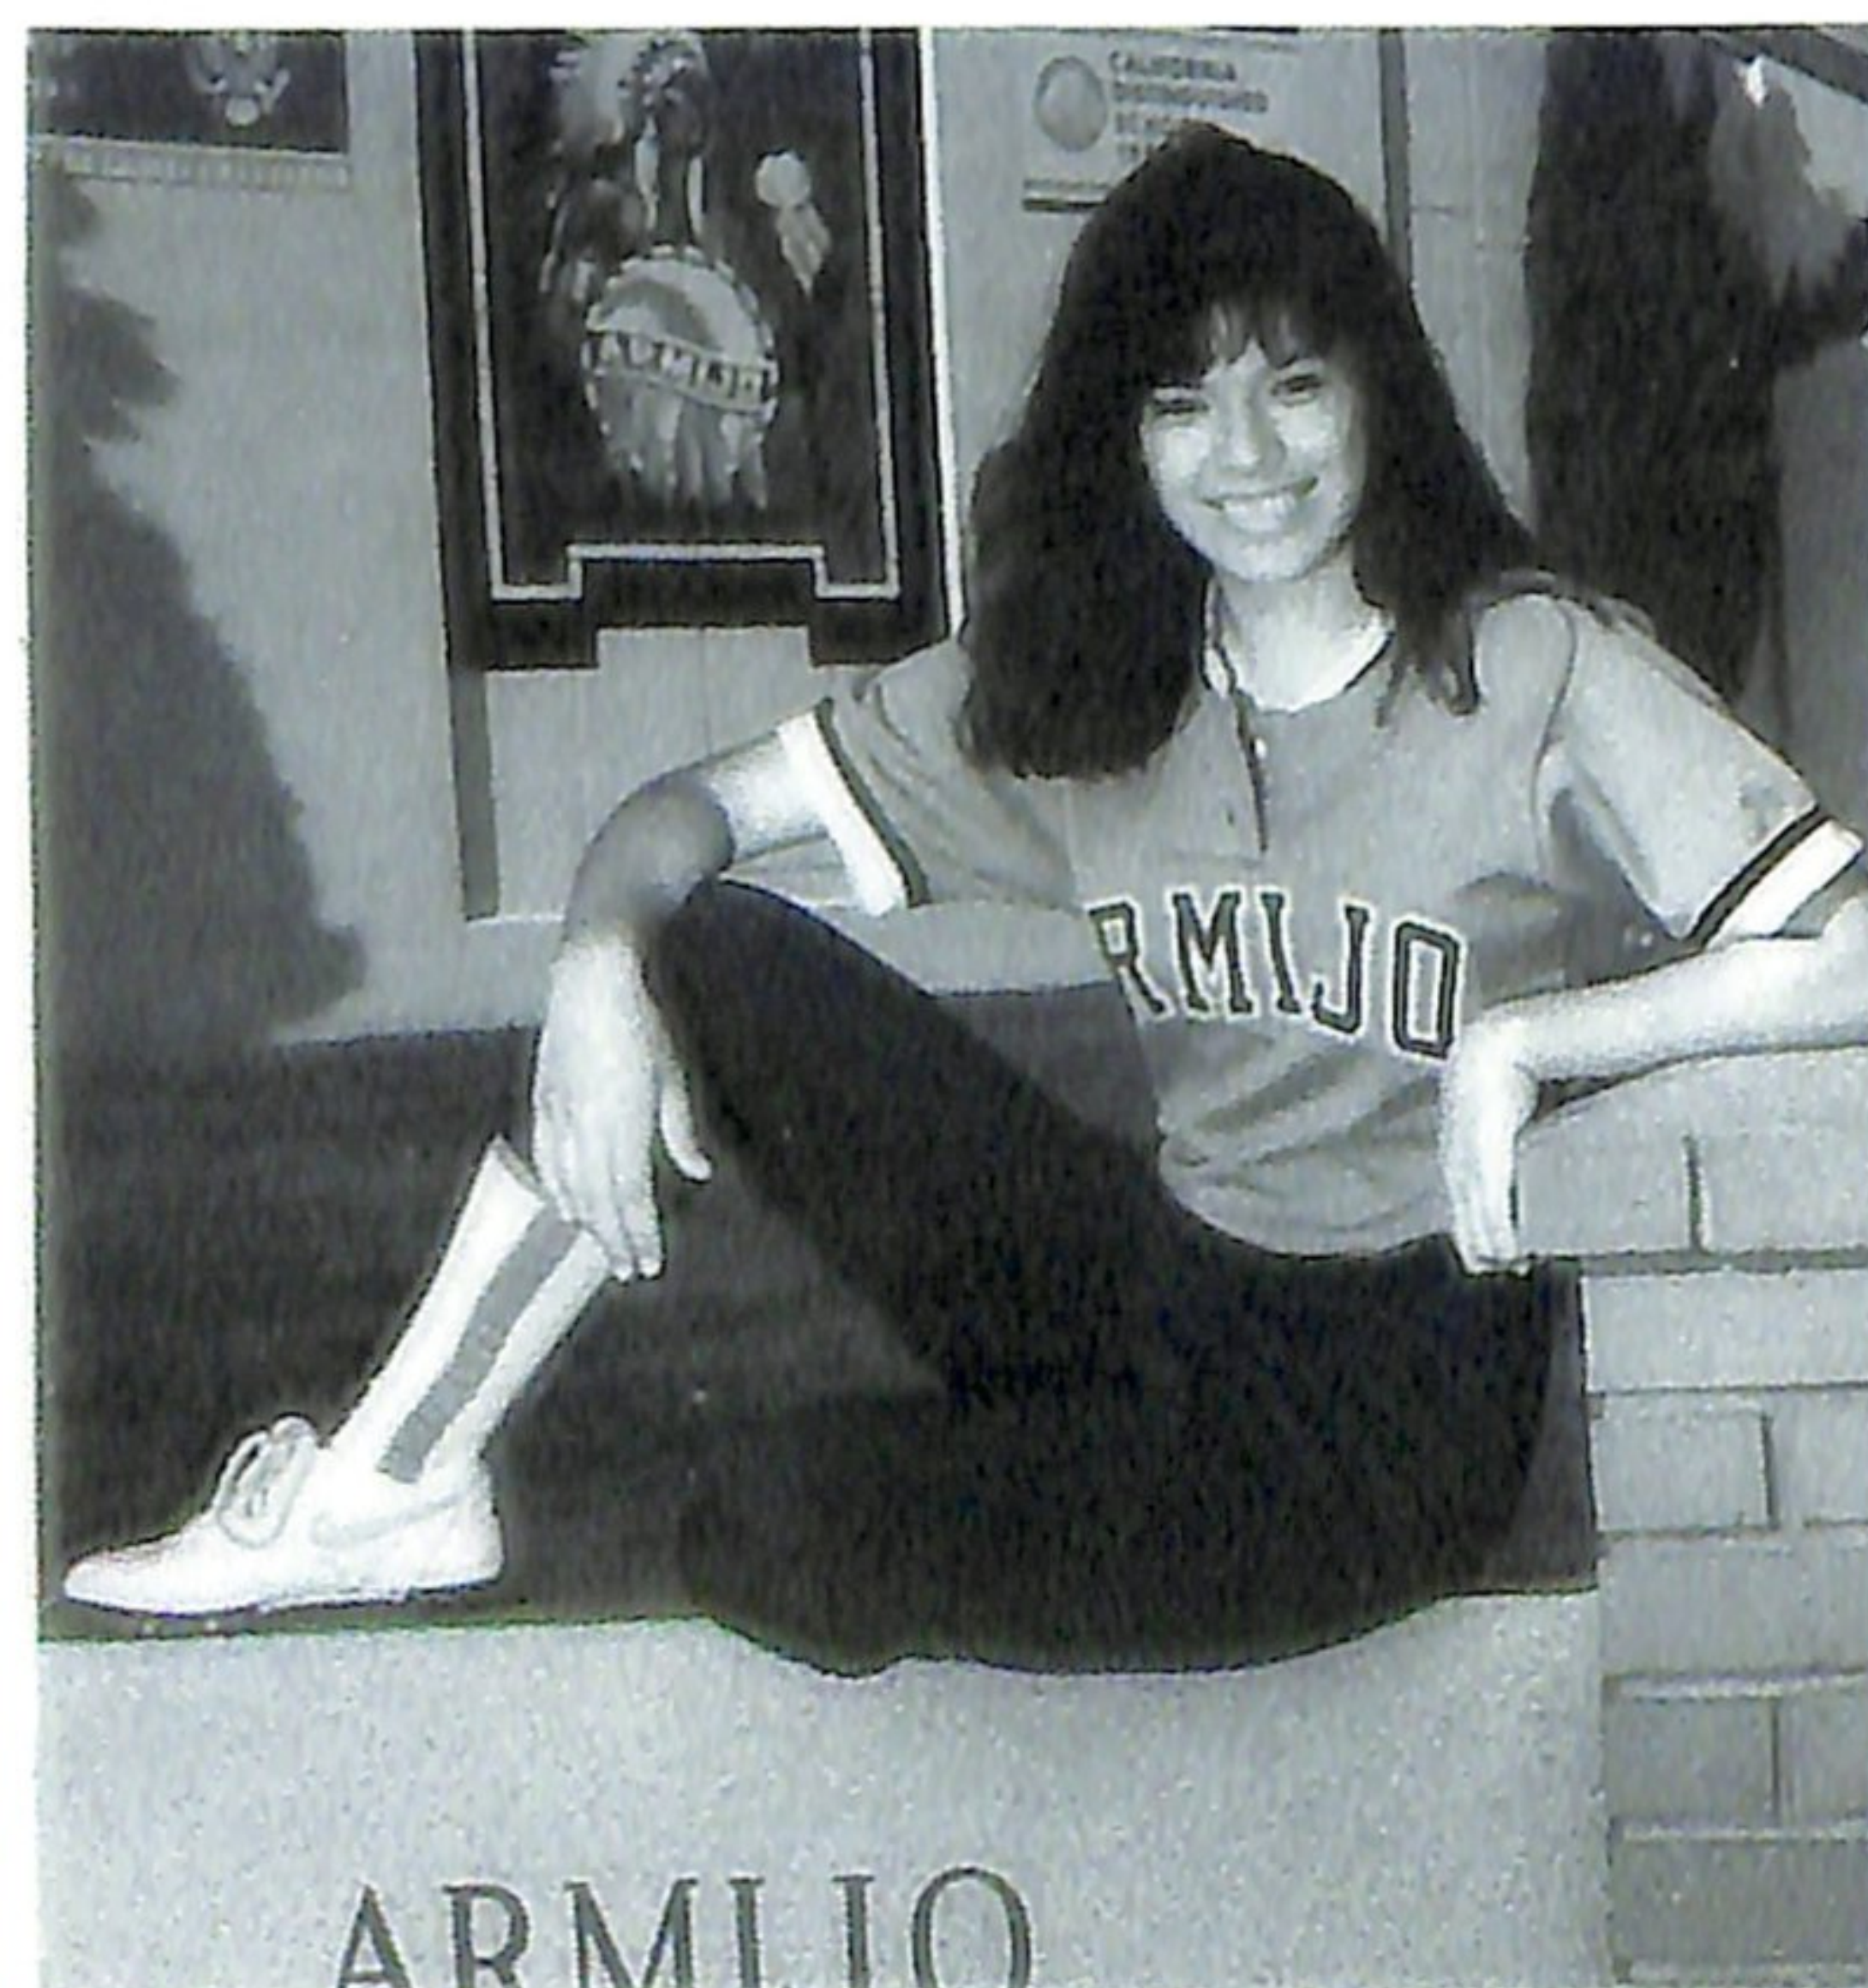

Through my life I never was able to live all of my dreams. But through you I have been able to see those dreams come to pass. In your sports you excelled and whenever I saw the number three my heart would begin to pound as I knew that was you in that uniform giving it your all. When you made honor roll I could not find the words to describe my feeling in pride that I had for you. All of your accomplishments which are too many to list have been a bright spot in my life. Dad and I love you very much and are very proud of you. Remember you will be the number one daughter in our lives forever.

Jami Rodriguez

To watch you grow from a baby in our arms to a young lady who is now eighteen and is getting ready to graduate from high school with high honors. What a joy you have been to us. Keep your head up high and set your goals and go after them. We are a part of the team and will be there for you. We love you very much,

In the beginning, nobody knew what it was going to look like. Not even the staff could guarantee that it would be spectacular. But before June, 1300 people bought a yearbook anyway. The staff's challenge was to satisfy their customers and create a document of history they were proud to put their name to.

The task of creating 248, 9x12, 80 pound high gloss pages of 105 years of La Mezcla tradition was not an easy feat. During the summer, the editors began the laborious process of turing their vision into reality. At Herff Jones Yearbook Camp, the original cover idea, conceptualized chiefly by Brandi Gallegos and the editors, was given to artist, Greg Lemmon. The final product was a custom lithograph.

Come September, the real work began. Using two new Pentax cameras, the pictures were better than ever, enabling the staff to maximize the use of eight flats of color. The book was also given a cool, crisp look with the use of Nova Color HJ 266 Violet 100%. Planning all the eight and ten column layouts on Aldus Pagemaker 5.0 on Apple Macintosh computers made the work much more efficient. Staffers worked long and hard on their stories which were written in 10 pt. and 12 pt. Times Roman. And when their pictures came in from Photo Pro, their captions were written in 8 pt. or 10 pt. Times Roman. After all the body copy had been edited and re-edited and labels were secured onto the pictures, they were shipped to the Herff Jones press in Logan, Utah to be printed.

Many special touches went into the book, making it a standout. The die-cut A on the fornt endsheets was designed by Jim Gillespie. Adam Owen designed the Academics' and Clubs' headlines, using the Herff Jones Portfolio CD, and made sure the folio tabs, designed by the editors, were in place. The remainder of the headlines were created on Pagemaker 5.0. Adam Owen also used Adobe Photoshop to create the Index. The senior portraits, taken by Mary Cornelison Photography, were accented by Chromagraph CG-19, while Shades SH-19 complimented the underclass picutes, also provided by MCP. The Clubs group shots were also given special attention with Shades SH-26.

Lindsey Wigley and advisor, Mr. Harrison labored over the computer to make sure the pages were perfect. Lindsey said, "Working on the computer made it easier to do my pages, but sometimes the computer would freeze on me and do weird things." The use of computers ensured that the work would get done efficiently and with precision.

Pushing the special entry in the Homecoming Float Competition, Krissy Javing and Kristina Lembesis promoted yearbook sales. Krissy said, "We've been working really hard on this book and I wanted everyone to have an opportunity to buy it." Not only did the float serve as advertisement, but the yearbook staff won third place in the competition.

Intently watching the Indians compete, a hush fell over the crowd. Michelle Camara said, "There are times when I cheer to show my spirit. But sometimes I'm so proud and in so much awe, I'm speechless." We proudly stood together as a diverse collection of personalities and abilities; we are Armijo High School.
